The Reed-Warbler and the Bearded Tit must necessarily be local in a country whose fens have long since been drained and turned into arable land, but there are hundreds of thousands of acres of apparently suitable ground in Great Britain, on which the Woodlark never is and, as far as we know, never has been found. Without attempting to fully explain the preferences of the Woodlark, we may briefly note what those preferences are. The name Woodlark is misleading; it should be "Tree-lark," as the great Swedish naturalist, Linnaeus, evidently thought when he gave it the scientific title of Alauda arborea. The German name, "Heather Lark," is also quite inappropriate. The typical locality for this species is the dry,

A VERY ANCIENT LARK TRAP.

sunny side of a warm, sheltered valley, well covered with dry bracken and a little gorse. Let us note that the first of the Woodlark's requirements is warmth, and, presumably for this reason, he is a bird of the southern and western, rather than of the northern and eastern counties. Here in Devonshire we find him in the sheltered valleys, but, when we climb on to Dartmoor, we leave the Woodlark behind, though we find the Skylark, Meadow Pipit and Stonechat nesting up to 1,500 ft. above sea-level.

The Woodlark does not like too much warmth, however, as we may infer from the fact that when he nests in the warmest parts of Europe he chooses generally the hill tops and mountain sides; and we must not run away with the idea that he is a delicate bird because he crosses the North Sea to reach his summer haunts in South Scandinavia, and, as Gathe tells us, he is one of the very earliest spring migrants, passing over Heligoland in February and March.

When we come to know him intimately, we find that he requires a more liberal and more insectivorous diet than his near relative, the Skylark. We may also infer from the wild, lonely districts which he selects that he is a shy bird with a touch of the romantic; lastly from his expression, we shall guess, and guess rightly, that he is of an amiable, affectionate disposition, in which respect also he differs markedly from his conceited and pugnacious cousin, the Skylark.

Lark Trapping Long Popular.

A book might be written on the subject of Lark-trapping, for from the very earliest times this occupation seems to have been extremely popular; it appealed to the sporting instincts of our ancestors, and even more to their appetites. Polydore Vergil, who resided in this country in the early years of the 16th century, tells us that "The cheefe foode of the Englishman consisteth in fleshe; of wilde burdes; these are most delicate, pheasaunts, quayles, owls, thrushes and larkes. This last burde in winter season, the wether being not so outrageous, dothe waxe wonderous fatte, at which time a wonderful nombre of them is caught, so that of all others they cheefe garnishe menues tables." (Notice the spelling of "larkes," which seems to suggest that the name Lark is simply the old German word, "lerche," and not an abbreviation of "laverock.")

"Low-belling" seems to have been the most popular method in this country. One man walked in front ringing a large bell, others followed dragging large nets over the stubbles and behind these came someone carrying a light ("low"). One ancient writer tells us that on a dark night the Larks were so overcome with fright that they used to turn over on their backs, showing their light underparts. This the reader may believe or not, as he likes; the writer has never noticed such an occurrence on the various occasions when he has been out Lark-netting, but of course nowadays for various reasons we dispense with the bell, and use only just sufficient light to extricate the Larks from the net, so the Larks are not so much alarmed.

In Germany we are not surprised to find that the slaughter of Larks was more wholesale; lines of nets, six feet high and more than a mile long (according to Brehm) were stretched across the plains, and into these, at the approach of night, the Larks were driven by dragging long ropes across the ground. We read of more than half a million Larks being supplied to the city of Leipzig in this way in a single month.

The Italians were more subtle in their methods. They mostly used clap-nets, and we are told that one man could work five of these single-handed. Those of us who know from personal experience that it requires an active person to handle a single pair of nets, when sport is at all brisk, will take off our hats to these masters of the ancient art of fowling. Their method of displaying their brace-birds was very far from humane; a long line was attached to the top of one eight-foot pole and ran through a hole in the top of another. To this line the unfortunate brace-birds were tied; when the line was pulled tight, they were swung up in the air together and dangled helplessly. A Police-Inspector nowadays would probably have a fit if he saw such a sight as this.

A Trap of Great Interest.

We may here notice a very ancient Lark-trap, which all twentieth century bird-catchers should examine with an interest almost amounting to reverence, not only because it takes us back through the centuries to the time when man first set snares for birds, but also because it is the veritable prototype of the modern circular spring net trap. (The sketch is based on details taken from Macpherson's History of Fowling.) This trap was used in Italy, Sicily, Morocco, Egypt, and other countries surrounding the Mediterranean.

One of the two half-hoops was a rib of some quadruped, between the extremities of which a tightly twisted skein of sedge, or fibre, or sinew, forming the spring, was stretched. The other half-hoop, the cross-piece, and the trigger were of wood. The trigger was held down by a loop of grass, and to this loop was tied the bait either a single pea or an insect. The Lark standing on the wooden hoop pulled the bait, thus releasing the trigger, and was killed by the bone hoop falling on its back.

I believe that Woodlarks could be easily taken by setting a few net-traps round a call-bird, but on the only occasion when I tried my hand at trapping this species I used a small pair of clap-nets, placing two call-birds in small cages in the space between the nets. One fine October day I made my way to a farm where Woodlarks can be found at any time of the year and set the nets about fifty yards from a wood in which I concealed myself.

Hall-Marked by Its Tail.

I had not long to wait before I heard the familiar call-note (which Gathe well renders by the phrase "Tu-piddl"), and presently I had the pleasure of seeing a prospective captive circling round and round overhead. It may be here remarked that a Woodlark can always be recognised, even at a considerable height in the sky, by its remarkably short tail, which always gives me the impression that I am either looking at a young bird in immature plumage or else that someone has unkindly docked off a part of the tail with a pair of scissors.

The call-birds called lustily, and down came the stranger, which by this time I regarded as my very own. Bird-catching, however, is one of those arts which is never a certainty; when all the conditions are just right and the apparatus is a proved success, it may be described as an easy accomplishment, but when the conditions are not quite right, the results are apt to be most scanty, not to say vexatious.

The bird pitched just outside the nets and just outside he remained. He exchanged "Tu-piddls" with the call-birds at the rate of nineteen to the dozen, and remained for quite ten minutes, but having satisfied his

A CHAMPION EXHIBITION HEN YELLOW-HAMMER.

This charming hen, whose markings and style are so ably depicted by Mr. E. F. Bailey, has won many prizes for Mr. H. J. Chick, of Nottingham. So rich is she in colour (we have seen many cock birds inferior in this point) that discussions have arisen as to her sex.

curiosity, he said good-bye nicely and departed in peace. Other Woodlarks arrived and exchanged greetings; they walked round and round the nets, and some even perched on the staves, but not one would give me a chance of a pull.

The hours passed, the cramped position of the nets-man became more and more uncomfortable, and still there was nothing doing in Woodlarks. But at last I saw a little brown object creeping like a mouse across the open space in the centre of the nets. The energy I imparted to the pull was almost enough to rip the pegs out of the ground, but even so he nearly beat me, so quick is the spring of a Lark. The conclusion that I came to was that it was much cheaper and infinitely less laborious to purchase Woodlarks from the professional trapper.

We now know where to look for a Woodlark, how to recognise the bird, and how to attempt his capture, but, before we attempt to keep one, we must provide ourselves with a suitable cage. The writer has more than once remarked on the fact that we have but very few types of cages, and many of these are not very suitable. My objections to the ordinary Lark-cage are numerous; it is too small, too low, there is usually nothing to prevent the bird injuring its head when it springs, the food is generally placed in a dark box, and the turf cannot easily be removed; also few Lark-cages are well enough constructed to stand rain and sun.

The cage of which a rough sketch is appended has been well tested by actual use, a succession of Woodlarks having lived happily and sung freely in it. Only the framework of the cage is shown, because, instead of a wire front, it has wire-netting of three-eighths of an inch gauge (in order to make it perfectly mouse-proof) and many would object to this on the ground of appearance. Personally, both in the matter of cages and aviaries, I study only suitability, and leave appearances to look after themselves.

The height of this cage is twenty inches, the width twenty-two inches, and the depth of the floor from back to front eleven inches; the roof projects three inches over the front. The span roof and the smaller ditto over the porch are both covered with a sheet of zinc to throw off rain. Under each roof a piece of light canvas is tightly stretched, forming a kind of ceiling, so that, however violently a freshly-caught bird may jump, it cannot possibly hurt itself; with the same object the single short perch projecting from the back of the cage is hinged.

The hinge, which works very freely, is screwed to the back of the cage, and its effect is to hold the perch rigid, should the bird perch on it, but to allow the perch to rise should the bird strike it when jumping. The entire left side of the cage is of wood, to prevent draughts, and on this is hung the usual food-box, which, however, has never been used, all food being placed in the porch. In this position a freshly-caught bird can easily see it.

It is also important that the bird-keeper should see at a glance what the food-vessels contain, so, when designing a cage, bear in mind the principle that "out of sight is out of mind." The turf is placed in the porch, and on this turf the Woodlark may be expected to stand when delivering his beautiful song; for, though the wild Woodlark will frequently sing from the top of an oak tree, a perching Woodlark is quite an exception in captivity.

The Advantages of Sliding Doors.

The porch is eight inches wide, six inches deep and one foot high, not including the roof. The door of the porch (8in. by 12in.) slides up and down in rabbets. The two rabbeted pieces in which it slides are five inches long, and thus allow the door to rise seven inches, which is ample, for it will be found that, should the bird be startled by the sudden opening of the door, it will for some inexplicable reason usually make for the porch.

The advantage of a sliding cage-door can only be realised by those who have used one; a spring door is the next best thing, but this generally requires to be forcibly held back when the hand is inserted, and some day the spring will break, in which case you will be lucky if you do not lose your bird. A sliding door rests lightly on the wrist, when the hand is inserted; it cannot fail to close, and it cannot possibly be opened by the bird; lastly it has no hinges, hasp, or other mechanism.

The tray is three-quarters of an inch deep, made of t.n. black-japanned, and soldered at the corners so as to be water-tight. One of the difficulties of keeping Larks is the clogging of the feet. Until I hit upon the idea of a water-tray I used to find the cleansing of the feet a laborious occupation; it also frightens the bird and puts it off song. By removing the sand and pouring a little water into the tray we can compel the bird to wash its own feet without alarming it in any way. When, however, the sand is renewed every other day, and the turf constantly changed, it will be found that a Woodlark, which is a much tidier bird than a Skylark, will rarely, if ever, require this treatment.

COLOUR IN THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD.

Its Importance and Its Origin.

By
E. W. Allsopp,
(Cardiff).

INASMUCH as colour is one of the main features of the Norwich Plainhead, it has, or should have, the due respect of all breeders. To my mind, when you have succeeded in breeding a reasonably good all-round bird in all other features, colour, of the desired exhibition depth, or the lack of it, decides the issue upon the show bench.

It is just a case of a "topper," readily selected by almost everyone for premier honour, and one of the other kind, perhaps actually better in all other features, rescued with difficulty from amongst those cast by the judge "into outer darkness," and given a commended card, because "somchow," says that gentleman, "there is something I like about the bird."

Anyhow, whether we breeders truly realise the importance of colour or not, the fact remains that a very wide range of degrees of colour exists upon the show bench; and if you are fond of committing apparently trifling details to memory, for future development at your own fireside, you will sooner or later realise in what few hands are birds of the desired depth of colour, and practically so, season after season, in the same hands.

What Green Blood Is It?

Of course, you say, there is no mystery about these insignificant facts, as it is easily explained by the breeders concerned using the green blood very liberally. This, I believe, is very true, but all the same I would ask, "What sort of green blood is it?"

If you are under the impression that green blood is of one standard and of certain character and power in the production of colour, get rid of that impression quickly, for many a breeder has found to his dismay that the more green blood he introduced into his stock the less colour he obtained; so that a "best common" green will not be likely to suit, for what is required is an "uncommon best," and, take it from me, they are uncommon too.

Some recommend a bronze green, others a "Liverpool green," and some the cinnamon and cinnamon green as sure aids to beauty, and I assure you, having tried the whole "bag of tricks" in a small and quiet way, all are worth trying if only from an actual experience point of view.

A writer not many months ago made a very definite statement to the effect that Cinnamon blood was undoubtedly just "it" as a foundation for colour, or urged words to that effect. I am not rash enough to say he is wrong, but, like the sailor's Parrot, I can think pretty hard, and I think he is.

Cinnamon blood, whether pure, or through the medium of a cinnamon green, will in many instances certainly ensure a nice tone of colour in your stock; but, compared with the fiery or brilliant tone found in some Plainheads, it is of a softer, more subdued tone; in fact, an uncovered arc light is representative of the one, and when enclosed in its white glass globe represents the other. Personally, I like better the softer or salmon shade of colour, but for keen competition it is generally found in the "also rans."

The Colour of Yorkshires.

Now, if there is not any foundation in fact in what I write, and which actual experiment would seem to support, I would say "Very well, what about the Yorkshires?" Outside of the Cinnamon, I expect there is not another variety which is so charged with Cinnamon blood. Does this variety stand out for colour by reason thereof? Frankly, taken as a whole, can it hold a candle for colour to the Plainheads? True, an outstanding colour is often found in a Yorkie, and wins somebody's special for best or hottest colour in the show, but I will gamble my best Sunday hat, or at least my wife's, that Yorkie was not built upon Cinnamon stock.

You may introduce the Cinnamon blood through the medium of cock or hen, pure, or as Cinnamon greens; the result I have found the same; and even Mules bred from such, whilst possessing quality of feather, have nevertheless lacked the desired brilliancy of colour.

We have now left the Bronze and Liverpool greens, the latter being generally accepted as the grass green, and if both are absolutely free from Cinnamon blood the chances for improvement in colour are certainly more pronounced, but can only be proved by actual experiment, for after all even non-Cinnamon bred greens are very often poor colour producers.

The astonishing feature is perhaps the wonderful depth of colour we sometimes see upon the show bench possessed by birds which lack quality of feather. Compared with the fine textured silky plumage of their paler brothers and sisters, the plumage is coarse and hairy, or even fibrous, quite contrary to the old doctrine of quality and colour going hand in hand. As a matter of fact the more heavily variegated these particular birds, the more pronounced is lack of quality, but the colour is all there, don't forget; real proper "nose-warmers" I call them, the sight of which always cheers but not inebriates, at least so I tell some friends "as bends their elbows a bit."

The Small Ones of Years Ago.

Now years ago, when we breeders were satisfied with something a good bit smaller, the Lizard cross for colour was a short and sure road, and although I cannot prove it up to the hilt, there is a good deal of evidence to support the view that the Lizard blood is really the responsible factor for the brilliant depth of colour we sometimes see. Were the breeders of the particular specimens interrogated upon this point, it is quite possible they would stoutly deny it was so, and frankly and honestly too. With so many breeders of Canaries, however, and many thousands of birds annually changing hands, it requires no stretch of imagination to realise how a veritable gold mine for colour could be secured, the origin or history of which was wrapped in obscurity.

Therefore, unless a breeder has actually built up his green blood, too much importance must not be attached to such denials. Anyhow, if you closely compare these birds of outstanding colour with the Lizards, you will find as a whole the exact shade of colour is common to both. Also the harsh description of feather seems a characteristic of the Lizard variety; and in some of the saddle marked Plainheads there is distinct evidence of the rowing of the Lizard, which feature has no doubt been firmly fixed in the Lizard variety, and it is significant that it is about the last marking to leave in the Plainhead cross.

After all, when we realise that the Lizard is the oldest and best colour blood we have, why should it not be available in our Plainhead interests to-day? 'Tis easily the purest blood we have, for I think I am right in declaring a cross of any sort will only harm and not improve it. Lack of size is the only real objection I have ever heard against it; but remember I am not advocating a run on the Lizards for crossing to obtain colour, but am merely trying to fix the responsibility for the wonderful depth of colour held by two or three prominent breeders up north.

The quickest way to ensure good results, whether due or not to the Lizard blood, is to obtain some of the green blood, but I know that whilst the demand is great the supply is limited, and I can only admire breeders who have a green or variegated cock of proved worth as a colour producer to stick to him closer than a brother, for such birds are nearly as scarce as Christmases, which only turn up once a year, and I wish all readers a cheerful one upon this occasion, even in the circumstances under which we now labour.

SISKIN (Carduelis spinus).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in August or September. No moult in spring, but abrasion makes the plumage brighter and in the male the crown becomes almost uniform black. The female has no black on the crown and chin, is browner and more streaked on the upper-parts than the male, and has more streaks and scarcely any yellow on the under-parts.

JUVENILE.—Somewhat like the adult female, but browner on the upper-parts, distinctly spotted on the sides of neck and throat, and more streaked on the rest of the under-parts. Inner secondaries and wing-coverts tipped pale buff. (Only one specimen examined).

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch. The birds then become like the adults, but the male is more streaked on the mantle than the adult male, and the female has a browner head and mantle than the adult female.

TWITE (Carduelis f. flavirostris).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in September or October. No moult in spring. Abrasion makes the upper-parts much darker except for the hind-neck, which becomes greyish; the pink of the rump becomes brighter owing to the wearing away of the buffish-brown portions of the feathers, and the streaks on the breast and flanks become more prominent. The female is like the male, but usually has no pink on the rump, though sometimes there is a faint tinge of this colour.

JUVENILE.—Very much like the adult female; but never with pink on the rump; the chin has indistinct streaks instead of being uniform buff, and the throat, breast and flanks are more strongly streaked than in the adult. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch and the birds then become like the adults.

LESSER REDPOLL (Carduelis l. cabaret).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in September or October. No moult in spring. Abrasion makes the pink very much brighter and more extensive, but it should be noted that the amount of pink varies individually. The upper-parts become less tawny and more dark brown, with a greyish-white edging to many of the feathers. The female usually has no pink on the under-parts or rump, but very rarely there is a slight tinge of pink on one or other or both these parts.

JUVENILE.—Much like the adult female in worn summer plumage, but with no pink on the crown or elsewhere, only a little sooty-black on the chin and more spotted and streaked on the throat and breast. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch. The male then becomes like the adult female, but almost always has some trace of pink on the rump and usually a trace on the cheeks, whereas this is more exceptional in the female. The female becomes like the adult female.

The moults and sequences are the same in the Mealy Redpoll (C. l. finaria) and Greenland Redpoll (C. l. rostrata). The juvenile Mealy Redpoll I cannot distinguish in colouration from the juvenile Lesser Redpoll, but the juvenile Greenland Redpoll (like the adult) has distinctly broader streaks on the upper- and under-parts. In first winter and summer plumage the male Mealy Redpoll has a little pink on the breast more often than in the Lesser Redpoll.

LINNET (Carduelis c. cannabina).

ADULT.—Complete moult from August to October. No moult in spring, but in the male especially abrasion greatly alters the appearance, which varies according to the amount of wear. In much worn summer males the mantle, scapulars, and wing-coverts become almost uniform chestnut, the blackish-brown streaks and buff edges of the feathers having worn off, the flanks become almost uniform chestnut-buff and the crimson on the crown and breast, which in fresh plumage is almost concealed by the buff tips to the feathers, becomes prominent. Moreover, the more worn the feather is the more brilliant the crimson becomes. The reason for this has been frequently explained and it is only necessary to say here briefly that in Redpolls, Linnets, Crossbills and Grosbeaks

Mr. Austin Burgess, of Thetford, Norfolk, who is an enthusiast in all that appertains to British Birds and their keeping.

not only the tips and edges of the feathers wear down, but the radii also wear off and leave the rami more or less bare. The rami only are pink and the radii grey, so that the wearing off of the latter makes the pink appear much more brilliant. The female has no pink and is darker and less chestnut on the mantle and more heavily streaked than the male.

JUVENILE.—Much like the female, but with the chin and throat almost uniform buffish-white, without decided dark streaks. The streaks on the upper-parts, breast and flanks, are also much narrower than in the adult female. The male even in juvenile plumage is more chestnut-buff on the upper-parts than the juvenile female.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch and the birds become like the adults.

BRAMBLING (Fringilla montifringilla).

ADULTS.—Complete moult in August-September. No moult in spring, but abrasion produces a remarkable change in the upper-parts of the male and to a lesser extent in the female. The chief difference is in the crown and mantle of the male, the glossy blue-black of which is mostly concealed in fresh plumage by the long buff tips of the feathers. The effect of the wearing off of these tips usually begins to show in February or March, and by June or July there is scarcely a buff tip left, but individuals vary in the amount of wear. The female is much duller than the male, and its crown and mantle are dull brownish-black not glossy blue-black.

JUVENILE.—Closely resembling adult female, but the white of the rump and belly tinged with yellow. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted in the first autumn, except the primary-coverts and wing- and tail-feathers. The birds then become like the adults.

TREE-SPARROW (Passer m. montanus).

ADULTS.—Complete moult from August to October. No moult in spring, and abrasion causes little noticeable alteration. Sexes alike.

JUVENILE.—Much like the adult but duller, the feathers of the crown being smoky-brown with blackish tips, the mantle and wing-coverts less rufous, the throat, lores and ear-coverts more greyish-black and other small differences.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is completely moulted in the first autumn. The birds then become like the adults.

Clear Mule or Canary?

A Curious Communication About a Bird at Larbert.

SIR,—Do the fanciers in Larbert know a Mule when they see one? They asked fanciers from other districts, and they told them this "Mule" was a Canary. They sent the so-called Mules on the quiet to Aberdeen, to a well-known fancier, to see what it was. He said it was a Canary. They sent it to Carlisle show, and it was left out; the same at Hamilton show. It got second prize at Cowdenbeath, but there were only two in the class. Why could the Larbert fanciers not show it at some of the Falkirk shows instead of sending it out of the road, so nobody would know. Trying to make it wild, and taking it away from Canaries, so as not to get it on the Canary song, are not making it a Mule. Are they still convinced it is a Mule?

CAMLEON.

Breeding the Bearded Reedling in Captivity.

SIR,—If the letters appearing recently in CAGE BIRDS bear upon this most interesting event from the standpoint of the Foreign Bird Club and similar societies, then I beg to state that "in confinement" and "in captivity" are synonymous terms, for the term covers cages, indoor aviaries, and garden aviaries (no restriction as to size), or enclosures naturally planted, etc., in which the birds depend upon their owner or an attendant for daily supplies. When Dr. Lovell-Keays' article appeared in the August issue of "Bird Notes" I was under the impression that it was the first instance of success with the species under the conditions stated, and it was with great surprise that I heard they had been bred for two or three years past in the Tring aviaries. I do not know the Tring aviaries, but as soon as facts are ascertained, if it is shown that these are large enough for the birds to be independent of the care of an attendant and regular supplies of food, then it will not count as an "in captivity or confinement" event, and Dr. Lovell-Keays will receive the medal of the F.B.C. for the event. I may perhaps be permitted to say that the medals are awarded for breeding a species of hybrid for the first time in captivity (confinement) under any conditions which entail feeding and personal attendance on the birds—of course, "personal attendance" is taken as having been met where an aviary attendant is kept to look after the birds.

The Novice Problem.

SIR,—I think it is about time societies and clubs should now, once and for all, settle the question. Within the last fortnight at an open Northern show I note that a certain exhibitor gets first prize in a novice class. This gentleman, to my knowledge has been exhibiting well over twenty years, and has had a good many red tickets on his cages. Are we to consider him, with his many years of experience, a novice?

Again, not a month ago the novice medal of a certain specialist club was won by the son of a champion exhibitor who a short time ago advertised in the press that he would not be exhibiting this season, and I think as "Novice" says in CAGE BIRDS of Nov. 30, that beginners or pure novices have not an earthly chance against such. We also often find in looking through catalogues, Miss So and So, or Master So and So in a novice class, but on looking at the index we find their address that of a champion exhibitor.

All these examples are entirely unfair to the true novice; I might go further and say they are unsportsmanlike and not worthy of good fanciers. I am in agreement with your editorial note on the subject, but might I ask you to go further and take a plebiscite of the secretaries of all societies in the kingdom (as per the list in CAGE BIRDS 1915 ANNUAL) and from their answers formulate the best definition of a novice, which should be agreed to and adopted as a special rule by all, and should be carried out in its entirety all over the Kingdom.

JUST COME BACK.

[We would willingly carry out our correspondent's suggestion if we thought good would come of it. We may point out, however, that a very widely accepted definition of a novice is already before the Fancy, i.e., that in use at the Crystal Palace and other large shows. This definition we adopted ourselves during the season in which CAGE BIRDS' Championship Competition was running, and it answered its purpose quite satisfactorily. Further, it obviously would be adopted by the London and Provincial O.S. for its Palace shows only after the "novice question" had been examined and discussed in all its aspects. Therefore it seems a natural conclusion that here the Fancy has already a rule by which the question "What is a Novice?" may be satisfactorily answered. It reads as follows:

A novice is a person who has never won a first prize for Canaries, or Mules and Hybrids, or British, or Foreign birds, in a class at any show other than one confined to club members, or residents in the town or county where the show is held, or limited as to the price at which the exhibit is to be sold (price not to exceed £5), or three first prizes in open novice classes. All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete.

Have societies or fanciers any objections to raise against the above? One point occurs to us, viz., that after the words "is held" in the 6th line, might be added: "or restricted to a radius of 50 miles."—EDITOR, "C.B."]

Where Rare-feathered Birds Seem Common.

SIR,—I had a pure, but rather dingy, white Starling brought me, which I bought about a week ago. It was alive when I got it, and in fair condition, apparently, but was dead next morning. This was not to be wondered at, as it had lost half its top beak. How it came by its accident I have no knowledge. It was run down by some workmen and captured, as through inability to pick up its food it had got into a weak state, which accounted for it being captured in that way. It was late in the afternoon when I got it, but I had an idea that if it lived until next morning, with gentles and earthworms placed on the top of soft food, I might have taught it to pick. But, alas, it was dead when I went first thing in the morning to look at it. It does seem a pity that the country people, when anything out of the ordinary is about, should be always after it.

This was the case last year with a pure white Blackbird we had. It got no peace until it was under a riddle, or in a trap of some sort. These parts of Lincolnshire, being on the fringe of the sea-marshes, are fairly wealthy in many kinds of rare-feathered birds, besides rare birds in natural feather. Only last week I saw a fine specimen of the Great Buzzard, in the local taxidermist's, which had been shot. Amongst others in rare feather I have noted in the past few years white Sparrows, several; variegated Linnets, 1 variegated Greenfinch and 1 variegated Yellowhammer. I have had several more or less variegated Blackbirds, two fine variegated Linnets, and the one Greenfinch above noted. Sparrows I do not wish to possess, as they are so "mad" in confinement.

J. WHITELEY.

Identity of Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid Challenged.

WELL-KNOWN SCOTCH JUDGE AGREES THAT THE BIRD IS GENUINE.

SIR,—The Hybrid arrived back in the best of form the morning after you put it on rail, though the cage was not quite so well cared for. It was a good thing you had tied it, as a special precaution, else it might have gone smash. The side and bottom had parted company when I got it back, no doubt through rough handling on the railway.

I am also grateful to you for your kind letters, and for the published report of your examination of the bird, as it clears me, or should do so, of any charge of attempt to present the bird to the Fancy in a wrong light. While I bear Mr. Robson no ill will, I still hold that no judge should wrong-class any exhibit with a casual observation, more especially in a Hybrid class, and your report very well suggests that a close and careful observer would not fail to detect traces of both parents in the bird in question. If any further identifying marks develop later, I will be pleased to let you know.

I might say that the bird was judged at our Club Show, Dec. 4, by Mr. McQuiston, of Ayr, one of the best known Scottish British Bird exhibitors, and he had no hesitation in pronouncing it a Hybrid, showing traces of both parents.

T. H. ANDERSON.

SIR,—I well remember the sensation caused when the first Canary-Bullfinch was exhibited, and the mixed reception accorded it. Quite a number of fanciers cried "Impossible," but Canary-Bullfinches are now fairly plentiful. Till comparatively recent years it was considered impossible to produce Hybrids from the Chaffinch, and now Chaffinch Hybrids are fairly numerous. The latest, but by no means the least, is the Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, concerning the hatching and rearing Scottish Red Cross Show Will Endeavour to Establish a Hospital Bed.

SIR,—Schedules for the Scottish Red Cross show at Glasgow (see advert.) have been posted to all exhibitors at the last Glasgow and Dist. show, and others who have not received a copy might apply. The following judges have been secured: Norwich, J. Winter, Edinburgh, and W. A. Turner, Manchester; Crests, John Young, Rutherglen; Borders, Jas. Hamilton, Eskbank, and Gollan Hislop, Stirling; Yorks, L. Dykes, Bolton Woods; Mules and For., A. W. Watson, Edinburgh; British, R. Bold, Bathgate and H. Jamieson, Glasgow. With 97 classes, £25. per class, 1s. 6d. entry fee, and 130 specials, the exhibitors should rally round this venture, as the cause is a most deserving one, and if all fanciers will help by sending a few entries, also 1s. for membership, no doubt the Fancy will be able to institute the Ornithological Bed in the name of the Fancy, which will be a credit to all helping. Now, fanciers, send along your entries by the 25th inst, as printers are short-handed, and it is necessary to have the entries early.

Fanciers who help are not helping a society but helping a most deserving cause, as after matters are squared up, it drops entirely, but before that it is to be hoped that sufficient funds will be gathered for the object aimed at. It will be something creditable to the Fancy to look upon, and a lasting memory. Any one wishing to exhibit and pressed for time to write for a schedule, should post on full particulars of entries, and I will classify.

A Warning to Cage-makers and Bird Dealers.

SIR,—I would be very pleased if you would give a warning to all cage-makers of a chap, who goes up and down the country making cages. He is sure to be known, for he is a chap with a big lump over his right eye. He came to me three weeks last Thursday night, and told me he had been doing a bit of work for Mr. North, of Bradford, and that he had walked from there that day. I gave him something to do. On Friday morning last I went up town to order some stuff and locked him in, going on making cages. I was away a little over an hour. When I came back he had broken off the lock and gone with £30 worth of my Canaries (Yorkshires and Crests). He told me he came from Birmingham; or, at least, he belongs there. He is a chap about thirty-eight years old, clean shaved, no teeth at the front on the top of his mouth, and the lump on his right eye, which he has covered with his cap. The police are looking for him.

Thrush and Blackbird. Now no one can doubt Peter's qualifications to judge Hybrids and British—he has bred and exhibited the best of them for long years—and he knows a wild bird as well as anybody. This makes three judges who have accepted the bird as a Hybrid. It seems to me that it is not CAGE BIRDS experts who require "sympathy," but Mr. John Robson.

A. FORBES.

SIR,—Mr. Robson, in his letter is rather strong in some of his statements. He says that the bird in dispute was never hatched from a Blackbird's egg. Now, as one who had the privilege of seeing the eggs and young, surely I should be in a position to know the parentage. Mr. Robson suggests that by some means or other Thrush's eggs got mixed up with the Blackbirds. I here emphatically say that no such thing occurred. Does he think Mr. Anderson and others do not know a Song Thrush's egg from a Blackbird's? He further says that he would be the first to acknowledge a genuine Song-Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, but not such as was exhibited at Carlisle, which had no characteristics whatever of a Blackbird. At this point, I really do feel sorry for Mr. Robson. Not see any characteristics in it! Why, in most of its actions it portrays the Blackbird. Surely he gave it scant attention, or he never has been a keen observer of birds in their native haunts.

SIR,—I note that Mr. John Robson says last week he will trust in the bird for his defence, and all he desires is for the bird to be sent to shows under recognised Hybrid and British Bird judges, who will soon expose it by confining his, Mr. Robson's, view that it is only a Song Thrush. Mr. Robson has soon had his answer. I was at Darvel Club Show last Saturday, when this rarity was on view, and judged by that keen fancier, Mr. Peter McQuiston. Mr. McQuiston carefully looked it over and said he had no doubt whatever that it was what it was represented to be, viz., a genuine Hybrid, between Song

How Cheltenham Helped.

SIR,—If you can find room in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, to announce the fact that the profit on our recent show was £6 4s. 6d., and that this sum has been handed to the local Red Cross Society, I shall be very much obliged. We had a splendid show in every way, and consider the balance very satisfactory. Many thanks for the excellent report you gave us.

The Canary Section at Darlington.

SIR,—Allow me to state through the medium of your paper, CAGE BIRDS, referring to the incomplete report of Darlington Show, that the Canary section, considering the present situation, was very encouraging. The open classes averaged 10 per class, not to mention the splendid response from members. Competition was keen, and quality of the best.

F. STORHARD.

Apologies and Thanks from Watford.

SIR,—We must apologise for the late delivery of labels and catalogues, owing no doubt to the curtailed postal arrangements. The catalogues were posted before 7 p.m. on the first day of the show, and in the ordinary course should have arrived at their destinations by first post the following morning; but in several cases they were not received until Sunday, although additional copies were sent. On behalf of the members of the society, we beg to tender grateful thanks to the exhibitors for their generous support, both in entries and by their attendance, and we trust they will overlook any shortcomings on our part in face of the difficulties in which we were placed.

A Yellow Yorkshire Lost at Aberaman Show.

SIR,—Mr. W. Davies, of Aberaman, and I have been in conversation re the loss of the Yellow Yorkshire from the show held at Aberaman last week. I find Mr. Davies is very greatly distressed about the matter, and is feeling the loss so keenly that he is willing to pay the sum of £2 (two pounds) to the holder of the bird if the bird is returned to him, yourself, or to me in sound condition. He will not ask for the name of the holder of the bird, and will pledge his word not to make any enquiries re the same. If the bird is not returned, Mr. Davies is prepared to use the utmost rigour of the law in order to discover the culprit, if such there be. I sincerely hope, for the honour of all South Wales fanciers, after such generous treatment, the bird will be immediately returned.

Should Present-day Exhibition Lancashires be Abolished?

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Jameson, I did not see any Coppies at Manchester. I saw your bird, Mr. J., and I don't call him a show Coppy. I quite believe you when you say you have never put any Crest in. They did not want any; the strain had enough. His head is not a good Coppy; he is short on the leg; he does not stand up; his tail is short; and he is altogether too near the perch. You may have been told they were pure bred; all tell that tale. But they have not bred many pure Lancashires in Rochdale or Oldham for many years. You take a tip from me, and I know. I know your bird has won; he could do no other. He has never met a right good one. The last two fair buff Coppies were those of Messrs. Hordern and Hardy. Your bird is not like what they were in a show cage. Don't be so sure he is the best buff Coppy living, as you have not seen them all.

Glossop.

E. FULLER.

SIR,—I think Mr. Clegg has given Mr. G. Fitton the straight tip that I had nothing to do with his judging at Manchester. Mr. Clegg also said we were one man as regards what a Lancashire should be, and after reading his letter, I think we are, as I have also been thinking all the week, that if a few breeders would join in and try and help one another, we could soon improve things. You say, George, that your father has been showing forty years. Will you kindly let me know where and when he has put a clean-bred Lancashire down this last thirty years? I have not seen one in all that time, and I may tell you that since he took you in as a partner things have been worse, the birds have been more Cresty than ever. Did you not buy some Crests at Nottingham some years since to put into your birds? And I know you had too much in at the time.

Yes, Mr. Fitton, I did win with a fair bird at Glossop under Mr. Compton. Three birds in the class; great, was it not? The same bird was second at Rochdale Good Intent show under the late Mr. Garner in a good big class; W. Lee won. He was also second at the last L. and L.F.A. show at Hyde. What about that ticked yellow first at Oldham under Mr. House, and that clear buff Coppy at Manchester under Mr. Compton, the only Lancashire in the class? He was second and was badly staged. I sold them at a good price to two gentlemen in London, not for Crest breeding. It is all right for you to say I have never won. Will you kindly tell readers when I have shown to get beat? As for my "rubbish," I have still a lot, as I keep a lot of hens for feeders, bred all ways. And as I don't sell, I always have a lot of spare Lancashire cocks to "run them down," and they breed young ones like Crest-breds. Don't try and make readers believe I put Crest into my birds, like you Oldham people. If any judge can find any Crest in my Lancashires I will give him the lot. You say you could have put some birds down that would have suited me. If you have any clean-bred Lancashires, George, put them down, as I have never seen you do it yet. Now about Nottingham show in 1911, and your yellow and buff Coppies. I went to Nottingham to judge Lancashires, not Crests, and I found some. Mr. Heath was there to judge Crests, not me. You have told that tale too often about "giving someone else a chance"; tell it no more, it won't do. What has Mr. Hordern told you many a time? Did he not tell you I was judging Lancashires and that I put them in their right places? Do you think sound, good fanciers have had any encouragement showing thoroughbred stock against mongrels, as they have been doing for the last twenty-five years, and getting beaten? Just because the pure, well-bred bird seems a bit smaller than the big rough bundles of feathers that look bigger in a show cage? If your father has forgotten, and you don't know, what a Lancashire should be like, just look at those plates of Blakston's, and you will see. Read the description of a Lancashire in your club card, and see if you have any like them. I did not ask you to sell your bird. I told you a friend of mine said he would like it to breed with Crests. Sam Fitton, or Rochdale, did breed and show some good stuff. You say you love the Lancashire; well, start breeding some. A Crest never improved a Lancashire, and no man will ever breed a real Lancashire from birds that are full of Crest blood.

The Keeping of Fresh-caught Goldfinches.

Hemp and Niger Recommended.

SIR,—Allow me to give you the information how to keep fresh-caught Goldfinches. I give no aperient whatever, and this is how I feed mine. I give them crushed hemp till they will crack it, and niger seed. I had a hen Goldfinch 12 years, living on nothing but hemp seed, and a cock bird lived 14 years. I had the latter stuffed, and his colours are still as bright as any bird shown on a bench. If you follow these instructions you will not lose many.

H. DRAKE.

Out in the Cold World.

SIR,—Members of the Falkirk Good Intent Society should be able to get into the hall to see their birds judged. Fanciers from different districts, however, were put out of the hall and made to walk the streets in the cold rain and snow, when they might have been sitting in comfort watching the judging. The Grangemouth, Falkirk, and Bannockburn combined show did not do this to us, and other clubs care better for their members. If the heads of the Good Intent had supported other shows, they would not have done this to their members. It would pay them to exhibit and attend at other shows and learn something, instead of showing only at their own fixtures.

BANNOCKBURN.

Alleged Painted Birds in Glasgow.

SIR,—Re Glasgow's Red Cross Show, I would like to ask the sec., seeing they are only holding one show, if their rules will be the same as for any other open show, and will they have a rule to disqualify all birds belonging to an exhibitor if it be found out that one or more of his exhibits are painted or fraudulently tampered with. There is a great talk going on about a well-known exhibitor who was showing at the Glasgow and District show, whose birds in the opinion of many were painted. This must be put a stop to, and the only way to put it down is to have the birds of this particular fancier tested. I, for one, mean to do all in my power to have a stop put to it, as I am determined not to let a painted bird beat me without having it tested by the committee. Now, exhibitors, it is for you to be up in arms against this faking and allow all honest-shown birds to have a chance.

DISGUSTED.

TWO OF "LIFE'S LITTLE IRONIES."

What is the Matter with City of Glasgow Show?

SIR,—I was a little surprised at Mr. McLay's reply to "Briar Bush" re the above, more so as I know "John" and don't for one minute believe that he would misstate facts; but if his reason, namely, the question of a hall, is the cause of the "City" not holding their show, then popular rumour has once again made a mistake, as it is generally given out in the Fancy that what is wrong with the "City" is "blue funk" among the Scotch Fancy section, who both this year and last strongly opposed the holding of a show, but who later on ran, and intend again to run, a show on their own. Their reason for doing so is beyond me, as I am certainly of opinion that the "tidy nest egg" which Mr. McLay talks about would certainly have covered any loss they might have had in running the "City" show as usual, and after all is said and done, what better purpose could have this nest egg have served, than to help to keep the Fancy going in times like the present?

The whole sum and substance is that the Scotch Fancy section is proving itself a nuisance to the Fancy in Scotland, and its "ruling passion" of bye-gone days, namely, "philanthropy," has certainly deserted it, as it is another popular rumour that they absolutely refused to assist in any way the coming Scottish Red Cross Show.

After all, why does "Briar Bush" want to disturb the "City" in its peaceful sleep, when there is a Great Red Cross Show on the boards at which he can show, and by doing so he would not only help himself and the Fancy, but also many a poor Tommy who looks on the Red Cross as a light in the darkness.

The Greenfinch as a Pet Bird.

SIR,—It is with great interest that I have read the articles in your splendid paper, CAGE BIRDS, concerning the attachment which is formed by some birds for their owners. As a great lover of birds myself, I have kept them from the time I was a small schoolboy (I may add against my parents' wishes at times).

With my experience of birds as pets I find that the Greenfinch is about the best of all for docility, especially if the bird be brought up from the nest. I have had many Greenfinches that would fly about the room in the day time and go into their cages for food and water whenever they required it.

The tamest birds I ever had were those in my possession about three years ago. It happened in this way. In the May of 1912 I found a young Greenfinch in the road, and, as I never say no to an addition to my stock, I took him home and brought him up, and this bird became very attached to me. In the late August of the same season I brought home a nest of young Greenies, put them in a cage, and hung them in the kitchen, where the original bird was flying loose. He immediately went over to the cage and clung to the bars, so I opened the door of the cage to see what he would do, and to my astonishment he went in and fed the young ones. I left him to them, and he brought them up without any help from me.

When they were fully grown I hung their cage outside and used to let them loose every day, always keeping the older bird in a cage to call them back now and then. I did this all the summer and through the winter, and not until the next spring did I lose any of them. In the spring two of them went away, and I discontinued the outdoor liberty, but the other two still remain in my possession, and fly about the room perfectly contented, and go in and out of their cage as they wish.

Brighter Days for the Garston and District B.B.A.

SIR,—Now that we have brought our year, 1915, to a close, I wish to thank you for the help you have given me in publishing the various reports I have sent, which has helped me materially in again building up the Society. I took up the position of secretary in July this year. We had £1 10s. in the bank, with outstanding debts amounting to £2 12s. 6d. Well, I started with a good heart, and meant to try and save the Society from going down into obscurity. I wrote you various reports of rambles, meetings, etc. I worked among patrons, and promoted a first draw, which, under present circumstances, was a huge success, bringing in £8. I boomed our show locally, with the result that we had an increase of 101 birds over last year, and birds from 18 members (our Society consists of only 22, so I think this very good). I spent £3 on special prizes to encourage the members, and now, with the Club clear of all debt, I have a balance to carry forward to next year of £7 3s. 9d., and things are looking brighter every day, as we made four new members this week. Of course, this success could not have taken place without the hearty co-operation of the members, who have done all they could to help me. Also the reports of our work, having, through your valuable paper, reached our members not living in the vicinity, these have taken courage; I think what members like to see is their own society's reports in their weekly journal. Excuse me troubling you with this, but I thought that such good progress under the circumstances would be interesting to you. I hope that other societies will be in as happy a position at the close of 1915 as the Garston B.B.A.

Annual exhibition held in the Council Schools, Cross Lane, on Dec. 11. The room is one of the best in the North of England for a show, being large and lofty, possessing a splendid light and a proper heating apparatus. The entry of 354 was very good, considering the rough weather and the shortage of daylight at present. The quality of the exhibits was quite up to standard, as most of the noted winners were to be seen. The champion and novices were about equal as regards number of entries per class. The unflighted classes were the strongest, as usual, having an average of 13. The Norwich and the selling classes were rather stronger than at previous shows.

The society has in Mr. Fred Self, the President, a real good fancier, who took his share in the hard work. Mr. A. W. Hartley, the able secretary, had full charge of the show, and got through his duties in a proper businesslike manner. The show stewards were Messrs. Midgley and Self; the committee, Messrs. Ellis, Self, Shackleton, W. Firth, Hainsworth (Assist. Sec.), and Holroyd. Mr. A. Firth, the Sec. of the Good Intent Society, also gave assistance. The way in which the officials and workers got through their duties is deserving of the highest praise. The weather was very bad and therefore spoilt the gate. There were several birds claimed, which helped to improve matters. The prize money was paid out to all the winners who attended the show. The judge was Mr. H. W. Battye. The packing and sending away of the exhibits was got through without a hitch.

(20-Mile Radius.)

This show, promoted and run by the Sterling Seed Company, was held Dec. 3, 4, in the Neptune Hotel, Clayton Square, a nice room tastefully set out with palms, etc., for the purpose. Mr. Haddon, proprietor of the Sterling Seed Co., and his manager, Mr. Hunt, are to be heartily congratulated on this, their first venture, which was, without doubt, a great success, and a rare advertisement for the firm. Over 350 birds faced the two specialist judges, who had their work cut out in awarding the prizes, so keen was the quality of the exhibits. Yorks. were the pick of the bunch, the Liverpool and Chester winners being very much in evidence. The Sterling Seed Co. had a large stall, well decorated with their specialities. There was a remarkable number of lady visitors present, which gave a pleasing tone to the function. Mr. Hunt, show manager, may justly feel proud of himself; he used admirable tact in everything connected with the exhibits, and we are sure local exhibitors will support him in further ventures. He had provided a nice lot of serviceable specials, and a smart and attractive diploma for best birds in each variety. These were won in the Canary section by Messrs. Benson and Young, Abbott, Johnson, Challoner, Kew, Handley and Robinson (2), Roberts, Mrs. Powell, Browne, Dyson, Radley, Lowe, and Ball. The judges were Messrs. Cowgill and Houlton, who gave entire satisfaction.

The Border classes were quite a treat, both quantity and quality being well represented. Competition was very close and keen all through. Diploma for best yell. Border was won by L. Kavanagh; buff, Bratherton; yell. green, Ritchie; buff, Parsons.

Hybrids and British birds made a very fine display, and were quite equal to most big open shows this season. Competition here was of the best, and only really tip-top condition could get a look in. There is plenty of life in the locals for 20 miles around here if they are encouraged in similar manner to this. The promoters are to be congratulated on such a venture. They contemplate putting on several field-moulded British classes next season. The diploma for best British bird was won by a fine Nightingale splendidly shown by F. C. Minoprio, Esq., an enthusiastic British bird fancier.

YORKS. YELL. 1 and 3, Benson and Young, the noted cinn. mk., looking as well as ever, put down in winning form, 3 stronger, rare top end, charming feather for a "big un"; 2, H. Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

PORTH AND RHONDDA VALLEY.

First Open Show, Dec. 8, Porth Hotel, in a large room, nicely adapted for the purpose, though not quite so light as we would have wished. Considering the splendid classification, we thought the entry should have been better. Borders were decidedly disappointing, and if, another year, the classes are cut down, exhibitors have only themselves to blame. Other varieties, with a few exceptions, filled fairly well, and competition was fairly keen. The management was A1, and nearly, if not all birds despatched night of show, and we maintain that with willing hands this can nearly always be done; the committee (whose names we fail to find in schedule or catalogue, as also those of the stewards) selected the right man, Mr. J. H. Bevan, as secretary. For, though new to the work, he seemed to have a thorough grasp of his duties, being tactful, obliging, and full of work, and the same may be said of the show manager, Mr. Challenger and his stewards, whose capabilities we trust the society will avail themselves of for bigger events in the future. A splendid list of open specials which should have increased the entries, were unfortunately collected too late for schedule, but appeared in catalogue, and gave the judges quite a busy time. The birds were splendidly staged, and in such a way that all could be seen with no difficulty. The judges, Mr. T. L. Castree, Mountain-Ash, and Mr. E. J. Davies, Cardiff, took odd and even classes, and appeared to give general satisfaction.

JUDGING BOOK.

The advantage this book has over others is that it has 3 columns for awards, and is therefore a great help to, and a double check for judges, while there is always a slip free to be sent to the printers of the catalogue.

GATESHEAD.

Held Dec. 11. No hall being available to hold a show of large dimensions, it was decided that even a small show would do much at the present time to keep up the interest in the Cage Bird Society, so the use was obtained of the Rochester-st. Sunday School, a place well adapted for the purpose. The classification was cut according to the limited space for staging. In the result there were nearly 700 entries. Norwich were extra good, averaging twenty per class, there being no less than thirty in the unflg. buff. British birds came a good second, all the classes being well filled. Yorks. and Border entries in open classes were down in numbers, but the novice classes filled well. Owing to the trains being behind time many of the birds were late in arriving at the show, which delayed judging considerably, and caused the officials a rather anxious time, some classes being allowed to stand back for over two hours waiting for the late comers. One unfortunate incident occurred. A local fancier had taken his case of birds to the hall on Friday night, and left it at the back of the platform, where it remained, undiscovered, till the fancier arrived at the show after the judging was finished. The committee held an impromptu meeting, and very generously decided to give an additional prize to any of the birds which, in the opinion of the judge, would have won had they been judged in their respective classes, with the result that one of them was awarded an equal first prize.

Quite a crowd of fanciers visited the show, and at times it was almost impossible to get near some of the birds. Two birds which had many admirers were a Skylark and a Hedge Sparrow, both pure white, the former pink-eyed, the latter dark-eyed. Both birds were bred in the neighbourhood during the past season. Gateshead Society has always been fortunate in having a good Secretary, but for sheer hard work and absence of bluster their present Secretary (Billy Curry) would take some beating. Billy has engineered the largest and most successful shows ever held in the North of England. Gateshead has a strong Committee, including A. Holden (Chairman and Show Manager), C. G. Peterson (Vice-Chair), F. F. Hawkins, J. Mackenzie, R. Tindale, H. Welsbury, F. W. Laidlaw, J. Maddison, J. Davison, J. W. Lawson, J. Pierson, W. Mather, E. B. Hooper, J. Moor, J. McQuire, J. W. Reid, J. Liddle. I must not forget to mention the Rev. C. R. Appleton, who is quite an enthusiastic fancier of Mules and British birds, and who rendered valuable assistance in the capacity of steward. The judges were F. W. Laidlaw, Nor.; T. Almond, Crests; J. Stewart, Yorks.; A. Montgomery, Borders; J. Maddison, Mules, Brit. and Foreign.

HAMILTON.

Hamilton Red Cross Show, Dec. 11, was a magnificent success. The Town Hall was taxed to its utmost, and eight classes were shown in a very nice room adjoining the large hall. Birds were finely staged on the three-tier principal all round the four sides, with a tier up the centre. Quality was a leading feature, and many prominent winners were on view. The entry totalled well over 600. Borders were a capital lot, and were quite a show by themselves; the assistance of another judge had to be called in, and so keen was the competition, it was only a matter of condition that separated many of the winners. Scotch Fanciers had a very good classification, but we regret this section was poorly supported, only averaging three per class. In Norwich entries came up fairly well; type being prominent throughout, and many past winners adding to their laurels. Males and British came up strong, and again the services of another judge were called in, Mr. G. Marlin (Hamilton) obliging. Foreigners set out a grand finish to a successful show. Unfortunately several birds arrived too late for judging. Judging was finished in good time, and the Hon. President, Provost Moffat, declared the show open. He referred to the keen enthusiastic and true spirit in which the fanciers of the district had responded to such a good cause. Hamilton was in much need of aid at the present time, as the men from all around had responded well to their country's call. He wished the show the success it richly deserved. The management was comprised of a hard lot of working officials, and the patriotic spirit shown by them was appreciated by all. In the Sec., Mr. W. S. Wilson, they possess a man who well knows his business; he was ever ready to respond to the many calls made upon him, obliging and courteous to all. He was well supported by the following well-known fanciers: Pres., J. Braidwood; committee, Messrs. G. Marlin, A. Reid, H. Houston, T. Allan, T. Dick, J. Bisset, J. Glass, J. Naismith, J. Scobbie, and Joe Higgins. Among the nobility and gentry who supported the cause by giving donations were Provost Moffat, Lord Newlands, Duchess of Hamilton, T. W. Watson, Esq., Lady Watson, Rev. T. M. B. Patterson, Mrs. Diton, Sheriff Shennan, Rev. Dr. Thomson, Mrs. Colville, Wm. Meek, Esq., Mrs. Loudan, and many others. The Judges were: Scotch Fancy, Mr. D. Black (Govan); Bord., Mr. W. S. Clark (Irvine); and Mr. A. Reid (Hamilton); Nor., Mr. R. Martin (Kirkcaldy); Brit., Mr. Clark (Larkhall); and Mr. G. Marlin (Hamilton), and their awards, on the whole, met with satisfaction.

The Scotch and Border Fanciers.

The Scotch Fanciers were not numerous, but what they lacked in quantity was made up for in quality. Unfortunately the weather was bad, snow and sleet falling all day, and although the Town Hall is well lighted, artificial light had to be used part of the day. Artificial light is not of the best, especially when colour is being judged. The had light no doubt accounted for the criticism heard on some of the awards in the Border Fancy section. In this and the British section the entries were extra heavy and additional judges had to be called in, Mr. Geo. Marlin taking some of the British, and Mr. A. Reid some of the Border classes.

KETERING.

Kettering C.B.S. held its annual show in the Victoria Hall, Dec. 11. The entry scarcely reached 200 birds, a poor response considering full prize money was guaranteed, and the expense will fall heavily on a committee of hard-working fanciers. Everything was in apple-pie order, and cards up in good time. The show was well patronised by fanciers from a distance, and we were pleased to meet Tom Irons, looking as young as ever. W. Vardy judged.

Club Reports.

LONDON C.B.A.

Meeting, Dec. 7, at 2, York Street, St. James', Mr. Robson in the chair, and 35 members present. Resolved to hold a members' show on Feb. 4 and 5, in conjunction with the National British Bird and Mule Club, and Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League, at St. George's Hall, St. George's Circus, Westminster Bridge Road. Show manager, A. Silver, Esq.—A. Wallington, Assist. Sec.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH.

Meeting, Laidlaw's Rooms, Leonard Street, Dec. 6, Mr. D. Brown, Pres., in the chair. Balance-sheet for year was read by Treas., and showed a balance on the right side. The Auditors, Messrs. D. Brown and A. Horrie, reported all books, vouchers, and receipts correct, and these were approved. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to chair.—J. L. Smith, Sec.

GLASGOW (Queen's Park) C.B.S.

Members please note that we have removed from our old headquarters in the Mario Stuart Halls to more central and superior accommodation in the V.M.C.A. Rooms, Eglinton Toll. We are holding our first meeting in Room No. 1, Dec. 22, at 8, and trust that members will show their appreciation of this welcome change and turn out strong to the meeting.—A. K. Hunter, Sec.

BACUP ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Dec. 7, headquarters, Park Hotel, Bacup, Mr. Geo. Wuntling presiding over a rather sparse attendance. The meeting being the end of the financial year, the secretary produced the balance-sheet of shows, etc., showing a profit of £2 8s. 2d. on year's working, which was considered very satisfactory and unanimously adopted. Decided to hold a members' show, Jan. 22. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.—Geo. Johnson, Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting, headquarters, Marlboro' Hotel, Dec. 8, E. T. Willmott chair, before a good attendance, the chief business of the evening being the presentation of awards for the young stock show, and final arrangements for the members' annual show on New Year's Day. Judge, J. H. Roe, Esq. Birds to be staged by 2.30. Entries close Dec. 29. Owing to the early closing the washing exhibition was put off until Dec. 15, at 8, when the whole evening will be devoted to same. Mr. G. Raby is giving the exhibition.—G. W. Bayliss, Sec.

FIFE C.B.L.

Meeting, Bay Horse Tavern, Lochgelly, Dec. 11, Mr. Grewar presided over a good turn-out. It was suggested by Mr. Grewar that the Fife C.B.L. step in and try to avoid clashing of show dates in Fife. Secretary was instructed to write all Cage Bird societies in Fife outside of the League and ask them to send a delegate to next meeting in Cowdenbeath, January 22. After business was over Mr. Grewar gave a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead, which was enjoyed very much by all present. A vote of thanks to Mr. Grewar ended the meeting. To all members the sec. extends the compliments of the season.—J. Sneddon, Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Meeting, Dec. 4, Victoria Hotel, Charterhouse Street, E.C. Mr. Harrison presided over a fair number of members. The society granted a special prize to Mrs. Harrison, the winner of the autumn essay competition for lady members. Mr. Shakespeare was proposed as a member. Twenty birds staged for the judging competition—10 Nor., 10 Yorks. Members in the competition were Messrs. Harrison, Cullen, Dyer, H. Bell, M. A. Ball, Durham, Ayris, Gilbert, and Mr. Mortlock, the latter up for a few days' leave. Mr. H. Bell took 1st prize with 21 points; Durham 2nd, 14; and Mr. Mortlock 3rd, 11. A very hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Shakespeare for acting as final judge and giving a few words on the birds staged. Vote of thanks to chair brought a pleasant evening to a close.—W. Gilbert, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Annual meeting, headquarters, Rose and Crown Hotel, Chairman, Mr. T. Down, presiding. The attendance was large and enthusiastic. It was satisfactory to find so many members present, as so many are employed practically night and day. Final arrangements were made for members' show, Dec. 11, and this has proved a record in both numbers and quality. Mr. T. Down was unanimously re-elected chairman; Mr. J. A. T. Woodall, vice-chair, Press Correspondent, and Advertising Manager; Mr. E. C. Job, Hon. Sec.; Mr. R. Calton, Assist. Sec.; Dr. Craig, Treas., was also re-elected. The committee were re-elected with the exception of W. Moor and W. Baxby, Mr. Farrow and Mr. Kuypers taking their places. Owing to the early closing the meeting then terminated, leaving the committee to go into a few details to submit to the January meeting.—John A. T. Woodall, Press Correspondent.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting, Dec. 2, Mr. Jones chair. Officials for 1916: Pres., Mr. Jones; Vice-Pres., Messrs. T. Hemmings, W. Bingham; Treas., W. Oxley; Sec., A. Hedson; Committee, W. H. Champion, J. G. Cowley, J. Curley, G. Drabble, L. Falding, W. T. Furness, D. Pickering, A. W. Sparkes, T. Tow, P. Walsh, J. Woolhouse, L. Woolhouse. Show dates fixed and local sales notified. Decided to procure special for the shows to be inserted in the syllabus. Many were promised and more will be welcomed. Result of final table show:—Members' Nor. Yell.: 1, 3, vhc, J. and L. Woolhouse; 2, 4, he, Hemming; Buff.: 1, 4, he, Woolhouse; 2, 3, vhc, Hemming. Nov. Yorks. Yell.: 1, he, c, Bagshaw; 2, 3, 4, vhc, Fretwell; Buff.: 1, Williams; 2, 3, 4, Bagshaw; vhc, he, c, Fretwell. Nov. Nor.: Mr. Gears secured all the cards in a class of 13—a meritorious performance. Special winners:—Members' Yorks: D. Pickering; Nov.: A. Bagshaw; Members' Nor.: Messrs. Woolhouse; Nov.: T. Gears. Next meeting, Jan. 6, washing competition; 2s. special for novices. Let us have a good start for the New Year.—E. Sisson, Assist. Sec.

VAN OPPEN & CO., LTD.

CLAPHAM C.B.A.

Fairly well attended meeting, Dec. 7, but the only business was the choosing of the medals won this year, and it was decided to have the same as last year. Next meeting will begin at 7.30 p.m. instead of 8, it being the annual general meeting, and there will be a volume of business to transact.—A. R. Coe.

PLUMSTEAD AND WOOLWICH.

Annual general meeting, Dec. 9, Trinity School, Beresford-st., Woolwich; Mr. Newham, chair. Decided to allow all officers to retain office for 1916. Show report accepted, showing a profit. Decided to hold pair show in February and Finch and Muling pairs in March. Mr. Alford was admitted a member. This being the last report for 1915, the Sec. extends the compliments of the season to all members.—Geo. H. Maclean, Hon. Sec.

WALLSEND MID-TYNE C.B.A.

Annual Meeting, Station Hotel, Dec. 8, Mr. G. Couchman presided over a poor attendance many important items were gone through, also election of officers for the coming year; one important position was left over till next meeting. Balance-sheet was read for the year, and after paying prizes and all expenses, we have a balance of £6 15s. 6d. We hope members will turn up at next meeting for important business, altering of rules, etc.; new members elected, Mr. Lucas (Walker), Mr. Clemenston, Byker.—Geo. Greenwell, Sec.

EDINBURGH O.S.

Meeting, Dec. 4, Mr. Allan presiding; auditors gave report of audit, which was correct in every detail, after general business. Mr. Allan called for nominations for president, as he intended to retire after six years in the chair. Mr. John Dalgleish was asked to fill the office as president, and to this he agreed, hoping to have the loyal support of members in making a large increase in the membership. Mr. Allan was thanked for the great service he had rendered to the E.O.S. for the past six years. Fanciers join this old and sound O.S.—A. Weston, Sec.

WALTON, EVERTON AND DIST.

General meeting held Dec. 8, at headquarters, Kilshaw Street, many members present, and keen discussion over business in hand. Balance-sheet for 1915, showing a good balance in favour, accepted and passed. Officials for 1916 as follows: Pres., Rt. Hon. F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P.; Vice-Pres., Rev. A. P. S. Pink, T. Handley, Esq., C. Robinson, Esq., E. Bunner, Esq.; Chair, Mr. Holmes; Vice-Chair, Mr. Smith; Auditors, Messrs. Wilkins and Jordan; Treas., Mr. J. W. Metcalf; Committee, Messrs. Bratherton, Evans, T. Handley, J. W. Handley, Hammond, Quattrough, Rowlands, and Roberts. Schedule for show, Jan. 19, compiled. Amateur section abolished. British section open to the district. Judge nominated J. Thornton, Esq., Liscard.—A. G. Hunt, Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.C.

Annual meeting held Dec. 9, Mr. Havenhand presiding. The retiring Pres., Mr. L. Havenhand; Vice-Pres., Messrs. J. Hiberson and F. W. Hollingsworth; Treas., Mrs. Justice; and Sec., E. Johnson, were all unanimously re-elected. Messrs. W. Blunt, M. Darlow, W. Grainger, J. Hartley, T. Hammond, J. W. Merrills, F. Bearder, and E. Holling, were elected on the committee. Messrs. T. Hammond and J. W. Merrills auditors. Cup rules were altered so that the three highest awards count in each section instead of starring as previously. Other rules as last year. The society has never been so strong, either numerically or financially, and I urge fanciers in the district to join our ranks, and let us take another step forward in 1916.—E. Johnson, Sec.

LEEDS ROLLER C.C.

Meeting Dec. 4, Lockhart's, 55, Briggate, Mr. T. W. Walton chair. Sec. gave a rough statement in respect to Annual Show, Nov. 12, 13. Everybody agreed that it was the best effort yet made by the Leeds Club and exhibitors were more than satisfied with the prizes given. We are a few pounds on the wrong side, but it was agreed that it is impossible to run a show like this and make money. After business members settled down to a long argument in respect to the ring question as it at present stands in the Fancy, and it was unanimously agreed that it will be better if only one lot of rings be issued throughout the country; all clubs to be affiliated to each other, and each club to be able to send a representative to a meeting once a year to draw up rules, judging standard, etc. In this way it was felt that every club would have a say in the matter of management, and every breeder would be in touch with any alteration of song points, etc. A copy of the minute has been, or will be sent to all Roller Clubs in the kingdom.—H. Best,

LEEDS C.B.S.

Meeting Dec. 11, Mr. A. E. Parker was elected a member. Decided to hold tea and concert at our prize distribution as last year. Officers nominated for 1916: Pres. Mr. W. Hall; vice-pres., Messrs. W. Greenwood and E. Hattersley; chair, Mr. Mennard; Mr. Norton, treas., Mr. A. G. Rhodes, Assist. Sec.; Mr. Middleton, sec.; Messrs. G. Yelland and H. Simms, auditors. Table Show of hens, judge Mr. C. E. Hall, his awards being well received. There was a very poor turn up for such an important meeting; this show was the last of the series to count for table show specials. Yorks. Hen (16): 1, 3, vhc, Featherstone; 2, 4, Norton; he, c, Yelland. Nor. (19): 1, vhc, he, Chambers; 2, Fryer; 3, Livingstone; 4, Lamb; c, Johnson. Brit. Hen (9): 1, he, c, Middleton; 2, 3, vhc, Hunt; 4, Owen. The draw for table shows to count for specials resulted in Oct. and Dec. shows to count, the winners being Yorks.: 1, Norton, 18 pts.; 2, Featherstone, 15; Nor.: 1, Fryer, 22; 2, Livingstone, 18. Brit.: 1, Hunt, 30; 2, Middleton, 29.—E. Norton, Hon. Sec.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Meeting Dec. 9, Mr. Ridal chair. Owing to the bad weather only a few turned up. Officials for 1916: Mr. Ridal, President; Vice-Chair, J. Woolhouse and A. W. Sparkes; Treas., L. Falding; Committee: Biggin, Drabble, Goodison, Bagshaw, Fretwell, L. Woolhouse; Sec., C. Tomlinson; Assist. Sec., E. Sisson. Decided that in case of being only one competitor in a section for the cup, a win should not count, but the holder be entitled to retain the cup for another year if desired. Table show result: Yell. Yorks.: 1, he, Fretwell; 2, 3, 4, c, Bagshaw; vhc, Parsons. Buff.: 1, 3, 4, Bagshaw; 2, Parsons; vhc, Williams; he, c, Fretwell. Mkd.: 1, 2, 3, Fretwell; 4, Williams; vhc, Bagshaw. Nor.: Mr. Gears gained all the cards. Messrs. Bagshaw and Fretwell tied on points for the rose bowl. Each selected a team of birds, which were re-judged by the President, Mr. Fretwell being the winner. Messrs. D. Pickering and Matthews, the donors of the rose bowl, were accorded a hearty vote of thanks.—C. Tomlinson, Sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Meeting for Red Cross show, 7th and 8th Jan., Drill Hall, Dec. 6, Classification fixed: Bord, 18 classes (1 Sell.), Nor. 17 (1 Sell.), Yorks. 11 (1 Sell.), Mule and Hyb. 4 (1 Sell.), Brit. and For. 22 (1 Sell.). Judges: Bord, Mr. G. Hyalop, Stirling; Nor., Mr. Wm. Bishop, Stirling; Yorks., Mr. R. Hoggie, Glasgow; Mule, Brit., and For., Mr. J. Livingstone, Bathgate.—Allan Thomson, Sec. and Treas.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Meeting, Dec. 7, Mr. Gibbins presiding over a good attendance. Several minor items were dealt with. Judges for 1916 Open Show were elected: Mr. H. W. Battye, Canaries; Mr. H. J. Chick, British. Decided to ask Mr. C. H. Walton to judge next Table Show. Table Show was held, Mr. Ino. Allen judged. Nor. Var.: Yell. Hen: 1, Roberts; 2, Jolley; 3, vhc, Moorea; Buff.: 1, Jolley; 2, Day and Sturges; 3, Roberts; vhc, Moorea. Green: 1, Moorea; 2, 3, Day and Sturges. Nov. Var. Yell. Hen: 1, Pearson; 2, Brooks; 3, Lenton. Buff.: 1, Pearson; 3, Hughes; 3, Knight; vhc, Brooks. Green: 1, West; 2, Brooks; 3, Knight; vhc, Goreham. Buff.: 1, 2, Kibby; 2, vhc, he, Deakin; 3, Brooks.—A. Freeston, Sec.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Meeting, Headquarters, Dec. 6, Mr. Bartlett chair, and a good muster for the distribution of prizes won at the Annual Show. Winners of challenge cups were Mr. G. A. Parker, champ, and Wilson cups; Mr. A. W. Farmer, amat. and Yorks.; Mr. A. Newton, nov.; Mr. G. Oliver, Brit. cup, and Mr. Franz, Crest. These were presented with a few appropriate words by our president, Mr. S. C. Rhodes. Our secretary, Mr. Collinge, gave a preliminary report on the financial aspect of the annual show, which, to the great satisfaction of all, showed a good balance on the right side. The remainder of the evening was taken up by a series of questions and answers, and many knotty points were raised for discussion. Vote of thanks to chair brought a pleasant evening to a close.—A. W. Farmer.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnet contest, Dec. 11; 40 birds entered: 1, Minger; 2, Watkiss; 3, Nelson. Dec. 12, 27 birds: 1, Watkiss; 2, Collinson; 3, Worral. Remember our open sing, Dec. 27. All Linnet fanciers are invited.—W. Dobson, Hon. Sec.

ROTHESFRAT.

Linnet contest and sing held Woodman Inn, Horsell, Dec. 11; 34 birds competed for 3min. time singing: 1, Scottson; 2, Pugh; 3, Ripper. Open sing, Dec. 12; 41 competed for 3min. time singing: 1, Pugh; 2, Morley; 3, Beard; 4, shared Ripper and Foster. We have a splendid club just now. Now you intending members, why not join now? There are some big times coming. Hurry up or you may be too late.—S. Pugh, Hon. Sec.

BARNESLEY.

Members' sing, Dec. 12, for 4min. time sing; 18 birds entered for five prizes: 1, Jones, 3min. 6sec.; 2, Bruny, 2.42; 3, Davis, 2.4; 4, Thowker, 2.21; 5, Norman, 2.7. We have a very big entrance just now and a membership of 36, so they have not all been called to fight for their country. We made another seven members this week, and yet there is room for a few more; so hurry up for special prizes.—Hardman, Sec.

KIPPAX.

First sing, new headquarters, White Swan Hotel, Dec. 11, 25 birds entered for 3min. time singing: 1, Collinson; 2, Potter; 3, Wallis. Timekeepers, J. Wallis and J. Cooper; tappers, O. Potter and W. Perkin. A good company was present, and they were delighted with the contest, especially with the singing of O. Potter's bird, which will make a name for him before the season closes.

General meeting, Dec. 9. Officials elected for 1916: Pres., A. Cooper; Treas., J. Wallis; Sec., R. Plows; Auditor, O. Potter. The result of the season's contests was satisfactory, with a balance on the right side. Decided to have an open contest at an early date, which will be advertised in CAGE BIRDS, so look out for open contest and give us your support. We are most fortunate, as our new host is a fancier, and we shall be able to prove to him that Linnet contesting is a nice hobby. His favourite birds are Canaries. Trusting for a successful season for 1916. Five of our members are with His Majesty's forces in France, and another has joined under Lord Derby's Scheme. We expect our membership increasing this year, as several have already promised to join.—R. Plows, Sec.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for sixpence must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

W. B. and R. B.—Replied to by post.
HOW TO ARRANGE (T. F.).—You give no idea at all as to what accommodation in the way of cages or aviaries you have available, so I cannot, in the absence of this information, give you what might be the best way of keeping your birds through the winter in your own particular case. The two cock Rollers should be caged singly in separate cages, for singing. The remaining seven cock Canaries may be kept in two groups, one of four and one of three, in two flight cages. The nine hen Canaries, and, possibly, the hen Bullfinch, may also be placed in two groups of five each, and kept in two large flight cages. But some hen Bullies are, I have found, bullies by nature, and if yours is one of those it will be necessary to cage her alone, or with the cock Bullfinches, in case you cage the latter in a flight both together. An alternative to caging the hen Canaries in this way, providing you have plenty of cages, is to keep them in groups of three each in small flights, or double breeding cages, with the partitions removed. The two cock Bullfinches you could either keep together in a flight cage, either with or without the hen, or cage each separately, in order to encourage singing.

TO TREAT ROLLER (W. P. B.).—(1) Try to forget the first portion of the name you give your bird. The simple term Roller is quite good enough.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Batty's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Care Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

and most descriptive, and, henceforth, we must ensure that all these little pets are British made and British goods throughout. In addition to the staple seed diet you are giving supply, every second day for a fortnight, a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and then sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana or a little of some green salad, provided you can get the latter quite free from frost. In the drinking water add, every second day for the same length of time, ten drops of lemon juice and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. This should suffice to enable the bird to "find its voice," if nothing else is wrong with it. (2) A box type of cage—that is, one with the top, bottom, back, and ends of wood, and only the front of wire—is much the best for the bird. If you have the bird in a cage of this type, keep it in a bright and sunny position, but not in a window, and do not by any means exchange it in favour of an all-wire cage. (3) A limited quantity of sugar as an occasional treat is not really harmful, but it should not be overdone. The best way to indulge the bird with this luxury is to stick a piece of lump sugar in the wires for a week or two now and again, and let the bird nibble at it when it likes. This helps to keep the tip of the beak from becoming overgrown.

WILL THEY PINE (Miss A. M.).—Your query leaves very much to be assumed. For instance, you do not even say whether the birds are Canaries, and I can only assume so from your reference to one as a plain yellow. Judging from your remarks, I can only imagine that you placed the birds together with the idea of commencing to breed with them, and, in that case, even if the birds are a true pair, of opposite sexes, it is only what is to be expected that they would not get on well in this direction. The present is not the natural breeding time for small birds, and it would be only quite abnormal examples that attempted it now. Your best course is to separate the birds until the end of next March or beginning of April, when the natural breeding season will be commencing, and you may then put the birds together with some chance of success. There is not the least reason to fear that they will pine by being kept in separate cages. At the same time, you cannot do better than get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager will send you post free for 7d., and study its pages during the interval between now and next March.

MOPY CANARY (Miss F. W.).—The only rational way of getting the bird on to song again is to remove the apparent bronchial trouble. In addition to the staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape, give, every second day, half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed on it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and, on the alternate days, give first a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and broken groats, and next a morsel of banana or a little green salad, if you can get the latter in good condition. Stop the linseed altogether, and limit the diet solely to the above. In the water add, every second day for a week, six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead five drops each of oxymel of squills, tincture of lobelia, ipecacuanha vine, and sweet spirit of nitre every second day for a fortnight. See that the bird is kept in a fairly comfortable and equable place, and quite free from exposure to direct cold draughts. It may help to bring him out in song sooner if kept within hearing of another free singer, but it is not likely to do much in the singing line until its condition of health is improved.

ROLLER QUERIES (Roller Canary).—(1) The staple diet should consist of a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape, by measure. Summer rape is distinguished from winter rape by being smaller in the grain, of a mild nutty flavour when a little is chewed in the mouth, in contrast to the somewhat acid and hot taste of winter rape; and whilst the latter is blackish in colour, summer rape is of a reddish-brown colour. In addition to the staple diet give, twice a week, a small teaspoonful of the seed mixture advised to "Miss F. W." in this issue; on two other days give a morsel of banana or sweet apple, and on each remaining day, as long as you can get it quite free from frost, give a morsel of watercress or some similar green salad. This will be all that is really essential to keep the bird in good health and song, provided you take due care to see that it is kept in a suitable place, free from direct cold draughts or extreme and rapid fluctuations of temperature, or heated fumes of burning lights in the evenings. For fuller details of treatment you might get our Manager to send you No. 10 Nutshell booklet on "The Roller," post free, 2d., or House's "Canary Manual," post free, 1s. 2d. (2) If you give half a teaspoonful of each of the seeds you mention, it is certainly too much to give of those seeds at one time. If you mix any quantity of the seeds named above in the proportions given and keep by you, it will only be necessary to give one small teaspoonful of the mixture on the days named. (3) As regards this query, there can be no real comparison between the song of the Roller and the Nightingale, because they are of totally different types. Judging each bird by its own standard of type, I should certainly say that the Roller could equal the Nightingale in song, but at the same time the song you heard would be totally different. A comparison of the songs of the Roller and the Song Thrush would be much on a par with one relating to the nightingale.

AN OLD FRIEND (M. H. P.).—Full details for dealing with red mites were given a few weeks ago. It is the cage, not the bird, that needs treatment for this trouble. The following method, though rather drastic, is one of the very best. Remove the bird to a temporary cage for a few days, then thoroughly cleanse the infested cage, probing any cracks, if necessary, with a pin to cleanse all debris from them, and at once burn the result. Then paint all over the cage, inside and outside, with a solution of camphor in methylated spirit—an ounce of the former to half a pint of spirit—using a small paint brush to work it well into all the joints and crevices. Do it thoroughly, and leave no spot untouched, and also treat the seed box in the same way. The perches would be better burned, and replaced by new ones, and the drinking vessels should be boiled for a few minutes. Do not overlook the nail or hook on which the cage was hung, paint the nail liberally with the liquid, and if the wall is papered and the paper is not in perfect condition it would be best to rub it off, saturate the place with the liquid and put on a new piece before the cage is replaced. Repeat the above treatment of the cage, etc., three times, at least, with an interval of one clear day between each dressing. After this re-paint or distemper the inside, and re-stain and varnish the outside. The latter will be necessary, as the liquid will destroy the varnish that was on. When the cage is quite dry after this operation you may return the bird, and for the next few weeks touch the ends of the perches and joints of door with the above liquid twice a week.

VARIOUS (Dudar).—(1) You omit any reference which would enable me to identify your previous reply. But if I am right in thinking it was a case of abnormal feather growth, you should examine the bird to see if the ligature has been got rid of, and if so, re-establish it, or it may not have been put on sufficiently tight. If properly done it is very rare that this treatment will fail, and you could still allow the bird the liberty of the flight cage, provided the other inmates did not worry her. (2) The outlook for the bird with no feathers on its neck now is not very hopeful. Try the following treatment for a few weeks. In addition to the staple seed diet give every third day for a month a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and then sprinkled with soft sugar. On the intervening days give first a morsel of banana or green salad, and add to the drinking water ten drops of lemon juice and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, and next half-a-teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts niger, white millet, teazle, linseed and broken groats. Slightly moisten the bare skin twice during the first fortnight with sulphur ointment, but do not soil the surrounding plumage. As you seem to have a fair amount of stock for a beginner, I would advise you to reject this bird for breeding. (3) It is possible that the cock got his leg fractured in the accident. The best thing you can do for him now is to leave a bad job alone, lest you should make it worse. Put food and water in the cage, and arrange the perches so that it does not have to make any particular effort to get about them. Then keep a light cover over the cage in order to keep it as quiet as possible, and leave it so until it begins to move about again of its own free will. Left thus, Nature will make a far better job of the cure than any interference of yours on its behalf. I wish you success. Get some of our handbooks—they will help you to avoid mistakes.

BRITISH BIRDS,
MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

HYBRID QUESTIONS (Nor West).—I quite approve of your method of working your Hybrid pairs; there is nothing better than plenty of exercise (especially for the hens) during the winter months. Now as regards your pairing up, you will not be able to run a Greenfinch cock with the two hens; he would probably pair properly with the one, and maltreat the other when put with it. I would advise you to pair him with the Goldfinch hen, and the cock Canary with the Bullfinch hen; if you were successful with the latter pair, the young would be quite valuable. Anyway, I think your chances of success would be greater pairing this way than the way you suggest. (2) Pairing cock Canaries to British hens does not increase your chances of breeding light offspring; the majority come dark, as they do in the usual way of pairing.

BREEDING LINNET MULES (Bird Fancier).—You omitted to send your name and address, which is contrary to our rules. Will you kindly send them to us on a post card? Your young Linnet will be quite suitable for Mule breeding next season, and I would advise you to let him fly with the hen Canaries occasionally during the winter month. If this is not done the hens are sometimes very shy of their intended partner when paired up for breeding. Now as regards the hens, the best birds are undoubtedly bred from big yellow hens, and if you are desirous of producing good class dark Mules you had better use a yellow variegated bird, or you could try your luck with one of the clears; you may get a light one, one never knows, and if so, it would be valuable. On the other hand there is always the possibility of producing a good dark bird from this pairing with a light feather or two in it which would spoil it for exhibition; but whatever hen you use, the majority of the young ones come dark. If in doubt, use the largest and best shaped bird.

CATCHING BULLFINCHES (Fancier).—You also have omitted to send your name and address, which kindly post on to us. We have from time to time published articles upon bird-catching, which I am afraid you have missed. If you have hack numbers I would advise you to look them up. They may be caught in the following manner: If you know where these birds can be found, or, say, a certain spot they frequent, place a trap-cage with another Bullfinch in the bottom compartment; or they can be taken with lined twigs, and are frequently captured with other birds in the clap-nets. As regards the management of freshly caught Goldfinches and Linnets, they should be placed in a quiet room with a fairly good light shining into the cage. For the first few days give them their water inside and supply the Goldfinches with the following seeds: A pot of cracked hemp fresh daily, teazle, niger, maw, canary and cracked sunflower. Soak a little rape and teazle, do not overdo the latter, give it more as a pick-me-up than as general food. Also supply them with wild seeds, gradually getting them on to the usual dry foods. After they have been caged a week give an aperient of salts, enough to cover a shilling, in an ordinary drinker. It is as well to keep the Goldfinches in separate cages if you can arrange it, as they are inclined to be quarrelsome. As regards the Linnets they can be treated in much the same manner, but be more sparing in the use of hemp and sunflower. They enjoy a little rape, radish and canary that has commenced to germinate. Put a little in a warm corner and keep damp for a few days, when it will soon start sprouting.

VENTILATING BIRD ROOM (John Knight).—Your outside building should do famously for British birds, but it is necessary to have it properly ventilated. You say you have our book on Aviaries. The system of ventilation recommended can be very well applied to your building; you could not have the outlet as shown in the span roof, but you could have one in the top corner farthest from the door. This would ventilate the whole of the building; the inlet could be between the door and the window. To do this, remove one of the lining boards and make a shaft, with the outside opening near the ground, and the inside opening one foot from the roof. Make all these openings too large and have sliding shutters so that you can partially close them when necessary. Your plan of cages would do nicely, although I would advise you to make the cupboard to fit between the windows; it would then be a cupboard and table combined. This would allow you more cage room on the back wall; if your partition shuts off too much light part of it could be glazed. As regards the painting of the outside of the building I would advise you to treat it with common creosote. It should be made hot and put on with an ordinary paint brush; two coats would preserve the wood for several years. Paint the inside a very light tone of either blue, green or grey. The interior of the cages should be a rather bright green.

HYBRID BREEDING (Fairfield).—From No. 1 pair you would get dark birds, and if the hen was of good size they should be exhibition specimens, although as a rule they fail a bit in colour. No. 2 pair I would advise the yellow green Norwich, providing she was not dark in tone with dark beak and legs. To get high-class birds she should be bright in tone, showing a decided yellowish tendency. No. 3 pair should be reversed, as the cock Bullie is not a reliable breeder, but there is no reason why you should not have a try for it if you have the birds. The cross has been reported this last season, but hundreds have tried to breed with the Bullie cock and failed.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY I. PAGE, F.Z.S.

PARROT (Watford).—I cannot advise you to leave the bird unattended for three days; at least, not within the limits of a Parrot cage. Surely there is some neighbour, or if you are in lodgings, your landlady, who would change the water and refill the seed tin daily; that would be all that would be required, as the cage would do without cleaning for three days. You could easily hang up a good sized apple in the cage, so as to leave it a supply of fruit. The only way I can suggest for you to leave it unattended is to have a good strong case, say 21 or 31 square, nail some good strong netting over the front and fasten securely some receptacle that the bird cannot upset, which will hold about a quart of water, and another receptacle similarly fixed which will hold about a quart of seed mixture. Hang up a large apple, put in a stout perch, also a chunk of wood, scatter sand over the case bottom, and throw in a handful of monkey nuts and some pieces of biscuit, and the bird should fare well enough. All this would cost some few shillings, but you would be properly equipped for any similar occasion. Nevertheless, I advise you asking some acquaintance to give it the necessary attention named above, or failing this, give your greengrocer or some local small tradesman you deal with a small gratuity to look after it for you—the one you get your seed mixture from should be a likely individual.

A RECENT PURCHASE (Irex).—The bird is a Resy-breasted Cockatoo, and you appear to have got hold of a good established bird, which, as it already talks a little, is likely to add to its vocabulary such sounds and words as it hears uttered around it. It is a hardy species and only needs protection from draught. As regards diet supply seed mixture regularly, any kind of ripe fruit it will take (apple and banana are good), nuts in variety (shelled and unshelled), dry boiled potato, raw carrot, crusts, pieces of biscuit and plain cake, not necessarily all at once, but so as to maintain a varied menu. Keep cuttlebone and Parrot grit continually in the cage, also a chunk of wood, for it to exercise its mandibles upon. Water must be supplied regularly. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. If you treat on above lines it should thrive and do well. All are not talkers, but they make "chummy," interesting, droll acrobatic pets, if given a roomy cage, and once they become thoroughly tame can be allowed to take exercise out of the cage—of course, with closed doors and windows.

AILING GREY PARROT (Mrs. Burnard).—The proper diet for a Grey Parrot is seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, biscuit, etc., but, if the bird cannot eat these, substitutes must be provided till strength returns, then it must be gradually brought back to the proper diet. Mix the following: One teaspoonful condensed milk, 10 drops cod liver oil emulsion, one drop laudanum, and two tablespoonfuls of boiling water; well stir together and supply to the bird when cool, in lieu of the drinking water. Continue to give the boiled maize; boil till soft, but the corn should be whole drain off all water and supply when cool. Also prepare several pieces of biscuit or stale bread, half a teaspoonful of chemical food, then as much boiling water as the biscuit or bread will absorb, and when cool supply to the bird. Also give a little honey and horax, either from the end of a small stick or by smearing it on anything the bird will eat, a piece of biscuit, plain cake, or anything similar. Keep seed in cage, and when you notice the bird to be eating same, write again at once, fully describing its symptoms and general condition. You must keep it warm, but not in a stuffy atmosphere. You say nothing as to the state of its bowels, but these must be kept moving freely, though not watery loose. If a laxative be necessary, then give either 3 drops tasteless castor oil, or half a teaspoonful of fluid magnesia; either can be given on the boiled maize, to be added after the water has been drained away, of course. All the soft foods, etc., named above must be prepared fresh daily; they are not to be treated as regular diet, but merely till its condition enables it to eat the ordinary dietary.

SEPARATING THE SEXES (A. F. J.).—While many do well with breeding Budgies, and get good results by keeping their birds together in the same aviary all the year round, of course, taking care to introduce new blood, and to eliminate weak, imperfect and exhausted birds as they crop up. I certainly consider the more natural way is to separate the sexes (in a state of nature very many species separate as soon as the breeding season is over, and choose fresh mates annually), say, at the beginning of November, and then, at the beginning of March pick out a given number of each sex, your finest and largest birds, and turn them into your breeding aviary, which should have been thoroughly cleansed and prepared for them in every way. My reply to L. Scott in our issue of 13th way. I referred not only to separating the sexes, but also to the question of keeping Budgies and Finches together. The latter is an unwise practice, and may end in disaster. There is a further reply to L. Scott in this issue, which should help you. Aviculture is never thoroughly learned, therefore its principles are continually undergoing modification.

RED-HEADED FINCH (E.P.M.).—The Red-headed Finch has been well called a glorified Cut-throat, and if you treat it similarly to the latter bird, as given in the book, all should be well. Yes, the Red-headed can be kept all the year round in an outdoor aviary, except in our more Northern counties. As regards breeding, in some aviaries it does really well, in fact is prolific, and in others there is no luck at all, even though the management and other conditions may be equal. It is an African species, and almost as large again as the Cut-throat. The male is tawny brown, lined and mottled with darker brown above and mottled with a number of creamy-white spots beneath; head entirely red. The female is greyer, has no red in her plumage and the white spots on underside of body are less distinct. If you treat them exactly as the Cut-throat, they should do well, and I hope the next season luck will come your way.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A 12-years' Reader.—We do not recollect the account of the Skylark at Birmingham which sang "Home, Sweet Home." It is quite possible we published a paragraph about it, but this would be sent by some correspondent, or maybe, "scissored" from a local paper. We remember printing an account of a Blackbird which a reader had taught to whistle tunes; this was quite true, beyond any question.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Is a splendid guide-book to perhaps the most interesting and profitable side of foreign bird-keeping. It tells you all you need know.

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE PRACTICAL AND COMPREHENSIVE WORK WHICH ALL HYBRID BREEDERS REQUIRE.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (or deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller, if a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1 of transaction, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will return them, or, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods, or if the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period.

5.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

6.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

7.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

8.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, we must not return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

9.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

10.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending them.

11.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

6.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of the depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, we must not return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until this amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Unendorsed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

I HAVE a magnificent cock Skylark, almost as large as a Thrush, grand songster, fit to show and win, 1/6; also another cock Skylark, grand songster, much smaller, been in my possession since a nestling, practically hand reared, 1/6, or 2/6 the two; approval willingly: Mrs. Harrington, Dalmency Cottage, Dunstable.

SOFTBILLS: the smaller species; full information upon their proper feeding and management in captivity, is given by H. J. Fulljames in "Nuthell No. 25," which also deals with hand-rearing, and describes the collection of ants' eggs, 21d. post free, from: CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents; see list on another page.)

THE Song Thrush and Blackbird.—Full directions how to keep these favourite songsters in the best possible condition; together with directions for hand-rearing the young and the selection of show birds, will be found in "Nuthell No. 4," 21d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nuthell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with insect varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 21d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

AVIARISTS! Aviadavats are very charming little birds, but they need care. The "Nutshell" booklet, "Aviadavats," contains full information on the management of these birds. You cannot do better than have a copy by you, and we shall be pleased to forward same upon receipt of 2d. Write: The Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14." from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published).

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange checked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20." 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

LEEDS ROLLER C.C.

Ninth annual contest and exhibition, Trinity Church Schools, Boar Lane, Leeds, Nov. 12th and 13th. The show opened on a dismal day as it is possible to imagine, which greatly affected the attendance. The hall that was chosen was the best that it is possible to get in Leeds, and without crowding there would be room for a thousand birds. The schedule was the best that the Leeds members have ever put up, and it merited a better entry, although this was not bad. All birds were judged in artificial light, and the judges took every care to see that all the birds got a proper chance and birds that did not sing must have been in a very backward condition. I am pleased to state that the Leeds members did well, and especially I congratulate Mr. Walton. On the Saturday the weather took a much better turn, and there was a good attendance of the public, fanciers coming from Grimsby, Bolton, Hull, Wigau, Wakefield, Manchester, and other towns in the West Riding.

FALKIRK.

Falkirk, Grangemouth, and Bannockburn C.B.S. annual show, Market Hall, Falkirk, Nov. 27. This was the only hall of any consequence that had not been commandeered by the military. It is large and spacious, a bit chilly in the morning, but as the show went on, and with the help of two large fires, by midday it was quite comfortable. Falkirk fanciers have long been known as an enthusiastic lot, and this year's committee is no less so than its predecessors. Why do not the fanciers hereabouts again combine, and let us see one of the best-arranged one-day shows that was ever held in Scotland? We remember the palmy days of Hughie Morland's management, when 38 Creted cocks and 40 Buff Plainhead cocks faced the judges, and three sets of winners could be got without trouble, and the Bains could hold their own amongst the elite of the Norwich Fanciers. Why not take a leaf out of the Aberdeen fanciers' book, sink all petty differences, and have one large combined society as before? The President, Mr. Smart, and the secretary, Mr. Rennie, backed by the following committee, J. Moreland, Vice-President; W. Robertson, Treasurer; Messrs. Hird, Jaffrey, Auld, Marshall, Condie, Sharp, Stevenson, McGregor, Robertson, and Godfrey Bros., had all in apple-pie order for the judges, who were Messrs. C. Campbell, J. McLeay, Multhead, and Jemas. These speedily got through their labours, and appeared to give every satisfaction. In Norwich, Mr. James Marshall's buff varieg. unfld. hen, the S.P.C. gold medal winner at Cowdenbeath, again asserted her superiority by annexing the Young Norwich Cup for her owner, a very popular win. In Crests, Mr. Sharp's grand young varieg. hen won the Crest Cup, and also the cup for the best young bird in hall, over Mr. Marshall's Norwich, Mr. Ritchie's Border, Mr. McGilvray's Mule, and Mr. Strathern's Scots Fancys—all winners of cups in their sections for 1915 birds. However, for best bird in hall, old or young, Mr. George Simpson's clear buff Scots Fancys hen got the verdict.

JUDGING BOOK.

The advantage this book has over others is that it has 3 columns for awards, and is therefore a great help to, and a double check for judges, while there is always a slip free to be sent to the printers of the catalogue.

SHETLESTON.

8th annual show, Dec. 11, in Hill Street Hall. An ideal place, having plenty of light from both sides, and abundance of room. The staging was well arranged round the sides and up the centre, a feature being that the cages were a nice height to look at without over-reaching one's self. The entries taken over all were about same as previous years. Crests were fair, Norwich fully well filled, and contained some very nice birds, but a great fault I observed was very bad heads in this section. Borders were fairly well filled, and contained some very nice birds. Scotch Fancys had two classes with one bird in each. Yorkshires both confined and open contained good entries, also some grand exhibits. British, Mules, etc., were fairly well filled, and contained some well-known exhibits. Gift class was the feature of the show, and contained 14 birds of fair merit. Cup for best young bird was won by Mr. A. Wallace, for best old bird by Mr. Hood; for best Border by Mr. Lunn; for best British by Mr. Taylor, with his well-known Great Grey Shrike. The judges were: Crests and Norwich, Mr. Chalmers; Borders and Yorkshire, Mr. Haggie; and British, etc., Mr. R. Taylor; Vice, P. Forrest and W. Lunn. Those and the Committee worked with a will. The Sec., Mr. Wood, had everything in A1 order. Classes cancelled, two Scotch Fancys, Young Birds.

A.V. CREST (6): 1, cup, etc., 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, Hood; 1, green Crest, shapely body, nice formed crest; 2, buff varieg., nice sized body, good crest, rather horny on side; 3, buff varieg., Crested, good skull and nicely lashed. YOUNG (2): 1, 2, Hood; 1, buff, good body, with nice formed dark crest, good formation and wealth of feather; 2, fowl green, nice shapely body, good crest, and nicely centred. NOR. OLD BIRDS, TKD. YELL. (6): 1, sp., Taylor, nice size, and thick set body, in grand order; 2, 3, 4, 5, Hawkie; 2, on the small side, nice col., could be closer in feather; 3, well tapered body, rather long in tail; 6, Williams. BUFF (9): 1, Davidson, nice thick set body, good head, but rather browny, and fowl in tail; 2, 3, 4, 5, Hawkie, nice size, grand wings and tail, fails a little in head; 3, Divens, well up in body, rather faulty wing carriage. HEN (10): 1, Divens, grand type and quality, good head and wings, rich in col.; 2, Williams, not so thick set, but grand cond. and col.; 3, 5, Hawkie, nice size, full of substance and qual., fails in head; 4, D. PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

The Provincial Roller Canary Club held their annual singing contest at the Old Boars Head Hotel, Manchester, on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3rd and 4th. Messrs. Wareing, Massey, Kilshaw and Lyons were the appointed judges, but owing to the writer not being well, Mr. Kilshaw acted as Secretary, and every praise must be given to him for the manner in which he took his part. The entries totalled up to 230, which is a record for the season, exactly one-half of the entries being made by non-members of the Club. The foggy weather accounted for the birds arriving late, over 100 birds coming on Friday morning, and this will account for the paucity of points given, in many cases the birds being cold, and some of them hoarse, while several others could not be induced to open. Mr. Lyons took Class 1, Mr. Massey Class 2, Mr. Wareing Classes 3, 4 and 5. We think 83 birds in Novice Class will establish a record number of birds for one class, and the judges must have been more than pleased when they got through them. The first prize winner in Class 1 turned out to be the cup winner owned by Mr. Massey. Mr. Frew, a Scotch fancier, won the first prize in novice class. Considering the bad weather on Saturday, the attendance was very good, well-known fanciers from Lancashire, Yorkshire and Cheshire being present. Most of the birds were taken away by the owners.

Twitterings.

Schedules for Larkhall Red Cross Show have been sent to all exhibitors at the principal shows this season. Anyone overlooked can obtain one from Mr. A. Thomson, the sec., 1, Crott Place, Larkhall, Lanarkshire.

If any member of the Amalgamated Cage
 Bird Societies in Liverpool, who has not yet received a schedule for the show, will apply to me, the application shall have prompt attention, writes Mr. T. R. Jones, 25, Emerald Street, Liverpool.

We find that in a small portion of our issue last week the calendar was accidentally omitted. If any reader who did not obtain copy of calendar last week will communicate with our publisher, we shall be pleased to send a calendar free of charge.

Our open show was a success, writes Mr.
 N. G. F. Zimmermann, hon. sec. York
 C.B.S.; all accounts were settled and prize-money paid next day, and most of the exhibitors wrote very nice letters thanking the committee for the manner in which their entries were attended to. We also wish to thank you and your reporter for the splendid report you gave in CAGE BIRDS of our show.

Prize lists for the Border show in Edinburgh have been sent to all known exhibitors, writes Mr. J. Lumsden, 13, George Square, Edinburgh, and I shall be obliged if anyone who has been missed will let me have a p.c., when prize list will be sent by return.
 I have been able to make arrangements to receive entries up till Dec. 28, instead of 25th, as previously intimated. Intending exhibitors should, however, enter early, and let the work be advanced as far as possible.

Please allow me to express my thanks to the many friends from Manchester who gave us a helping hand in connection with our late show, writes Mr. Wm. Middleton. To Mr.
 Tom Harrison especially our thanks are due;
 he worked and planned the comfort of the exhibits both on Thursday and Saturday also; to Mr. Oldham for the trouble he took in bringing, with his own horse and lorry, the staging kindly lent us by the Manchester and Northern Counties. Our own members and like niggers. Lastly to yourselves for report of the show.

With the object of instituting an Ornithological Bed in a Military Hospital, on FRIDAY & SATURDAY,

31st Dec. and 1st Jan.,

In CENTRAL HALLS, 25, BATH ST., GLASGOW.

22/- per class; 1/6 entry fee. 97 Classes.

POST YOUR ENTRIES TO-DAY.

Will be accepted till first post Tuesday. All Scottish Railways will accept live birds for transit, not withstanding the new regulations for parcels.
 R. HEGGIE, Stopps, near Glasgow, Hon. Sec.

By a printer's error the address of Mr. J.
 W. Steele, the writer of the letter "A Warning to Cage-makers and Bird Dealers," in our last issue was given as 80, Ordnance Lane, Salford. This should be Ordsall Lane.

The ticked buff cock, one of the birds depicted on our front page this week, has won for its owner, Mr. A. J. Clarke, of East Dulwich, 1st and spl., Clapham; 1st and spl., S.E. London; 3rd London and P.O.S.; 3rd, Reading; 1st and silver rose bowl, Dulwich and Peckham. This latter trophy has not been won by any other Yorkshire Canary since 1908.

Prize-money Paid.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries: Sale,
 City of Birmingham, Whitehaven, Gateshead.

Four Firsts, 4 Shows, 4 Years.

The 1st prize won by Mr. J. Nicholson, of Haltwhistle, in the Border Fancy variegated class at Gateshead show, terminated a unique little record. His uneven yellow cocks have now won firsts for four years in succession at each of the four leading shows in the north—Newcastle, Carlisle, Haltwhistle, and Gates-head.

Corrections in Show Reports.

In the report of Porth and Rhondda Valley show, spl. for best Goldfinch should read Cozens, not Escott and James, and 1, "no name," in Yorks yell., buff, and unlighted should be Everett in each case; at Watford, 3rd in the Bramblefinch class should be Chick (not Chandler, as given in catalogue); 1st in varieg. Bord. at Gateshead should be Nicholson, not Johnson; at Newark W.
 Liddett won cup for best bird, not F. Lid-gett, and the awards in the Mule class should read 1 Lees, the rest to Spray; at Liverpool, 1, sp., and diploma best Mule should read Phillips, not Ball.

The New Postal Regulations.

The attention of correspondents is directed to the fact that under the new postal regulations only one ounce can be sent for one penny. From one to two ounces the postage is two pence, and one halfpenny extra is charged for each additional two ounces. Reporters and correspondents who have to send long communications should please use very thin paper and be careful to prepay the postage in full, or we have to pay double the deficiency on delivery.

OUR PAINTING COM- PETITION.

Some readers have already sent in their efforts in the competition for the best painting of the front page of our last week's issue, but quite the majority of these consist of the lower portion only of the page, that is, the bird picture itself. We thought we had made it quite clear that the whole of the page, heading and all, should be coloured, but it appears necessary to point out that if only the bird picture itself is sent in such efforts will have no chance whatever of winning. The latest day for receiving the pictures is Friday, Jan. 7, so that those who have made the mistake of only painting a portion of the page will have time to rectify their mistake and send in a fresh attempt.

A Lingering Ring-Ouzel.

This species, which is supposed to take its flight to a warmer clime before the season's decay has set in, was seen on Nov. 16 at Piltanton Burn, Dindinnie, three miles from Stranraer, writes "A.S.J." in the "Glasgow Citizen." These birds are not numerous in this district, but it is surprising, in view of the wintry weather which has prevailed during the past few days, that a bird of this species should be seen so late in the season.
 One can only put it down to a straggler which apparently decided to remain a little longer in the district in which it was born and brought up. About a year ago a Ring Ouzel was seen near this spot, but then the weather was not so cold.

Rough on the Robin.

The contributor of the column, "Local Gossip" in the "Newcastle Chronicle," gives the following extract from a letter he has received about the Robin:—"More problematical still is how the Robin came to gain a reputation for being a benevolent and genial little fellow, always to be associated on Christmas cards with snow-clad churches and holly bushes. He is the most pugnacious of his kind, steals like a Jackdaw, and drives his young away at the approach of winter.
 He mistrusts his own kind, and that is why you seldom see two Robins together, while his friendliness with man in winter is based upon pure materialism, for he knows that where the bird is there is also something to eat. His one redeeming feature is that his cheery song brightens up the winter days.
 He is not so vocal as the Thrush, but he outstays him."

To Club Secretaries and Others.

With the view of bringing up-to-date our directory of Cage Bird Societies, which is so useful a feature of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, and in order to eliminate those societies which have ceased to exist, we should be obliged if the secretary of each active society throughout the country would send us on a postcard short particulars embodying—the name of the society, date of foundation, place, date and time of meetings, annual subscription, entry fee, if any, name and address of secretary.
 We append a specimen entry, and no other particulars are necessary:

Edinburgh C.B.S., founded 1911, meetings
 Cairn's Memorial Hall, Georgie Road, third
 Tues. in month, at 8; sub. 4s. 6d., ent. fee
 6d.; sec., J. C. Charlton, 33, Watson Crescent, Edinburgh.

The ANNUAL for 1916 is now in course of active preparation, and we should be obliged if secretaries will furnish at their earliest convenience the particulars desired.

OBITUARY.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. E.
 Thomas, sec., Cardiff C.B.S., that I have to inform you that Mr. Jim Pearce's mother has passed away. On behalf of the members of the Cardiff Society we extend our deepest sympathy to Mr. Pearce and family in their sad loss.

Sorry to inform you, writes Mr. John Rukin, hon. sec. Lancs. and Lizard F.A., that Mr. Moorbey, of Broadbottom, Cheshire, has suffered the loss of his mother. I am sure the members of the L. and L.F.A. will join me in sympathising with him in his sad bereavement.

MR. A. PUGH (Willesden).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. T. R.
 Jones, Assist.-Sec. Green C.A., that I announce the death of Mr. A. Pugh, of Wil-lesden, near Chester, at the early age of 28.
 He was a very promising fancier, and will be greatly missed by those who know him in the Fancy. He leaves a widow and child, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

By the kind permission of Mr. H. F. Witherby, Editor of the monthly magazine "British Birds," we are able to extract from an exhaustive article by Mr. Witherby, entitled: "THE MOULTS OF THE BRITISH PASSERES, WITH NOTES ON THE SEQUENCE OF THEIR PLUMAGES," the portions which refer to such British birds as are generally kept in cages or aviaries.

BRITISH BULLFINCH (Pyrrhula p. p. pilcata).

ADULTS.—Complete moult from August to October. No moult in spring and very little change by abrasion, except that the mantle becomes a purer grey in the male and greyer and less brown in the female. The marked difference in the sexes is well known.

JUVENILE.—Like the adult female but the crown brown instead of black, upper-parts brown, and under-parts more yellowish-brown than in the adult female. The rump and under tail-coverts are buffish, the innermost secondary is marked with brown instead of pinkish and the wing-coverts are browner. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted as in the Greenfinch and the birds then become like the adults.

COMMON CROSSBILL (Loxia c. curvirostra).

ADULTS.—Complete moult July to November. No moult in spring. Abrasion makes the male more brilliant but has little effect on the female. The adult male in a wild state* is always, so far as my investigations go, red, though it frequently has some golden or greenish-yellow feathers here and there on the upper- and under-parts. Dr. C. B. Ticehurst, however, states in a recent article, "On the Plumage of the Male Crossbill" (Ibis, 1915, pp. 662-9), that he has examined yellow and green-yellow adult males, but he states that this plumage in adults is of very rare occurrence. Presumably the yellow or green-yellow adult males examined were certainly wild birds, but Dr. Ticehurst does not state this. It is two years ago since I worked out the plumages of the Crossbill, and I have no recollection or note of having seen an adult male wild bird in yellow or greenish-yellow plumage, and I examined several hundred specimens, so that such birds must I think be so rare as to be quite abnormal. Very rarely Linnets and Redpolls in a wild state are to be found with the crimson replaced by yellow or yellowish-buff. There is great individual variation in the brilliancy of the adult male both in summer and winter. The female is yellowish-green, sometimes of a more golden hue and occasionally with a considerable number of feathers tipped with dull pink.

JUVENILE.—The upper-parts are dark brown, the whitish or buffish edgings to the feathers giving it a heavily streaked appearance; the under-parts are still more prominently streaked, as the whitish edgings to the feathers are broader. The male has a tinge of green on the upper-parts, especially on the mantle, and a few greenish-yellow feathers on the throat and breast, while the female has none of the latter and is browner on the upper-parts.

*As in Redpolls and Linnets, the red is replaced by yellow at the first moult in captivity.

MY PEKIN ROBINS.

SINCE then all has gone well, and though the parents were in the thick of the moult, they assiduously attended to their young; so much so that I feared I should lose the hen, as she gave to those precious children of hers the live food she needed to nourish herself. But all went well, and to-day (December 9) they form a happy family party in the aviary, and still associate together.

It only remains to say that the Pekins had access to seed, fruit, milk-sop and soft food, also live insects. So far as I was able to ascertain, the young were fed entirely on live food while in the nest, the old birds first killing the insect and then carrying it in their bills to their babies. Insects were very scarce while the young were being reared, and it was only by going to the aviary every two hours and serving out mealworms, gentles, and wasps' grubs, one at a time, that I managed to keep them going.

The young birds when they left the nest were grey, just tinged with olive on the top of the head, and had white patches round the eyes, on the throat and vent. The yellow outer margins of the primaries were also quite distinct while they were in the nest, the inner webs of the primaries were white. The bill was dark horn, edged with yellowish, and

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER. MALE.—The juvenile body-feathers and lesser wing-coverts are moulted from May to October, but not the tail- and wing-feathers, nor the primary-coverts, while most of the greater and median coverts are not moulted, and frequently a varying number of the juvenile body-feathers (especially on the breast and belly) are retained. After the moult there is much individual variation from a bird indistinguishable by the coloration of the body-feathers from a bright crimson adult male to greenish-gold, yellow, orange, and a mixture of all these colours. First winter birds may, however, always be distinguished by the greenish instead of pinkish outer edges of the wing- and tail-feathers and more clearly by the buffish-tips of the unmoulted juvenile wing-coverts. These distinctions usually disappear in summer when the feathers are much worn.

FEMALE.—Like the adult female except for the buff tips of the unmoulted juvenile wing-coverts.

After the second autumn moult, males and females become, so far as I can see, like adults.

CHAFFINCH (Fringilla c. caelebs).
ADULTS.—Complete moult commencing in July and sometimes in June. No regular moult in spring, but at that season feathers here and there on the body are often renewed. Abrasion has a considerable effect, especially in the male, the colours becoming purer and brighter owing to the wearing off of their buffish tips. The sexual difference is too well known to require mention. The under-parts of the male vary from a pearly-pink to a brownish-pink, but this is merely individual and not connected with age so far as I can discover.

JUVENILE.—Much like the adult female but browner on the upper-parts. The male has the mantle more chestnut-brown and the ear-coverts more buffish than the female and, as in the adults, the white on the wings of the male is purer.

FIRST WINTER.—The juvenile plumage is moulted from July to September except the wing-feathers, primary-coverts and tail-feathers. The birds then become like the adults.

HOUSE-SPARROW (Passer d. domesticus).

ADULTS.—Complete moult from August to October. No moult in spring. The effect of abrasion and the difference in the sexes is too well known to require comment.

JUVENILE.—Very much like the adult female. In the male the throat is more decidedly tinged with ashy-black than in the female.

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER.—The juvenile plumage is completely moulted in the first autumn. The birds then become like the adults, except that the male appears to have more white on the tips of the feathers of the chin than the adult male.

the legs pale brownish flesh-colour. Soon the bills became ochraceous, but still remained dark at the base; the mossy-green on the head and mantle became apparent in about a month, and this also applies to the rich colouration of the throat and chest; in fact very similar to their parents, but of a generally greyer hue, with the bright areas less intense and of smaller extent; but they are quite handsome birds, little rippers in fact.

In a state of nature the Pekin frequents thick covert, and is a skulker, and therefore not often in evidence. In captivity his demeanour is different, as he soon becomes tame, fearless, and confiding; but during the nesting period, while they will come almost to the hand for insects, they are very secretive, and never go straight to the nest with food, but skulk thereto by the most roundabout way possible. It was the same when building the nest; they adopted the same means to reach the site, and I always had to watch the nest itself unless I observed them from some spot where I was not visible to them.

Now my yarn is finished, and has quite a happy ending; certainly, no event of recent years has given me greater pleasure than this success with the Pekins, and, I repeat that I think my readers will agree that they deserve a laurel wreath as a reward for their perseverance. Possibly they have their reward in full measure in the two happy children which still frolic around them.

In conclusion, it is my pleasant duty to thank Mr. G. E. Low for the kind permission to use the two photos which figured these charming birds in such natural attitudes.

Walton and Everton C.B.S. and Its Shows.

SIR,—I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for some years, and always look forward each week to Friday night. Everything in it is interesting, but local items always come first, I have looked week after week for six months for reports of Walton and Everton shows. There have been three during that time, and not one reported. I think if the shows were reported members would take more interest in the Society and attend the meetings.

A Few Hints on Bird-catching.

SIR,—Perhaps I can help "Cockram" and "Lover of Birds" with a few hints on bird catching. The early morning is the best time to get a few birds. Find a place to lay the nets, where you notice birds feeding, or passing over to feed or drink at a place a little way off about fifty feet away from hedge or trees. Get the nets laid and working quickly when pulled over, always try your nets before you start the catching proper, to see how they work. Put braced birds on sticks, with lines running under pull-line of nets back to place you are standing to pull from. Work braced birds with the left hand and nets with the right hand. Put out the call birds facing the open field, not looking into the nets, and you are ready to start. The braced birds should be about a yard up the nets, from the end you pull from, and about a foot or just over from where the nets are pegged down. When the call birds begin to sing, or call, raise the braced bird up. When birds are over nets, let it down, and you will find birds will follow it down. Give a long pull on pull-line and you have a capture. If there are several birds flying round nets, and only one drops in, don't pull, but give the others a chance to follow it in. When a single bird is flying over and drops toward the nets don't wait for it to settle in the nets, but pull when it is in reach of the nets, that is, where the nets will cover it. Nothing is wanted in the nets as a bait for Linnets, but for Bullies you can put privet berries close in to nets, where pegged down, and for Goldies a bit of thistle in the same place. To train a bird to the sticks is a game of patience. Take a bird, cock or hen, one used to hard seed (caught a few weeks). Put on a nice easy-fitting brace, and take it out in the garden. Put it on the stick and pull the latter up. The bird will not hurt itself if you keep it up clear of the ground should it dash about. Let it down when quiet. Pull up again nearly as far as it will go, then give a jerk to the stick. The bird will flutter and most likely get on the stick. If it does, your trouble is over. Now let the stick down and raise it again. Do this a few times, letting the line run gently through the fingers. You want the bird to follow the stick down in a natural way. About a week of training and a bird should be fit to take out. Set the nets along a hedge, about five feet away, for Bullies, with a call bird in a long low cage, as you want it to pipe and show that bit of white on its back. A Bullie is too slow on a stick. For Chaffinches I should use a hen call-bird in a cage, or a dummy bird in the nets, with a singing bird hidden away close to the nets. If I can help with a bit more advice I shall be pleased to do so; the Editor has my address, but just now I am

ANOTHER RUFIAN.

A Soldier of Rochdale on the Lancashire Canary.

SIR,—I was surprised to notice Mr. Fuller's remarks on the Lancs. at the late Manchester show. I am certain there are many good Lancs. left to make a respectable show, as during a recent visit home I was informed that we had some good ones out at the R.G.I. show. Further, I found time to visit one of the breeder's rooms, and was surprised to see such good birds, and they had been out to shows. I am sure that Mr. Jameson's is a good one, and am pleased to see the young bird has turned out well, as I saw it earlier and had a good opinion of it. Other breeders I know have the right material. It is not fair to say that they are now "almost Crests." For my part I should like to see show committees keep fanciers from acting as stewards in their particular section; they could do their duty just as well as stewards over other varieties.

I was pleased to hear that the judge's remarks did not apply to the whole section, but am sorry he advises two classes only—four would have been rather better. I hold with Mr. Clegg when he asks us to be more combined, but from my experience the Club seems to be dragging along. I would like some of the breeders to take the matter up and try to get it up again. I am as willing as ever to do my part, but being in the Army I will have to wait. On my return to civil life I shall keep Lancs.; two or three are being kept for me by a brother fancier, to whom I owe my thanks. I hope some good will come after this discussion.

Are British and Foreign Birds Declining in Favour?

NOW I have said that in consequence of the decline in the number of entries, societies have suffered pecuniarily. With our narrow conceptions it may appear obvious at the first glance, and no doubt it is so to a certain extent; but if we examine the factor more closely, we shall see that societies have also suffered from the cutting down of British from the schedule. It is difficult to get some people to see how a society can lose on classes that are not there; but I hope to show that societies do lose a certain amount in gate-money.

Every exhibitor has an interest in that show at which he is showing, and every fancier has some friend who perhaps isn't a fancier—whose germ of interest is not yet fully developed, but which only requires the least spark for it to burst into full flame; and I am going to show you where societies, in their shortsightedness in not catering for the more interesting sections of bird shows, are wielding a boomerang which will manifest effects in the future little to our liking.

An exhibitor likes to visit the show he is showing at. Moreover, he doesn't like to go alone. He will bring his friend or his wife or his sister, or even somebody else's sister. So long as he brings someone, it doesn't very much matter who, they are the people we want to get hold of. They all help to swell the gate, and, more important still, the man who visits a bird show impersonally to-day, because his friend is showing, is the fancier of to-morrow. We must not overlook that. We want his contribution at the gate to make to-day's show pay; but we want his contribution in entries at to-morrow's shows.

so that these in their turn will be attractive to his friends. Think of it!

Just one more word. It is essential to the success of a bird show that all the British and Foreign birds and also the Hybrids be named in the catalogue. There is nothing more vexing to a non-fancier visitor than to buy a catalogue which conveys nothing to him. He sees curious-looking British and Foreign birds, buys a catalogue to see what they are called, and when he finds no names to them, he is disappointed. Not only is he disappointed, but he is vexed. He feels he has been had; and he leaves the show with the hump, and vows he will never visit another.

That visitor might have taken up the hobby if he had been stroked the right way, but he left the show with his hair up like a snarling dog's. So I appeal to British and Foreign fanciers to name their exhibits on their entry form. It is only a detail, but sometimes the smallest matters have the most far-reaching effects.

I also appeal to societies, when they are considering their schedules, not to look at the immediate so much as the future exchequer. A few shillings lost this year may mean double gain next. Study the British and Foreign exhibitor. Remember the railway charges on their birds are double those of Norwich and Yorkshire fanciers, and that their prize-money should be made attractive accordingly.

In conclusion, I suggest that the foregoing are the factors which are contributing to the decline of the British and Foreign section; and it behoves us, if we are to increase our numbers and keep up the interest, to make sacrifices, or what appear at first glance to be sacrifices. The Fancy at the present time is in the shadow; but we shall all the more welcome the light ahead.

The Scottish National C.B.S. and Its New Year Show.

SIR,—Would you kindly state that the above society abandoned the great New Year exhibition for this year owing to the war making railway facilities not too good for prompt delivery of exhibits, also the difficulty experienced in securing a suitable hall. We look forward to next year with the hope that this great event will again take place. No doubt it will be missed next week by many of our Scotch and English friends, who delighted to be present.

What About the Welsh National Show?

SIR,—Many fanciers in Wales are asking the question "Is there to be a Welsh National show this season?" When at Cardiff show, Mr. E. J. Banks told the writer, amongst others, that provided one hundred Welsh fanciers subscribed 5s. each the Committee was prepared to run a show. The season is drawing to a close, yet no word has been heard as to the intentions of the Committee. It is a great pity if this show is allowed to fall through, and I feel certain that were an appeal made there are a hundred fanciers in Wales who would subscribe the necessary amount. Will you make an appeal, Mr. Banks? There is yet time, and judging by the entries at our large show, no dearth of exhibitors yet.

S. J. NICHOLAS.

What is the Matter with City of Glasgow Show?

SIR,—Like "V. A. D.," I was also surprised at the reply by Mr. J. McLay. There seemed to me something more than a question of the hall. When "V. A. D." says it is rumoured the Scotch Fancy men are the members who are the cause of no shows being held, I could believe it, for I have always called them in my mind the £ s. d. men, or the something-for-nothing crowd. They should be cut out of all open shows. Regarding the "Red Cross show," I am working hard for it, and will send some entries also, so you will see I am not preferring the "City" to the "Red Cross." However, City of Glasgow, if the "Scotch Fancy" section have such a pull over you, sleep on.

BRIAR BUSH.

Identity of the Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrids Challenged.

SIR,—I read with interest in a recent CAGE BIRDS the article on the Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, and its visit to London. I don't see it possible for a man to try to defraud the Fancy by saying that he had bred a bird, claim a day on which it was bred, and show it as a hybrid. If it is possible for a Hybrid to be bred between Finches it is possible for a Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid to be bred. As we take it you have seen it, we in the Fancy should not doubt it. My congratulations to Mr. T. H. Anderson on his success, and thanks to you for the splendid article so easy to be understood by the youngest novice.

BIRD FANCIER.

SIR,—I do not withdraw one word of my previous letters. I did not suggest this bird should be shown at a small club show in the town where it was reared, but that it should be sent to several of our large open shows this season and next in different parts of the country. To my mind showing at a small club show on Mr. Anderson's own doorstep, as it were, has greatly weakened his case, for I believe this is the only society's show where it has been recognised as a Hybrid. With reference to Mr. McQuiston, this gentleman has a perfect right to his opinion, and I claim the same privilege.

One of your correspondents hints at my being an "all-round fancier." Quite true, and why am I an all-round fancier? Simply because I love all kinds of birds and always have done all my life. Let me tell your correspondent that I have studied British Birds in both their wild state and captivity, as closely as any man, also Hybrid breeding and keeping. It is owing to this fact that I was able to detect no trace of Blackbird in the bird under discussion. I have not disputed the possibility of breeding a Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid. What I said, and still say, is the bird shown at Carlisle show is not a Hybrid, but simply an ordinary Song Thrush.

Much has been made of the evidence of the two witnesses to the rearing of this bird. What is the value of this evidence? They know that a bird was reared in Mr. Anderson's aviary; but from what egg that bird was hatched they know no more than a man a thousand miles away (beyond what they were told) as they were not in permanent control of that aviary before the hatching and during the rearing of the said bird. They simply paid periodical visits. In calling attention to this fact, I make no insinuations, but simply show the evidence is of little value. It is because I decline to accept this evidence, which in my opinion is not borne out by the bird itself, that we have the "flourish of trumpets" in your last issue. Let me tell Mr. Anderson, and all whom it may concern, that the identity of this bird will never be satisfactorily settled in Darvel, or at Darvel show. I have asked nothing unreasonable, and have proved that I am as anxious as the owner that the matter should have an honourable settlement by suggesting that the bird should be sent to several of our largest shows under different judges, and that fanciers of experience might see it. Then and then only will it be proved who is right and who is wrong.

JOHN RONSON.

[This bird was put in the prize tickets (7th) at the large show held in Glasgow on Nov. 12 and 13, the judge being either Mr. A. W. Watson (Edinburgh) or Mr. M. Craig (Glasgow).—EDITOR.]

SIR,—The controversy is very interesting. The evidence seems pre-eminently in favour of the bird being a Hybrid. I should like to see it, if it ever came near Leeds. I remember some years ago seeing a queer feathered creature in a croft close to Staningley G.N. Railway Station, between Leeds and Bradford. I said, well! that is a cross between a duck and a cockerel!! Fowl's head and feet, very short legs, body and tail a duck's; the waddle, when walking, perfect. I followed it to the precincts of the owner's house, and had some talk with the coachman. The owner was a medical man. The man said it was a genuine Hybrid, and the doctor, his master, vouched for it. Being a life-long bird-lover, I was, and am, as certain of its genuineness as I am of my own existence. I wrote to a Fancy paper on the matter, and the editress put in a short paragraph to the effect that such claims had been made before, but never authenticated. That is the way these things are "settled," or, rather, "snuffed out." I hope this controversy may not descend to personalities, and that the bird may come out of the tug-of-war as a genuine Hybrid and have a long life. By the correspondence I gathered it was not the only one reared. What of the others?

W. G. SMITHSON.

Breeding Bearded Reedlings in Captivity.

SIR,—In my communication on this topic in your last issue, I am made to say, in sixth line from bottom "species of Hybrid." I wrote "species or hybrid," which is, of course, very different. I may add that I have since heard from Mr. Richardson Carr that the aviary, though large (46 yds. by 15 yds.) contains so many other birds, all very keen on insect life, that they are very dependent upon regular attendance and food supplies, and that when the Reedlings are feeding young it is essential that they receive supplies of live food several times daily. The above clears up all points of doubt, and Mr. Carr's success must be accepted as a bona fide case of breeding Bearded Reedlings in captivity.

SIR,—Is there any recorded instance of any birds having reared their young to maturity in any aviary that has ever been built, without any artificial food or insects being supplied by the aviarist? I do not know of any such instance, and should regard such an event as almost an impossibility. If, however, anyone were clever enough to design, plant and establish such an aviary, he should have a gold medal, quite apart from any copper medals he might receive for breeding results. Some suggestions that have been made seem to miss the point that we want to encourage the rearing of the young by natural means, not by stuffing food down their throats with a stick.

Dr. Lovell Keays seems to have had a remarkably good aviary, because nothing was supplied for feeding the young for the first seven days, but some small mealworms. In my own aviaries I have always had to supply large quantities of live-bait from the date of hatching. I was very glad to hear of his success, and heartily congratulate him, but I expect that he will be quite satisfied with having done something worth doing, and would not accept a medal, which would be a mere farce. As showing my own point of view, I may mention that I recently received from the Avicultural Society a medal for breeding the Whinehat (in 1912). I returned it by the next post; a medal which is three years overdue is quite as much a farce as a medal for a record which has already been achieved in a larger aviary.

Other suggestions that have been made overlook the fact that better breeding results have almost uniformly been obtained in small than in large aviaries. How little is accomplished in the large aviaries at the Zoo; and yet they could not possibly be under better management than that of Mr. Seth-Smith, the curator, and Mr. Bailey, the head-keeper. W. E. TESCHEMAKER.

An Outdoor Breeding Room for Canaries.

SIR,—As I have been successful in breeding and rearing a splendid lot of birds and attribute my success entirely to following the advice published from time to time in your paper, CAGE BIRDS, I have thought that some particulars of my own procedure might be interesting to fellow-readers.

My aviary is 13ft. long, 9ft. wide and 8ft. high. It is built of lin. deal boards and it is lined on the inside by 3-ply wood. I have a large skylight in the top, a window in one side and one at the end facing S.E., so the birds get the morning sun and plenty of light all day. The whole of the floor space is firstly covered with bricks, and 4in. above these I have a boarded floor so that the air can get under between the two floors through ventilators, and the birds have fresh air all the time without any draughts.

Along the back and at one end my cages are arranged, and these are not in the form of separate cages, but made in the form of permanent racks, the shelves of the racks being 18in. wide and 12in. apart. I have these fixed with horse wire fronts 24in. by 12in., and with slides so that I can make them either into separate cages or into flights. I find this method altogether better and cheaper than the separate cages; it keeps the birds in good condition all the year round, and saves a lot of trouble in feeding and cleaning, besides which there is not so much harbour for red mite as in ordinary box cages.

They are painted inside with sky-blue sanitary paint, and the fronts are enamelled black, so that the birds show up nicely. Along the top of these breeding quarters I have two rows of singing cages, each cage 14 by 14 by 8, and I find these very handy for troublesome cocks or separate singing birds.

I have also a large flight 6ft. by 3ft. and 6ft. high with an aperture communicating with an outside flight 8ft. long and 8ft. wide, this flight being planted with small trees. There is no heating whatever in my birdroom, and the birds do well all the year round. I will send some accounts later as to my methods of breeding.

PLYMOUTH W.C.O.S.

Meeting, Dec. 15, Oddfellows' Hall, Morley Street, Mr. W. French chair, before a good attendance. A vote of sympathy having been passed on the illness of our Sec., with the wish of a speedy recovery, it was with deep regret that we accepted Mr. T. Pope's resignation from the position of Hon. Sec. and Treas., he having held the same for over ten years. Mr. Dyer was elected to fill the vacancy, having worked with Mr. Pope as Assist. Sec. for a great number of years. It was decided to have a show next year, but the nomination of judges to stand over until a later date. Two new members elected. RICHMOND C.B.S.

Meeting, St. John's Hall, Richmond, Dec. 13, Mr. W. Phipps, chair, and about 20 members present. The Chairman read a letter from the Sec. (Mr. Birch) in which he wished to resign, as he could not give the proper time to the work. Mr. W. Keary moved a hearty vote of thanks to the late sec., saying very many complimentary things about him. Mr. Birch briefly replied, saying how very sorry he was to resign. He hoped they would give their full support to his successor, especially at a time like the present. He thanked them all for their kind remarks, and if in the future he could be of any assistance to the Club he would be satisfied. Messrs. E. Randall and Mr. D. Patterson were then elected auditors, and Mr. Colin Brown, Inglewood, Kings Rd., Richmond, unanimously elected sec. Prize money for annual show was paid to winners present. Winners of challenge cups: Challenge cup (presented by Mr. R. Clouting), most points throughout the year, W. Keary, 81 points. Challenge cup for most points, 3 nominated birds, W. Keary, 41. Challenge cup for 2nd points 3 nominated birds, G. Birch, 38. Challenge cup for 3rd, joint holders, C. Huxley and T. Harris, 34 each. Resolved that anyone joining the Soc. before June 30 shall pay entrance fee and subs., and after that date entrance fee only, unless desirous of showing in the current year. Also that subs. become due on Jan. 1 of each year.—G. Birch, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held Dec. 15, in the absence of the Chairman and Vice-Chairman Mr. H. C. Smith was elected to the chair. The Secretary stated he had paid out all prize money, also all other accounts, and was prepared to have the balance-sheet of the open show audited. We shall be able to hand over £10 to the fund for the prisoners of war in Germany. Mr. H. C. Smith and Mr. A. Bull were elected to audit the accounts. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. W. Harrington for the grand lot of specials he handed over to the society. Also the society was grateful to Mr. D. Raymond for taking over the erecting of the staging, etc. A letter was read from Mr. E. J. Banks re the holding of an open show in February. After a long discussion it was resolved that we could not entertain the proposal of holding another open show in February. A number of letters were read from fanciers all over England congratulating the society on the prompt payment of prize money, also thanking us for the way all birds reached home in good time, some of the fanciers promising a larger entry next year. Resolved to hold annual match pair show on the first Wednesday in February at Nish Royal Stores, the judges, also classification, to be decided at the next meeting. The Chairman asked the Secretary to accept the gift of a salad bowl complete on behalf of Mrs. Thomas; the donor of the gift was Mr. T. Brails. The Secretary, in replying, said he much appreciated the kindness, and assured Mr. Brails that Mrs. Thomas would appreciate the gift. Resolved, to have a table show of Yorkshires at our next meeting, two classes, cock and hen; Mr. E. J. Davies to judge Mr. H. C. Smith promised 2s. to be won by the member placing the first three birds nearest to the judge's awards. Mr. Brails promised to give a watch for the best Yorkshire at the meeting, to be won by the bird securing the highest number of votes; each member will judge the birds, and record his vote as to which is the best bird. I trust that members will each bring up a couple of birds, Yorkshires, and thus help to make our meetings of great help to the novice members. A vote of condolence was passed to Mr. J. Pearce, who had recently lost his dear mother, who had been an invalid for a number of years. Will members all try and attend the next meeting?—G. Thomas.

Club Reports.DARVEL C.B.C.

Meeting Dec. 15, Town Hall, before a poor turnout, Mr. N. Hopkins presiding. Mr. H. Craig and Mr. W. Taylor, jun., were admitted as members. Sec. read balance-sheet of exhibition Dec. 4, in aid of local Soldiers' and Sailors' Fund, which, with all in, came to £2 6s.; and it was agreed to make it £3. Decided to have no table shows this winter. Arranged to hold meeting next month, sec. to fix date, to hear balance-sheet read, and election of office-bearers. Mr. N. Hopkins and Mr. A. Beaton were appointed auditors.—J. Taylor, Sec., Timby, East Donington-street, Darvel, Ayrshire.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held on Dec. 18, Mr. Farrer presiding over good attendance. Arrangements had been made (Mr. Swan reported) with the Sunderland Tipplers' Association, to hold their show in conjunction with us on Monday, Dec. 27, in the Miners' Hall. It was decided to draw for specials on morning of the show. Birds to be at the hall at 9.15 a.m., and judging to commence at 10 prompt. Judges, Mr. J. Johnston (Walsend) and J. Clark (Sunderland). The show manager (Mr. Farrer) was asked to appoint the stewards. Those members who can, are asked to be at the hall at 9 prompt to finish off the staging. The thanks of the meeting were accorded to Mr. Brown (who typed the schedule and painted the bills for show), and Mr. Swan, —John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

SWANSEA C.B.A.

At a meeting of the above, held at the Mansel Hotel, on Saturday, Dec. 18, Mr. J. E. Jeffries presided, the chief business of the evening being a favourable report of the year's working by the Secretary, who was unable to get the auditors to audit books owing to some tickets still owing. Will members who have them please send in as quickly as possible. On the proposition of the members present, it was decided to again make the Mansel Hotel our headquarters for the coming year. Our next meeting will be held on Jan. 8, at 7.15 p.m., when the election of officers will take place; also to decide the working arrangement of our society, whether we shall hold our table shows, lectures, washing exhibitions, etc., as the young fanciers here are asking for same. So please make a special effort to attend.—Alf. Hitchings, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Dec. 7, Mr. W. G. Fellows chair. Accounts of annual show presented by Hon. Sec., showing a balance on the wrong side of 5s. 8d., which, all things considered, was very satisfactory. A letter was read from a member complaining of the smallness of prize money. It was pointed out that a sliding scale with an entry fee of 6d., with 2d. to be deducted, could not possibly produce large amounts, but the kindness of some few members had added a special prize to nearly every class. The Hon. Sec. was strongly in favour of raising the entry fee in future, and was supported by many members, but the matter was left open until next year. A vote of thanks was passed to workers at the show, especially mentioning Mr. Winter (who had written ornamental class cards and some large posters), and Mr. Melhuish. The Hon. Sec. also expressed his obligation to Mr. L. Bousfield attending to the despatch of birds at station, at some inconvenience to himself. Some alteration was made in the arrangements for voting for next year's officials, and the settling of few other matters brought the last meeting of 1915 to a close.—G. J. Slade, Assist. Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

General meeting and distribution of prizes, Reindeer Hotel, Rye Lane, Dec. 7, Mr. Frank Cole chair, and a fair number present. Correspondence dealt with, one resignation being received, and accepted with deep regret, but it is hoped that the member will rejoin again later (as he suggests) when business again rights itself. New member elected, Mr. H. S. Atkins. There were two other applications for membership for election at next meeting. The Chairman, in presenting the "News of the World" Challenge Shield for best in show to Mr. W. D. Hall, complimented him upon his success, and pointed out that seven years had passed since that trophy had been carried off by a Yorkshire. He also congratulated Mr. A. J. Clarke, winner of Young Bird Bowl, that also being won by a Yorkshire. These two trophies had generally gone to the one bird, but on this occasion the old bird had captured the shield. Mr. A. G. Cant gave the report of the annual show, and the Chairman complimented him upon the able manner in which he managed and successfully brought the show to a success. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Cant, who, like other show managers, must have had a hard and tiring task under present conditions. Vote of thanks to Chair closed the meeting.—D. Reeks, Hon. Sec.

BRADFORD EAST.

enth annual show Dec. 18, Park Chapel
The room is ideal, and the staging was that the exhibits were to be seen to the best advantage. Entries numbered 307 from 78 exhibitors, which is considered to be very good this year. Quality was quite up to the standard of the shows. The strongest classes were the two chick classes, for the rose bowl; 16 yellows and 16 whites competing for this trophy. The winner was a pair by Mr. L. Dykes, a real beauty, not of the st, but for type and quality unbeatable, and ed to the moment. The society have in Mr. E. ards, the president, a thorough fancier, who, ugh not an exhibitor, has been a breeder of a for a great number of years. The sec. Mr.
pencer, had full charge of the show, and did much of the work in a very businesslike manner; as ably assisted by Mr. G. R. Rushworth, who the stewards were Messrs. Wm. Cruise, O. Priest-P. Priestley, Taylor, Stables, C. Walker, W. er, and J. Roe, and the way in which they all through their duties is deserving of the highest
e. The judge, Mr. W. H. Shackleton, of nton, gave general satisfaction. Prize money ad out in the room to all winners present.
acking and sending away of the exhibits were rough in good time. The gate was probably ed one, and the show will very likely have the most successful held under the Yorks.

WADEBRIDGE.

Wadebridge Fanciers' Association patriotic show, Town Hall, Wadebridge, Nov. 13. It was really a members' show, although it was open to the county.
The entries were not large, numbering about 60, but some excellent specimens were staged which would not have disgraced a much larger or open show. In the Norwich classes there were several of high class quality and type, while the Yorkshires contained many birds that had won in some large open shows, and were a level lot. The British Goldfinch class was small, but quality good, and competition keen. The A.V. cage bird local class was of exceptional merit, and some of the birds would have taken premier honours had they been shown in the open. The birds were well staged, and reflected great credit on the Wadebridge Fanciers, who are most enthusiastic in all their efforts.
The Committee, several of whom are well-known exhibitors, consisted of Miss Douglas, Messrs. F.
Irons, F. West, F. Pollard, H. Willis, S. Willis, F.
Johns, T. Pinch, D. Harris, T. R. Philp, H. Pa-coe, L. H. Lang, H. Ennor, A. Beare and A. Rickard.
Mr. Tom Rickard was chairman, and the honorary secretaries were Messrs. E. Hill and Ed. Mitchell, who did their work in a very praiseworthy manner.
Mr. F. Liddicott, of St. Columb, judged, and his awards were well received.

LONG EATON.
Annual show, Dec. 4, in the large club room adjoining the Blue Bell Hotel. Entries hardly came up to expectations, but the quality, especially of the Yorkshires and Crests, was very good. The birds were all nicely staged, and all could be seen at a glance. The arrangements were splendidly carried out, Mr. J. Turner making an ideal secretary; he carried out his duties in A1 style, and was well backed up by a hard-working committee.
Messrs. Smith and Turner won the members' cups.
Mr. W. Vardy judged all Canaries, Mr. W. Hayter taking British Birds. Their awards gave general satisfaction.

PELTON FELL C.B.S.

Thirteenth annual show, Collicry Inn, Nov. 20.
Nearly 300 birds were staged, and among them were many birds that have done some winning in open classes. Crests are going very strong at Pelton, and promise to make a name for themselves. Considering that quite a fifth of the members are serving their country the entry was a grand one. The gift class for soldiers' and sailors' fund realised £9 4s. 6d. Mr. T. Dixon judged.

HASTINGS AND ST. LEONARDS.

Although the war curtailed some of its usual features, the seventeenth annual show had no fewer than 112 entries. By the courtesy of the president (Mr. Frank Slack) and Mrs. Slack, the show was held at their residence, 25, Wellington Square. Mr. and Mrs. Slack were indefatigable in their hospitality. Tea was provided. Judges, Messrs. W. Ellis (Dexhill) and J. Stevens (Hastings). Mr. F. Wright presided at the opening.
Others present included Lady Webster, the Countess O'Hilly, Mr. and Mrs. Slack, Mrs. Kirk-Bullock, Miss Irene Kirk-Bullock (hon. sec. and treas.), Mrs.
Wright, Mrs. and Miss Melville, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Weston, Mrs. Crofts, Mr. Howick (Midhurst), and others. Mrs. Slack, who gracefully opened the show, was presented by Miss Kirk-Bullock with a beautiful basket of flowers from the committee. A vote of thanks was carried to Mrs. Slack, and to Mr. and Mrs. Slack for their kindness in giving the use of their house. The president moved a vote of thanks to the judges, and included Miss Kirk-Bullock. The chairman was also thanked.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly
sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow).

7th annual show, Dec. 4, Victoria Hall, Crosshill, a very comfortable one for the purpose, roomy and free from draughts. Birds were well staged all round the four sides, with a tier up the centre, as this enterprising body of fanciers know how to do it; and right well they pleased with this, their record show, 500 birds facing the judges, and quality was a leading feature. Norwich were the superior lot. We were pleased to see marked improvement in British in quality, as well as quantity. Borders also showed an improvement and were wonderfully well staged. Yorks. were a capital lot, many of them could win anywhere. Pres. Heggie scoring well—1st and 2nd in every class, also securing principal honours with his Hybrids. The officials were a lot of hard workers, looking well after the exhibits, and none did more than the Sec., Mr. A. K. Hunter, and all honour and praise rest with him. This is his first year of holding this position, and everything was first-rate. He was ably supported by such capable and well-known fanciers as Pres. R. Heggie, Vice-Pres. R. Cairns and A. Forman; Committee, Messrs. R. Jeffrey, R. Hamilton, A. Steel, J. Fulton, W. McClymont, W. Connelly, J. R. Steel, W. Steel, and R. Dalbraith. A. W. Naismith and M. Stewart, who all worked with great harmony. The show was well patronised and sides were good. The principal special winners were: Rose bowl, best Nor., S.P.C. medal, also gold medal best young bird, R. B. Cairns; Pres. R. Heggie secured rose bowl best Yorks, special best bird in hall, also gold medal 2nd best young bird, rose bowl best Mule. R. Heggie special best British went to A. Steel. Judges: Nor., Mr. John Holmes Edinburgh; and Mr. E. Barron (Glasgow); Yorks., Mr. J. F. Park (Glasgow). Mr. A. H. McLean the remainder.

OLD SHILDON C.B.S.

Annual Show, Dec. 4, Workmen's Institute. The room is one of the finest we have seen, being lofty, free from draught, and well lighted. We were sorry to see so few exhibits, as every comfort for the birds was well looked to. We think if the show had been better advertised it would have been a greater success. Many of the classes were cancelled owing to short entries. Dr. Wilson put down a fine team of Mules and Britishers, and had a good day. Mr. Ainsworth was an ideal sec., and was well backed up by a hard working committee. Mr. W. Mundell, Bradford, judged.

WALLSEND (Mid-Tyne) C.B.A.

Eleventh annual members' show, Co-operative Hall, Nov. 6; an ideal hall for a show, good size, and free from draughts. Entries were nearly 500, and staging was all one could desire, every bird could be seen at a glance. Norwich were of good quality, also Yorks. and Borders, and in British classes some well-known winners were staged. Mr. G. Greenwell, the worthy sec., is the right man in the right place; he controls matters capitally, and works like a Trojan. Stewards who officiated in a most practical and praiseworthy manner were Messrs. L. Simpson, T. Messenger, G. Cochrane, J. Watson, R. McDougall, B. Wilson, H. Fleck, T. Parker, J. Roy, J. White. All kept top-side of their work. Our worthy President, Col. E. N. Pinkney, is in France, and could not visit our show this year. Competition was very keen. Judging was over in good time, prize cards displayed promptly, and everything went well before a record attendance. Mr. A. Affleck won President's cup for best young bird with a yellow green Border, also special best green Border, and will be heard of later. He is only a novice, meeting all the champions. Mr. G. Cochrane won R. I. Dee's cup with three nominated birds with two 1sts and 2nd, Goldfinch, Bramblefinch, and Chaffinch, well known winners. Mr. J. Johnson, the well known green Border fancier, won Percy Hood's cup for most points with a total of 145 points. This is the third year in succession. He also won the Border Fancy medal with a green Border hen. Messrs. G. Dobinson, Seaton Delaval, W. Thomson, Newton Grange, and C. Waters judged, and their awards were well received. The show was a great success. Twelve birds were sold for the benefit of Red Cross Fund, and brought £2 17s.

PATHHEAD.

Second annual show, Nov. 27, confined to Fife. The Co-operative Hall, in which the show was held, is a hall of nice size and well lighted. Entries were down on last year, the Crest and Crestured classes being all cancelled, while the Border section was very poorly supported; but the exhibits were of a very fair order. The officials were all of the best and got through their duties in a very satisfactory manner. President is Mr. W. Archibald; Vice-Pres., Mr. W. R. Gibson; Sec., Mr. J. Thomson; Committee, Messrs: Gibson, Sanders, Thomson, McLaren, Ross, Brown, Christie, Poulter, Gibson, Joudes, A. Leslie, G. Brown, J. Winter, G. Arnott.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

Thirteenth annual show, Dec. 4, in a large room attached to the Cyprus Hotel, and very fortunate they were in securing such a well-adapted room for their show, there being any amount of space and a good light. The birds were nicely staged around the sides and down the centre of the room, and made a very fine display. The entries totalled over 300, which is very good under present conditions. Some grand birds were staged in each of the sections. Unfortunately the weather was wretched, which no doubt prevented many from visiting the show. There are a few old standards at the head of affairs in this old-established society; including such well-known names as W. L. Smith, Sec., a position he has held for a great number of years, Thompson, Duke, Richardson, Armstrong, Woodhouse, Deighton, etc., etc. and Mr. Patterson, of the Cyprus, to whom the Society is much indebted for the use of the room, so the whole of the show was carried through in a businesslike manner. Judging was finished and prize cards up in good time. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

ABERAMAN.

First Open Show, Dec. 2, Swan Hotel, in a large, fairly light and exceedingly comfortable room, and absolutely free from draughts and chill. The entry was hardly up to expectation, particularly in the Yorkshires, possibly due to Bristol and Birmingham and another small local show falling on the same date, but we have for some time noticed a depression in the champion classes of this section at South Wales fairs, and we would suggest a few extra classes for Novices as a stimulant for creating future champions to fill the gaps made in the ranks by the falling out of so many of our old veterans. The officers, committee and stewards, Messrs: T. Evans (Chairman), F. Jones (Vice), W. Thomas (Treas.), J. Hoare, W. Jones, R. Davies, F. Ricketts, W. Walker, D. Jones and J. E. Goodfellow, together with W. R. Powell (Sec.) and W. Davies (show manager), who were sorry to see very unwell, worked well for the good of the show, and we hope their efforts will be rewarded at the balancing up. Cup for best bird in show was won by Mr. W. Davies (Aberaman) with a really grand buff Nor. hen, closely pressed by his unflig. yell. cock, two birds to be truly proud of. The cup for most points by members went to Mr. W. R. Powell, as also did the special for best Novice Canary with a very typical clear buff Nor. cock of rare col. and qual. Mr. E. J. Davies (Cardiff) judged.

NOR., CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (7): 1, Greaves, grand col. and qual., nicely coned, not very large; 2, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, cl., larger bird, well shown, not the col. and qual. of winner; 3, Jones, varieg., grand subs. and cond., but fails to winners in neatness; 4, Davies; vhc, c, Jones; he, Tedstone. BUFF. CL., ETC., CK. (11): 1, 2, Davies, head and wing mtd. leading, a really good all-round Nor., in the pink; 2, lightly mtd. head and wing, lovely col. and qual.; 3, Tedstone, nice bird, but loses to winners in col. and qual.; 4, A. E. Brown; vhc, G. T. Jones; he, D. W. Jones; c, Greaves. YELL. NOR. HEN (13): 1, 2, 3, W. Davies, cl., grand bird all over; 2, another cl., fine chest and wings, fails trifle to winner in head; 3, still another good cl., close up, fails trifle in flight; 4, G. T. Jones, tld. wing; vhc, Greaves; he, G. T. Jones; c, D. W. Jones. BUFF. HEN (10): 1, 2, 3, W. Davies, leader wins cup for best in show, wonderfully cobby, grand head and neck, fine qual.; 2, another grand unflig. splendidly coued and fails only to winner in head and neck; 3, also a splendid hen, cl., fails trifle in subs.; 4, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, varieg., might be better staged; vhc, he, Tedstone; c, G. T. Jones. NOR., UNFLIG. CK. OR HEN (8): 1, 2, W. Davies, leader cl. yell., a gem all over, lovely col. and qual., hard to find a fault in; 2, also cl., close up, shade paler and smaller in head; 3, Tedstone, splendid type and size, fails bit in feather and staging; 4, he, G. T. Jones, varieg., buff; vhc, Greaves; c, F. Ricketts. NOVICE, NOR. (17), CK. OR HEN: 1, spl. best Nov. Can., vhc, W. R. Powell, cl. buff, capital type, good col., shape and qual.; 2, A. E. Brown, cl. yell., good chest and type, well put down; 3, E. Powell, var. yell., good Nor. type, fails to winners chiefly in cond.; 4, A. E. Brown; he, F. Jones; c, Davies and Reynolds. This class might well have been divided, one for cock and one for hen. NOR., NAT. COL. (3), CK.: 1, Davies and Reynolds, cl., good type, qual. and col., nice size; 2, no name, neat, but too small; 3, Waters, smaller still. HEN: No entry. These classes seem hardly worth catering for. YOKKS., CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (5): 1, L. Hughes, eye and wing mtd., fine pos., grand type, col. and qual., not over large; 2, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, cl., close up, grand wings and tail, just trifle frilled to-day; 3, 4, W. R. Powell, good lengthy cl., nice pos., trifle flat in head, and shade open in chest; vhc, D. W. Jones. CL., ETC., BUFF. (4): 1, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, varieg., well known winner, lovely qual. and cond., wearing well; 2, 4, W. R. Powell, cl., fine length and pos., fails to winner in feather and wings; 3, R. F. Griffiths, cl., trifle short, nice qual. YORK., YELL. HEN (4): 1, 3, W. R. Powell, cl., capital pos. and feather, good wings and tail; 3, fine lengthy hen, good col., but badly staged; 2, 4, J. Hubbard, cinn.-mtd., correct type, lovely qual., bit wide in tail; 4, nice hen, but damaged flight. YORK., BUFF. HEN (9): 1, vhc, W. E. Towell, mk. head, a very good all-round unflig. bird, in fine cond.; 2, Llewellyn, cl., grand pos., fine col. and qual.; 3, Hubbard, varieg., splendid type and qual., on the small side; 4, E. J. Bevan; he, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks; c, J. Padfield. YORK., UNFLIG. CK. OR HEN: 1, c, Hubbard, cl. yell., trifle pale, but lovely pos., feather, tail and wings; 2, 3, W. R. Powell, cl., buff, grand length and feather, fails winner in pos.; 3, slashing yell., bit patchy and untidy; 4, Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, varieg., yell., unsteady, or might have been higher; vhc, E. J. Bevan; he, R. F. Griffiths. NAT. COL. CK. (4): 1, L. Hughes, lovely yell. green, not over large, but nice col., pos. and qual.; 2, E. W. Moule, cl. yell., smaller, but grand pos. and feather; Nos. 3 and 4 absent. NAT. COL. HEN (3): 1, L. Hughes, tld. yell., neat, but small; Nos. 2 and 3 absent. NOV., YORK., CK. OR HEN (13): 1, vhc, G. O. Thomas, cl. yell., long, slim, fine pos., sweet head, a good 'un; 2, c, W. R. Powell, another good cl. yell., close up, not quite equal in head, and trifle soft; 3, W. Baker, cl. buff, fine length, Al qual., real good, only for crossing of wings; 4, J. H. Bevan, good, but small; he, F. Goodenough, another good class. BORD., A.V. BUFF CK. York. cock, soon claimed, we heard had won in open.

REDHILL.

Fifth annual show, Nov. 24. Although actually a members' show, a few classes had been provided for Borders, under the patronage of the S.B.F.C. Unfortunately, these classes did not fill as expected, although a fair number of birds were sent in, some of them from quite long distances. The show was otherwise a complete success, and was visited during the day by many influential people of the district, who appeared to thoroughly enjoy the display. Yorks. were particularly good, some well-known winners competing. Special for best bird was secured by Mr. Last, of Purley, with his cl. yellow unflig., the Croydon and Reading winner. In his class he was very closely pressed by a grand bird put down by Mr. Bacon, Redhill, colour alone turning the scale. The latter exhibitor annexed the S.B.F.C. diploma, and the members' challenge cup, with a lovely yellow green. A challenge cup and rose bowl, given by Miss Hatch and Miss Cameron, for non-fed birds, went to Mr. F. Roser for best Yorks., and Miss Edwards for best Nor., the latter winning the trophy outright. The show contained a very few good British, spl. for best going to Mr. F. A. Marriott's Siskin, quite a nice specimen. The society is particularly fortunate in having the services of Mr. A. W. Bacon as sec.; he was well to the front during the show; everything in excellent order, and the birds well looked after. The room was well lighted, and nicely warmed. Mr. H. Norman judged.

W. A. F. Stuart.—Replied to by post.
REPAIRS TO BIRD ORGAN (Nemo).—Sorry, but I cannot tell you of any place where you could get your organ overhauled and repaired. The instruments were practically solely exploited by the Germans, and it used to be necessary to send one that needed any little repair to that country for attention, which, of course, is wholly out of the question now. It is a very ticklish job to attempt, and amateur interference is only to be encouraged when one feels disposed to risk having the machine utterly ruined. Still, some years ago during a correspondence in our columns, an English fancier claimed to have the necessary skill, and to have made a success of repairing these organs, but apart from amateur work of this kind there is not, so far as I am aware, any place in England where you could get the work done in a professional manner. Possibly, some fancier, with the necessary skill for this class of work, and the bent, will see here an opening for trying to capture another German monopoly.

MUDDLED UP (H. J. H.).—You ought to have given some particulars as to how you are keeping the bird. The sudden cessation of song and huddled up condition, coupled with the rather violent fluctuations of weather, are very suggestive of a chill affecting the bird badly. Keep it quite on the warm side, though you need not go too far in this respect, and see that it is quite free from cold draughts, and also that the temperature is fairly equable day and night. Then in addition to the usual seed dietary give every second day for a fortnight half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and then sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre. If bird is not quite well at the end of a teaze and linseed, every third day, and on the intervening days give first a morsel of banana or sweet apple, and next half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. In the drinking water add every second day for a week six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence. After this give instead four drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre every second day for a fortnight. If not then more active stop all the above extras, and give in the water every second day for another fortnight four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid. (2) I take it you refer to improving the quality of the Roller's song, and not to getting it out of a songless condition. If this is correct, I am afraid you can do nothing to improve matters now. If the bird had formed a type of song of its own, which was fixed when you purchased him, it is quite useless to expect to make any real improvement in the style of his song now. He is far more likely to corrupt the song of a better-class singer than the latter is to convert him from the error of his ways. Training should commence before the bird has evolved any particular type of song on its own account.

TURNED WRONG WAY (E. L.).—I take it you mean the toes, as the claw is only the hard, bony tip at the end of the toe—so-called "toe-nail." You omit to say which toe is affected, or how, and to remedy these defects it is almost essential that treatment should begin as soon as possible after the trouble sets in. In the vast majority of cases where the trouble commenced soon after the young birds left the nest, as is very frequently the case, it is absolutely useless worrying the bird with treatment. Therefore, if the toe is at all rigid—"stiffened"—I would advise you to leave it severely alone, as any attempts at cure are only likely to inflict needless pain on the bird. If, however, the toe seems fairly supple, put in the cage thin and nearly-round perches, about the size of an ordinary lead pencil, and note whether the birds occasionally get the toes into a natural position. Keep these perches in for a month, then report result, and give full particulars as to which toes are affected, and how, and how long the trouble has been in existence.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

HYBRID QUESTIONS (British).—I am not quite sure if I understand your first question. It appears to me that you want to know how to breed Hybrids with Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and Greenfinches. Now, with these three pairs you could only make up two pairs for Hybrid breeding, as your cock Bullfinch is unreliable. Pair them as follows: cock Greenfinch and hen Bullfinch, cock Goldfinch and hen Greenfinch; that leaves you with a hen Goldfinch unmated. This you could run with one of the Linnetts you mention in your second question. Your safest plan with regard to the mating of your Redpoll and cock Linnet is to pair them with hen Canaries. You see, if you mate up all your birds for the production of British bird Hybrids, you may have a bad season and get nothing at all, which is particularly disappointing; whereas, if part of your stock is put up for Mule breeding you are almost certain to produce a few, and possibly be saved from the annoyance of having missed a year's breeding. (3) Yes, Sibley is a local name for the Chaffinch.

GOLDFINCH WITH SWELLING (Henry Shell).—I would advise you to take your bird to a medical man or a chemist, and ask him to remove the growth on your Finch for you. Unless you have BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Acariates, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." had a good deal of experience with birds it would scarcely be safe to do it yourself. It is a simple operation and yet requires nerve and confidence to do it properly.

ABOUT A REDPOLL AND GREENFINCH (F. W. Ware).—I am sorry you omitted to mention where you keep your Redpoll, as this, in my opinion, is of vital importance. No doubt you are feeding him rather heavily, and some of these birds are quite gluttons when they can obtain plenty. I presume you are feeding him as directed in our Nutshell booklet, and I would advise you to give him a spoonful of soaked seeds about three times a week, and mix teaze in with his stock mixture. As green feed is not particularly plentiful just now, supply him liberally with any fruit he will take. He should be kept in a large cage or aviary, an outside one if possible, and allowed to bathe on all suitable occasions. As regards your Greenfinch, the fault may be in the quality of the feather. In some specimens it is impossible to get them quite fit—even in a wild state they are coarse. The best remedy I can suggest is a free use of the bath (rain water), and a liberal allowance of sunflower seeds.

BREEDING WITH BULLFINCHES (Mrs. C. M. Thorpe).—I am afraid if you try to breed with Bullfinches you will only meet with disappointment. To my knowledge these birds have bred in captivity, but their doing so was quite an exception. The Bullfinch hen is known to be a fairly free breeder, but the cock bird is very disappointing. You are much more likely to be successful with a pair of Goldfinches or Greenfinches, or even with a Goldfinch cock and a Bullfinch hen.

BLACKBIRD MOULTING BADLY.—(Geo. Wheeler).—I gather from your letter that there are two reasons why your bird is doing badly: one is the food, and the other the position. You must make an entire change in his diet. Procure a good insectile food, as given to warblers, and feed him on this for a time, mixing it with scraped raw carrot and sometimes boiled potato; also supply him rather liberally with fruit. Before making this change give him an aperient of Glauber salts. Dissolve as much as will cover a shilling in the drinking water, and give it him to drink for one day only, repeating two days later. Catch the bird, and examine him carefully for insects, and if you find any dust him freely with insect powder. Lightly smear the bare place with vaseline. Your kitchen is not a suitable place to keep him in, but if you are obliged to keep him there, his cage should be moved to a position below the gas during the evening.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

GREEN AMAZON PARROT ILL (Poor Don).—The digestive organs of the aged are more sluggish in action than those of the young, and need fairly frequent stimulation. Put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia into the daily supply of drinking water till the bowels become loose. When this occurs, giving the laxative every fourth day should suffice to keep them properly regulated. On the intervening days half a teaspoonful of bino-phosphates in the drinking water will be beneficial. Give a little honey and borax (procure ready mixed from a chemist) once or twice daily, either spread on a crust, piece of biscuit, or cake, or put in into the mouth direct by the aid of a small piece of stick or other means. If the bird will allow you to handle it, foment the foot with hot water, as hot as you can bear your hand in without discomfort; dry with a soft cloth and then paint with neat whisky. Keep the bird out of draughts and in a fairly warm room, which is not subject to sudden changes of temperature. A little cod liver oil emulsion spread thinly on a crust, piece of biscuit, or cake, or anything similar the bird will eat, will assist in keeping up its strength. Report progress in fourteen days, and then state not only its condition but also how the bird has been and is then fed.

BREEDING BUDGERIGARS (L. S. D.).—(1) I have only heard of one or two instances of one cock fertilising two hens; it more usually ends in a continual state of bickering between the two hens, with the consequent result of an almost barren season. Under similar conditions I should certainly either remove the hen or procure another male; in your case the latter for preference. (2) No, there are not large and small varieties of Budgerigars, only the respective colour varieties of the Green species (Myiopsittacus undulatus). There certainly are large and small specimens; but these occur with every species. Breed only from large and finely-plumaged birds, and your young birds will be satisfactory. True, a few small specimens will turn up,

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 11 "Goldfinches," No. 16 "Aradavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pchlin Robin," No. 20 "Iparbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

AMAZON PARROT WITH COLD (3) (Omega).—Spray or bathe the nostrils daily with a tepid dilute solution of glyco-thymoline till the running ceases. Continue the use of the squills mixture for another fortnight, with the exception of every fourth day, when instead give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water. The regular menu should consist of seed mixture, ripe fruit, and nuts; cuttlebone and Parrot grit being continually kept in the cage. Extras to vary the dietary, a little may be supplied at intervals, such as dry boiled potato, raw carrot, stale crusts, pieces of biscuit, and plain cake. Keep a chunk of wood in the cage for it to exercise its mandibles upon. The most robust of birds must be kept out of draughts, and if this precaution be taken, Amazon Parrots are a hardy group. It would be well to continue the laxative for at least a month, and when you cease giving the squills mixture, to lightly colour the drinking water with chemical food when not giving the laxative.

FLINT GRIT FOR SEED EATERS (Mrs. Thomas).—This is excellent for Bengalese and all seed eaters, as also is pulverized oyster shell. Shell is objected to by some as causing crop perforation, but I have never had a case all the years I have kept birds, and I certainly believe properly pulverized shell to be quite harmless. If you care to send me a stamped addressed envelope per the Editor, I will send you a small sample of what I use in conjunction with flint grit. One does not need to overdo these things. A pinch of each daily on the top of the bird sand is ample and fully meets the case. Not to use it at all is to deprive the bird of its teeth.

BUDGERIGARS AND FINCHES (L. Scott).—My advice is to separate the Budgies from the Finches permanently, as in spite of apparent instances of immunity, there is another side to the story, viz., a sad toll of maimed and injured birds, and the young Budgies, once they are independent, are worse offenders than the adult birds. Undoubtedly the best way to produce good healthy stock is to separate the sexes between November and February inclusive, and to only put picked (large size, well feathered, perfect in every way) birds up for breeding—by such means inbreeding and all the evils that follow in its train will be avoided. See also reply to "A. F. J." in this issue.

AILING GREY PARROT (Mrs. Filby).—Very probably you may see this reply too late to be of any avail. Keep the bird in really warm quarters and where the temperature will be pretty even day and night. I do not think the trouble is a cold. Continue to give warm milk prepared as follows:—Teaspoonful condensed milk, eight drops cod liver oil emulsion, two drops laudanum, and half a teaspoonful of cornflour, beat together with a little water, then add about one ounce of boiling water and well stir together; allow the bird to sip at this at intervals during the day, and continue its use till the bird's condition becomes normal, when it should be gradually discontinued. Keep seed in the cage, but till it is heartily eating of same again, break up an arrowroot biscuit, put half a teaspoonful of chemical food over it, and then add as much boiling water as the biscuit will absorb. The cage tray should be kept very clean, and the voiding removed at once and burned. As soon as the trouble yields to the treatment you had better write again, fully describing its condition and symptoms.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATIELS."

By C. P. ARTHUR. 6d. post free.

Is a splendid guide-book to perhaps the most interesting and profitable side of foreign bird-keeping. It tells you all you need know.

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE PRACTICAL AND COMPREHENSIVE

WORK WHICH ALL HYBRID BREEDERS REQUIRE.

BEAUTIES
BEDFORD.

The bird at the left is the clear buff cock, owned by Mr. G. Notley, Bedford, which won 1st in the open section. It is a bird of excellent type, with a bold head, and feathers of lovely texture. The grand yellow cock at the top won 1st in novice section for Mr. Thompson, Bedford, for its fine size and condition, combined with all round quality; and the third bird in our picture is a clear buff cock of fine size and type, which also excels in quality; it won 1st in its class in the novice section for Mr. B. Coley, Bedford.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the trans-

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

GOLDFINCHES, Linnets, Chaffinches, Greenfinches. What a sale the Worcestershire birds have had; it is true they cannot be beaten. Mr. Mills, 132, Lavender-hill, London, writes, Dec. 30, "Sir, the last lot of Goldies I had from you have turned out champions, one a perfect stormer, and fit to win anywhere, it sings day and night, and I would not sell it for twenty times the price I paid for it." No bunkum; editor holds original, and I have hundreds more like it. They always give satisfaction. I have now a large stock of cock Goldfinches in hand, the finest birds I have had, and will make their mark wherever they go. I do not show; customers have full benefit of my birds, that is why I do so well. All birds on hard seed. Cocks from 2/6 each, three for 5/6; a few picked very large cocks, certain mulers, 3/6 and 4/6 each, three for 8/6; extra special, superb show condition, cocks, 5/6, 7/6, and 10/6 each, certain winners; extra fine lot of cock Brown Linnets, caged a month, 1/6 each, three for 2/6; few make contest singers, 1/6 each, three for 3/6; few picked for size and markings, 2/6 and 2/6 each; cock Chaffinches, 9d. each; selected for size and song, 1/6 each; monster Greenfinches, 9d.; big yellows, 1/6 and 1/6 each; travelling cage 3d. and 6d. extra; all birds warranted sound and healthy, and sex guaranteed.—Bedford, late Gores, 131, Gooch-st., Birmingham. FULL CHRISTMAS ATTRACTION

Thousands of people this Christmas paid a visit to the Hull Parks, which are some of the finest in England, containing some very fine bird aviaries, that were of great interest, especially a pair of rare Parakeets that have reared several fine youngsters; we were told these, with many other fine birds, were supplied by Mr. Day, Hull's well-known bird specialist, which caused us to pay Mr. Day a visit. There we found the greatest attraction of all—hundreds of British birds of all descriptions, all in outdoor aviaries and bird rooms, which are very clean and up-to-date. There are some grand specimens amongst them. One aviary belonging to Mrs. Day contained a grand lot of foreigners. These are not for sale. We next visited the indoor rooms, which are well stocked with Canaries, Mules, and some fine hybrids, Greenfinch-Redpoll, Siskin-Redpoll, Goldfinch-Bullfinch, and various other crosses, also some fine yellow Mules; truly a grand lot. There is also one room for Rollers, and a grand lot they are; we had some fine song. Next place was the Parrot aviary, containing a fine lot of acclimatised birds, some grand talkers. We heard one Grey (Mr. Day has refused £16 for this) he keeps to train young ones. There are also some fine Macaws; one very large scarlet Macaw, on stand, a most wonderful talker; talk to any stranger, and very plain. At the back of the aviaries are poultry, ducks, geese, pigeons, rabbits, caviars, ferrets, etc. Any visitor with a day to spare will find plenty to interest them at Mr. Day's, 77, Porter-st., Hull.—A Visitor. (167)

REV. C. B. JOLLIFFE

At the special request of a working man I have purchased of Mr. H. C. Smith, the well-known exhibitor, and the judge of Yorkshire at the Welsh National, a pair of excellent unlighted birds of the value of 35/-. Owing to financial difficulties this novice, unfortunately, has gone back on his word, and I, not being a breeder of Yorkshire, have these birds on my hands. They are bred from the choicest winners, and are a genuine bargain. The first postal order for 25/- gets the pair: "Carisbrooke," 19, Pontcanna-st., Cardiff. (159)

CLEARING OUT

I have 60 Yorkshires, with some of the best blood in the country in their veins, but owing to present conditions I shall have to dispose of my entire stock; all appointments to be made by post: J. Harrop, 17, Weller-rd., Walkley, Sheffield. (158)

25/- WORTH FOR 12/6

In order to reduce my large stock of Yorkshires to make room for breeding, I offer three grand long slim yellow cocks, over 7in. long, with lovely buff hens to match, also three very big buff stock cocks, with charming yellow hens to match, at 12/6 a pair. These are honest value at 25/- a pair, and I will send to any address in United Kingdom on six days approval on receipt of cash; cash returned in full if not satisfied; travelling boxes 3d.: Edwin North, Breeder, 443, Manchester-rd., Bradford. (161)

The Shows.

WEST STANLEY (Workmen's Club)

4th annual members' show, Dec. 4 and 5, when we had a record entry of 337 exhibits. Mr. J. Stanger judged cage birds, and gave complete satisfaction. We are fortunate in having a good hall; all stock was well staged, and the show stewards, with our worthy Chairman, Mr. J. Arncliffe, at the head, worked very hard, and had everything in good order. We had a gift class for local soldiers, and it realised £12s., which was handed over to the local fund. The show stewards were G. Lane, R. Peart, M. Hall, J. Nicholson, W. Kilty, J. Metcalf, T. Taylor. The Management Board and officials helped both with donations and specials. Awards were as follows: Yorks., Yell. or Buff, Ck. (8): 1, 3, Gowlard; 2, 4, Hutchinson. Hen (7): 1, sp. 4, Gowlard; 2, Kilty; 3, Hutchinson. Bord. Ck. (8): 1, sp. 2, 3, Bates; 4, Metcalf. Hen (8): 1, sp. 2, 3, Bates; 4, Roxborough. Nor. Ck. (14): 1, sp. 2, Bates; 3, 4, Gowlard. N. MANCHESTER C.B.S.

Annual show held Nov. 27, at Balmoral Hotel, where 142 birds were exhibited, and judged by Mr. J. Beswick, of Stockport. The judges awards were well received, and although the day was bad the show was well patronised by the public.

ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.B.S.

The Altrincham Open C.B.S. is commencing the New Year with a balance of £5 8s. 6d., besides other assets. This must be considered very favourable, as during the greater portion of its two seasons' working it has had to reckon with the war troubles. All credit is due to the members who have contributed to this success. Next meeting, Jan. 12, Station Cafe, for election of officers, 8 p.m.—C. Bailey, Hon. Sec.

The Editor is always glad to receive and consider suitable contributions, whether articles, sketches, or photographs. Provided an addressed envelope, sufficiently stamped, accompanies some, every effort will be made to return unaccepted contributions promptly, but he does not in any case hold himself responsible for their safety.

All matter intended for publication must be written or typed on one side of paper only, and must reach us not later than the first post on Tuesday
 if insertion in the next issue is desired.

THANKS FOR GOOD WISHES.

It has been a source of great pleasure to note that nearly every communication, business or otherwise, received from our readers during the past week has contained expressions of good will towards CAGE BIRDS and its staff, and hopes for continued prosperity. We heartily thank our readers for their kindly thoughts, and reciprocate their good wishes. There are signs of a welcome break in the clouds that have been so long hovering over all, and that the brighter future which will surely come may come speedily is the wish of our Editor and staff to all readers of CAGE BIRDS.

Twitterings.

Will show secretaries, etc., please note that I have removed to 11, Union Street, Beeston, Notts., writes Mr. T. H. V. Hayter.

Please inform local fanciers, writes Mr. F.
 C. Gardner, Liverpool, that I already supply a local exhibitor, and cannot supply others in the city.

Mr. J. Hodder, the well-known Norwich specialist and judge, writes to say he has removed from Bauner Street, St. Luke's, to Waltham, Ashurst Road, North Finchley, N.

In the schedule for Llanelly show, writes
 Mr. D. H. Davies, bon. sec., Special No. 1 should read for Yorks. Canary open section, and Special No. 25 should read best fourth in Class 43.

Please announce, writes Mr. Geo. Sawyer,
 3, Wilson Street, Alfreton, that Geo.
 Beardsall, late sec. of Alfreton C.B.S., has resigned; that all communications should be addressed to me.

An Address Wanted.

To one of my advertisements, writes Mr.
 H. Levy, 614, Fulham Road, S.W., I received a reply from Mr. Chris Hatton, Brighton, who omitted to give his address. I shall be obliged if he will send his full address.

Prize Money Paid.

We are informed that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows; if any winners have been overlooked, they should apply to the respective secretaries:—

To Club Secretaries and Others.

With the view of bringing up-to-date
 our directory of Cage Bird Societies,
 which is so useful a feature of CAGE
 BIRDS ANNUAL, and in order to eliminate those societies which have ceased to exist, we should be obliged if the secretary of each active society throughout the country would send us on a postcard short particulars embodying—the name of the society, date of foundation, place, date and time of meetings, annual subscription, entry fee, if any, and his own name and address. We append a specimen entry, and no other particulars
 are necessary.

Edinburgh C.B.S., founded 1911, meetings
 Cairn's Memorial Hall, George Road, third
 Tues in month, at 8; sub. 4s. 6d., ent. fee
 6d.; sec., J. C. Charlton, 33, Watson Crescent, Edinburgh.

The ANNUAL for 1916 is now in course
 of active preparation, and we should be glad if secretaries will furnish at their earliest convenience the particulars desired.

Judges who wish their names inserted
 in our yearly feature "Cage Birds Judges" should also send in their names and addresses, with initials, giving the varieties in which they specialise.

There is said to be this season a record visitation of Fieldfares and Redwings, presumably driven south by the severity of the early winter.

We have a letter signed "Novice," but without either the name or address of the sender, asking for advice as to hand-washing birds. If "Novice" will send his name and address we shall have pleasure in inserting his letter.

Corrections in Show Reports.

At South Shields, 1st in Yorks Yell., and 3rd in Unfig. hens should be Everett, not Emmett. In Shettleston report, 3rd in old Bord. buff hens should be Howieson, and in young Yorks yell. hen (confined) Mr. Howie-son won 2nd as well as 3rd.

Our Birthday Number

NEXT week we are publishing our fourteenth Birthday Number, and advertisers should not fail to read the announcement published on page 363. Essays for our prize competition, as announced on page 355 in our last week's issue, should be posted to reach us not later than Monday next, Jan. 10. Envelopes should be endorsed "Competition" in the top left hand corner, and should be addressed "The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C." A superb coloured plate by our artist, Mr.
 Norman, will be given away, and readers should avoid disappointment by giving their orders early to their newsagent.

OBITUARY.

MR. S. HADWIN (Liverpool).

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. J. W.
 Metcalfe, Liverpool, that I have to inform you of the death of Mr. Sam. Hadwin. He was one of our best fanciers, and was once the life and soul of the Green Canary Association. The club was never so prosperous as when Sammy held the reins; he studied the members more than he did himself. Still another link has gone from the strong chain that held the Green Fancy together.

MR. GEO. SCOTT (Haddington).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. J. Fairgrievie, sec., East Lothian C.B.S., that I have to announce the sad loss our Society has sustained in the death of our President, Mr.
 George Scott, who passed away on Dec. 26.
 Mr. Scott had been in failing health for some time, but his death came as a surprise to his many friends. He had been a fancier for over 30 years, Scotch fancies being his favourites. He was 65 years of age, and was very highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by a widow, three sons, and a daughter; two of his sons are serving with the Colours. I am sure that all who knew him will extend their heartfelt sympathy towards the widow and family.

Breeding and Preparing Yorkshires for the Show Bench.

By BIRD-LOVER.

This article, by an experienced exhibitor, tells the novice how he himself may achieve success in breeding, colour-feeding, and exhibiting the Yorkshire Canary.

IN preparing Yorkshires for the breeding season, usually beginning in April, I must take you back to January, for from that time forward your birds will need extra care and judicious feeding. We will presume you have parted with all surplus stock, and in your mind's eye have mated up the remaining birds, your hens are in the flights, and the cocks caged off separately.

At the end of January start giving your cocks egg food, not too generously, say twice a week, a tit-bit on alternate days in the way of mixed seeds, and the bath on five, warm days.

The hens, which are getting more exercise, and come into condition much sooner than the males, should not have egg food until the beginning of March, and then in the same quantity as to cocks. A little Inga at this time will give them down, but do not overdo it; once a week is quite enough, and see that it is omitted in their mixed tit-bit.

Green food in any of its best forms, such as lettuce, chickweed, etc., and a small piece of apple can be given to advantage, but care must be taken that none of these is left to decay within reach of the birds.

If you follow this advice your birds should be in rare fettle when the time comes to mate up, but remember the months between now and then mean the difference between a good and bad season.

Let us suppose they are fit, and the time has come for pairing up, the cocks singing incessantly, and the hens flying from perch to perch calling to them, making your room a regular Bedlam.

Put the hens in their respective cages, and if using double breeders, place the cock in the next compartment, slipping in the wire slide so that they may become acquainted. If using singles, hang the cock in front, preferably in a show cage. When sufficiently introduced, and they are seen to be on friendly terms, put the cock in with her, not being anxious if they at once set to and have a "battle royal," this is only their little way of deciding who is to carry the hatch-key, and when that difference is settled, peace invariably reigns.

I have taken for granted you are running one cock to one hen. Some fanciers prefer two hens to one cock, but to my mind you get more stamina in the progeny, and better results the former way.

Give just a little nesting material at this time to save her lord and master from losing a few feathers, but until she seriously starts to put her house in order, do not be too generous.

As a general rule you may look for the first egg in from ten days to a fortnight after mating up, but rest assured her ladyship will give you full warning of its approach. You will find her listless, breathing perhaps with difficulty, or hunting round the bottom of the cage as though in search of some refresher; these are sure signs, and on peeping into the nest a day or two later you will most likely find her first egg. This must be removed at once, and a dummy substituted, not until the evening of the day she lays her third egg must it be returned.

Now comes the unavoidable question what to do with father. Is he to be separated from his wife, or remain. Some cocks seem to cheer the hen up during incubation, whilst others give her no peace; so, unless by past experience you have learnt his temperament, and found him quiet, it will be much better to remove him. Now we seriously consider the advent of the youngsters, and often alas, count our chicks, etc., but in our case they must be assumed to be fertile, or how can I presently go on to colour feeding?

Feed your hen at this time on plain Canary seed only. On the twelfth day, if it happens to be nice and warm, put in the bath; it will help the chick to break through, the damp feathers of the hen moistening the shell, and in the evening give her a liberal supply of yolk of egg finely grated, and then, well possess your soul in patience for one more night.

Visit your room in the morning "with the lark," but if you find her still on the nest, don't on any account disturb her. Look on the bottom of the cage, and if you see pieces of broken shell, you can proclaim from the housetops you have some chicks.

By the kind permission of Mr. H. F. Witherby, Editor of the monthly magazine "British Birds," we are able to extract from an exhaustive article by Mr. Witherby, entitled: "THE MOULTS OF THE BRITISH PASSERES, WITH NOTES ON THE SEQUENCE OF THEIR PLUMAGES," the portions which refer to such British birds as are generally kept in cages or aviaries.

STARLING (Sturnus v. vulgaris).

ADULTS.—The sexual difference in the adult Starling, although not very marked, is very interesting, the shape of the body-feathers in the two sexes being different. In the females the feathers are rather shorter and broader and not so sharply pointed; thus the buff and grey tips of the feathers are larger in the female, and give the bird a more spotted appearance in all stages of plumage than the male. In summer the adult male often has scarcely a trace of spots, because the tips of its pointed feathers have worn off, while the female loses less of the spots owing to the more rounded tips of the feathers. The metallic colours of the female are also less brilliant, and, on the secondaries and greater wing-coverts, less extensive.

JUVENILE.—As is well known, the juvenile is brown without any metallic colouring. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER.—The juvenile plumage is completely moulted in the first autumn, and the birds become like the adults, except that the tips of the feathers are less pointed even than in the adult female, and consequently the first winter birds of both sexes are considerably more spotted than the adult female. After the second autumn moult they become indistinguishable from the adult.

FAMILY ORIOLIDÆ.

The adult of the Golden Oriole (Oriolus o. oriolus), which is the only member of this family on the British list, has one complete annual moult in autumn and winter (usually apparently from November to January, but sometimes as early as August). The effect of abrasion is scarcely noticeable. The sexual difference is marked, the body-plumage of the female, instead of bright golden-yellow as in the male, being golden-green on the upper-parts, ashy-grey faintly streaked with brown on the throat and breast, and yellowish-white boldly streaked on the belly. Occasionally, however, females have the crown and rump bright greenish-yellow and the under parts yellow, with only faint streaks, but I have not been able to prove whether this plumage is due to age or individual variation.

JUVENILE.—Much like the adult female, but the feathers of the upper-parts and the wing-coverts have pale yellow tips, and the under parts have less distinct streaks. Sexes alike.

FIRST WINTER AND SUMMER.—The juvenile body-plumage is moulted in the first autumn (usually earlier than in the adult), but not the tail, wings, or wing-coverts. After this moult the males become much like the adult female, but rather more yellow on the upper-parts and decidedly more yellow on the under-parts, which are also less strongly streaked. The females are more olive on the upper-parts and less yellow and more strongly streaked on the under parts than the adult female. Both sexes in this plumage have the wing coverts distinctly tipped with yellow. Some males, which are much like the very bright adult females noted above, may be second winter birds, but I have not been able to obtain actual proof of this.

Correspondence.

Proposed East Anglian Association of Norwich Canary Clubs.

SIR,—The breeders and exhibitors of the Norwich Plainhead who have given the matter a little thought must have concluded that the Fancy might be raised to a higher level, that in fact, as far as status goes, there are possibilities similar to those attained by the Royal and National Societies in other branches of nature and industry. This ideal can only be achieved by the organising of the Fancy in such a way as to establish a great National society which shall be the outcome of Plainhead clubs being formed to cover certain areas of the country. Some such clubs are, I believe, in existence; but East Anglia, teeming with fanciers of the Norwich Plainhead, is not in the least centrally organised. There are local societies innumerable which do very good work, and are very necessary to the success of a divisional and National scheme, but the thing required is that the leading fanciers of Norwich, Cambridge, Ipswich, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Lynn, etc., should form a Plainhead club and hold one or two shows each season, not in the same town two years in succession. It is plain to see that if such an organisation of an active kind could be arranged, many benefits would accrue. Prizes of greater value would be possible, interest in exhibiting stimulated, and the distinction of winning much coveted. Moreover the value of the Norwich Canary would be greatly enhanced.

With your kind permission and assistance, Sir, through the columns of our invaluable CAGE BIRDS the formation of the club indicated would be very possible, and it would be of great interest to the writer and his friends, who have long discussed this matter to have the views of fanciers concerned. If encouragement is forthcoming a definite scheme would soon be formulated.

Mems for Canary Owners.

Don't hang your bird in a draught.

Nor above the level of burning lamps or gas lights.

Let the staple food be three parts best canary-seed and one part summer rape.

See that the rape is really summer rape, not charlock or the strong black rape. Summer rape is very small, and of varying shades of brown in colour.

Give hemp-seed and other tit-bits separately from the stock food.

Never forget a little fresh green food daily.

If green food is not available stick a piece of sweet apple between the bars of the cage.

See that the drinking water is renewed daily, and keep the drinking vessel scrupulously clean.

Great Grey Shrike Caught in Ayrshire.

SIR,—A Great Grey Shrike was caught in Beith, Ayrshire, on Dec. 4, in one of the old limestone quarries. I was out trapping Redpolls when the Shrike came over with the intention of capturing the decoy bird, but was caught itself on the limed twigs. I saw it was a stranger to the district, so took it home, and looking up Howard Saunders' Manual of British Birds, I found it was the above-mentioned bird, a female. There was another flying about at the same time. When I put my hand into the cage it would lie on its back and fight with its beak and claws; it drew blood from my fingers three times. It would not take a morsel of food when I was looking at it. I put a dead bird into the cage the following day and kept it under observation for a time through the window. After a while it took the bird upon the perch and commenced to pull the head to pieces. It ate the whole bird, except some feathers. It is well named the butcher bird. I am sorry to say the Shrike died on the Monday, and is now in the hands of Mr. Kirk, taxidermist, Glasgow. It is a somewhat rare visitor to Scotland.

ROBT. KENNEDY,

Colour in the Norwich Plain head.

Its Importance and Its Origin.

SIR,—I must confess myself disappointed in the last article written by Mr. Allsopp under the above heading, for I failed to see any of that fiery tone that is so characteristic of its writer, and I could not help asking myself whether it was possible that it could have been written by the same person as he who dragged the red-herring of Crestbred blood across your page a but a season ago. Was it that his bait did not catch, and so friend Allsopp tries another variety, the Lizard? If this latter fails to attract there is yet another variety, and I would suggest the Border Fancy to improve the eye and wing markings. We have certainly lost in this respect, and while we are about it why not make a blood mixture in the hope that something good may turn up, or even on the old principle of "kill or cure"?

I had thought too that at least one out of the "two or three prominent breeders up north" might have been induced to have told us wherein lies the "responsibility for that wonderful depth of colour." Oh! you naughty boys, why don't you tell us? Please do play fair. But let us take our friend seriously. He wants some green blood, yet advises the person who has it to stick to it. Surely therefore, he, and when I say he I mean we, must make it himself. How can it be done?

First of all, what is the cause of the paleness in colour which we so often see? I think there is little doubt the answer to this is primarily double-buffing, and secondly, breeding with clear birds. Now we find that this paleness of feather generally (not always) goes hand in hand with silkiness or quality of feather, while the hot-coloured bird is harsh in comparison. You may safely say this harshness does not come from the Lizard. I should like to know what my friend W. P. B., of Grantham, thought when he read that "harshness of feather was a characteristic of the Lizard variety." No, no, you are on the right track, but don't run by yourself. Why is it that the Lizard is so full of colour? Green to Green, Green to Green all the way. Does the light begin to dawn? If so, try a pair of Norwich this way, and you may take it from me if you use reasonable care in your selection of "more light than 'dark' birds" there is something in it. The plumage won't be coarse and hairy, oh dear no! but of that lovely quality which causes each feather to blend with the other, making the bird appear as polished marble.

Can I hear someone say "too many circus horses?" Well, try it and see; and for your encouragement I may tell you I have several times bred absolute clears from this mating. Is it not reasonable that breeding clear to clear must in the end breed harshness? Do we not find that some good coloured clears are hard, and if they be mated to other hard clears, quality is sacrificed to colour? Just as there are Bronze Greens and Liverpool Greens, so there are hard Greens and soft or quality Greens, and it is the last one that will win, provided it has the right depth of colour. If that depth be wanting you must breed for it, but there is no need to go to the Lizard or any other variety. Stick to the Plainhead.

Double buffing is not wrong, clear to clear is not wrong, but don't do it too often, or it will do your birds as much harm as roast goose and plum pudding would do you if you had it every day for a month.

FRANK COLE.

SIR,—I am glad to note that Mr. Bastock and myself are in harmony so far as the cinnamon cross for colour is concerned. His 1870 experience, when he saw "cat's-eyes" following the introduction of the lizard, I fear, is not convincing, and really leaves us wondering whether with another "bend of the elbow" he eventually saw the whole cat.

So far as the personal and irrelevant portion of his letter is concerned, I may say that, bearing in mind that my critic has told us of his "lately having returned to this country," and "having purchased some good stock," his frequent reference to the merits of his "Mosely Mixture" specially recommended for novices, his bombastic challenges of his own shortcomings at Cheltenham show, and lastly the spectacle he now presents of abjectly grovelling in the dust to the merits of another bird and its breeder, who long since earned the wholesome regard of us all, I admit offer a rare opportunity to draw a hair from the tail of the dog who seemingly would bite me. Perhaps, seeing my friend has the faculty of barking with one end, whilst he wags the other, he will tell us which end of him we are to believe, or, better still, give us a little of his 46 years' experience, of which I understand he is proud, and for which our tails are wagging—at least the one of

E. W. ALLSOPP.

Thirteen Tons of Larks in One Day!

SIR,—Writing in the "Farmer and Stock-breeder" in reply to a querist, "W. J. M.", says:

"Though pestered by Larks and Starlings many years ago, and often since, I have never known how to stop their ravages. One may partially do it by constant scaring and firing, but the birds soon get careless of disturbance. Poisoned grain would soon clear them off, but you would get into trouble if you used it, though I have long thought that it should be allowed with notice to the police. The harm done is so serious that minor reasons against it should be set aside. When food is so badly needed it is criminal to place hindrance in the way of corn production. I do not think the larks get so far as Northamptonshire, but south of Bedford to Royston they catch Larks in almost any number by snaring, especially in snowy weather. As giving some idea, in the big frost twenty-one years ago, a man in my employ caught 17,000 in less than three weeks, his biggest catch in one day being 1,600, though this is by no means a record. At the same time five tons of Larks passed through Hitchin station on Monday, followed by thirteen tons on the following day. These were all caught on single hair horsehair snares, a larker usually working eight to ten lines, each about 200 yards long, a snare being tied on at each three inches. When there is no snow the catching is very slow, as the birds do not pack so closely and it is more difficult to snare them, as they do not trip into the snares and get caught above the spur so readily as when the feet sink through the snow. You might possibly get a snarer from the Royston district to work. That is the metropolis of the lark-snaring industry."

If the statements contained in this are accurate, the keeping of a few Skylarks in captivity would not seem to matter much, so far as the Lark population of our country-side is concerned. In any case, bird-catching is as important to the farmer as rat or mole-catching, and should be encouraged.

Should Present-day Exhibition Lancashires be Abolished?

SIR,—Mr. Fuller has extended his remarks on "The Present-day Lancashire" to Crests this week. "The Crest buyers are off. The Crest fancy is going down; the moneyed men are spending their time and money motoring, etc., etc." So, presumably, the writer of those statements is about to graciously decree the scrapping of another variety after the Lancashires have been tucked away to rest.

Is not Mr. F. entirely in error respecting the Crest fancy? Crests are still in good demand, in spite of war and hard times. Two were sold for £25 each, I believe, at the recent Cheltenham show, and the same figure was offered for another which the exhibitor would not part with. Has not a celebrated breeder sold his stock lately for £700 to a "moneyed man"? Was not £15 paid for a Crest at a North of England show the week before the Cheltenham show? Are there not more and more Crest breeders and exhibitors appearing on the scenes, and are there not some grand exhibits this winter?

At any rate, I do know this, that, as a quite obscure breeder, I am having and refusing offers quite unsolicited, and not advertised for, in spite of "buyers being off" and "spending their time motoring instead." Yes, Mr. Fuller, they are "off"—to the Front, many of them, and their motoring just now is in military cars or lorries, but they are coming back.

A Great Joint Show for London.

Now Arranged After Many Difficulties.

SIR,—It may interest your readers to know that the Joint Members' Club Show of the London C.B.A., National British Bird and M.C., and Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League will be held at Holborn Hall on Feb. 2 and 3. This show is also open to anyone joining one or all of the three societies before Jan. 22. New members may compete for ordinary prizes in any section of the show, and for special prizes of the society they join, and the subscription holds good for the ensuing season. An exhaustive classification has been provided in all sections. Messrs. Crisp, Curtis and Robson will judge Canaries, Messrs. Dewhurst and Prior British Birds. Mr. Robson, Canary and British Hybrids, and Messrs. Cooper, Townsend, and Watts, Foreign Birds. The Canary section will be managed by the L.C.B.A., the British by the N.B.B. and M.C., and the foreign sections will be controlled by the F.B.E.L. The general management has been left to me, and I shall be pleased to answer any communication relating to the show or from anyone wishing to join either of the societies.

Booming the Yellowhammer.

SIR,—With reference to my offer of a 5s. special to any winner of an open Yellowhammer class in Great Britain this year, I beg to state that the first prize has been dispatched to Mr. W. Lloyd James, of Pembroke, Herefordshire, the winner in the Yellowhammer class at Watford show, Dec. 8.

Attempt to Suborn and Black-mail a Judge at Ayr.

SIR,—I failed to get in touch with your reporter at Ayr show, but trust you will give the committee credit in allotting all surplus to the Red Cross Fund. The cards were a unique souvenir, the design thereon being a red cross. The show was well patronised by visitors and exhibitors. Goldfinches and Linnets totalled almost 60 entries, and other classes were strong in numbers and quality. A regrettable affair and somewhat of a sensation was the disqualifying of the 3rd prize Goldfinch for staining; the test being applied, left only one room for doubt, and this was not put forward by the owners, Messrs. Conkie and Loudon.

I had the disagreeable task of denouncing a prominent exhibitor for attempting to bribe me to advance his birds, but a committee being formed to adjudicate I was instructed to proceed with the judging and to allot a reserve prize in each class, with the proviso that if the delinquent did not make a full confession of his guilt and an ample apology in presence of all the members, his disqualification be made the alternative, and published. I enclose the proofs, as it was somewhat of an attempt at blackmail. Confession and apology were made. My reason for notifying you of this is because I know that corrupt practices are getting much too common in Scotland, a similar case happening at Edinburgh recently, the evidence being conclusive. I think more drastic punishment of offenders would perhaps help to stamp it out. It is difficult to bring the guilt home, however, as though I have repeatedly been approached, it has until this occasion always been verbally, or in the nature of an insinuation.

I have also been asked by many fanciers why I have ceased writing, so I should be glad if you would kindly explain that my spare time is almost entirely devoted to Red Cross work in the capacity of instructor to Voluntary Aid Detachments, of which I am Quartermaster. I must confess I am more proud of my proficiency Red Cross and my two gold medals than any honours I could attain in the avicultural arena.

J. STEEL.

[The letters sent by the exhibitor in question to Mr. Steel are in our possession, and are as follow. It would appear from a letter sent to Mr. Steel by Mr. H. M. Ferguson, the hon. sec. of Ayr C.B.C., that Mr. Lyall, whose name appears in the signature to letter No. 1, is serving his country in the trenches, and cannot therefore be responsible for the letters.—ED. "CAGE BIRDS."]

(Letter No. 1.)

Ayr, 15th Dec., 1915.

SIR,—I hope you will excuse me for writing to you, but you will know by this time it is your Bathgate acquaintance, W. Lyall and Co., that is (sic) bringing you here, as you know what M— did, as I know all that happened between M— and you on Saturday even to the buying of the Bullfinch hen from —, Newtongrange. If the members come to know this, what will they think? I won Lochgelly and Glasgow and District with Linnet, second with the "Poll you called a little don when third at Bathgate F.M. class. We have a good team, but to make things sure we want to see if you will oblige by helping us, as we are favourites down here. If not, please say nothing to M— or any other body, and it will cause no trouble. Please write and let us know by the end of the week and oblige.

(Signed) GRIBBEN AND LYALL.

Ayr, Dec. 20th, 1915.

Dear Sir,—In answer to your letter, I am quite willing to come to terms with you either in cash or wild birds, as I supply McQuiston and most of the fanciers, such as Dr. Wilson and Parlett, and Gentleman, also Calder of Whitburn, so I could give you F.M. Bullfinch, F.M. Linnet, F.M. Greenfinch, F.M. Chaffinch, and F.M. Goldfinch, so you can write and let me know if you will have the birds or the money. You need not be afraid of M—, as I have given the numbers to the judges for him myself, so I am sending on my numbers: Siskin Mule, City of Glasgow and Bathgate winner, Class 38, No. 1; Linnet, Glasgow winner, Class 41, No. 3; F.M. Linnet, Class 42, No. 3; Goldfinch, Class 39, No. 3; Bullfinch, Class 40, No. 4; Twite, Class 44, No. 1; Lesser Redpoll, Class 45, No. 2; Bullfinch Hen, Class 49, No. 2. When you see these birds I think you will have no hesitation in putting them first. M— does not show in Goldfinch class. M— and me are stewards in the Norwich section; you will easily know me, as I want the foot; hoping to hear from you soon.

Yours,

The Danger of Paraffin Lamps.

Sixty Canaries Destroyed by an Explosion.

SIR,—It is with great regret I have to inform you that Messrs. A. J. and A. S. Wilkins, two respected members of the Leyton C.B.A., have lost the whole of their Yorkshires by the explosion of a paraffin lamp in their bird-room. I visited them immediately after the accident, and I can assure you, sir, the sight of a whole stock lying dead, some sixty birds in all, was a heartbreaking one. This is not the first time misfortune has overtaken these two fanciers, yet they are not giving up in despair, but are anxious to make a fresh start. Such pluck and determination are surely worthy of every encouragement, and we are therefore raising a fund with the object of helping them. We should be glad if any kind-hearted reader who would like to assist will please communicate with our hon. sec., Mr. T. Collinge, 29, Balmoral Road, Leyton, N.E. A. W. FARMER, Hon. Asst. Sec., Leyton C.B.A.

The Nightingale as a Pet Bird.

SIR,—Perhaps it would interest your readers to know that a Nightingale which I got in June has commenced to sing. I keep him in the kitchen since the extreme cold set in, and about Dec. 23 he began a low, deep warble. His voice has gradually become louder, and the song longer, and just now he sings for about two minutes at a time.

He sings frequently during the day, but at night he generally begins his concert about 7 o'clock, usually the time I arrive home, and probably with the object of coaxing from me some dainty morsel of food, which, needless to say, he gets.

Outsings the Canary.

He is exceedingly steady and fearless, and seems to sing the louder the more noise the children make; no movement made by any of the inmates of the house seems to disconcert him in the least. The turning on of the water tap, the playing of the violin, or the rustling of paper seems to set him off. He also insists on drowning the feeble voice of the Canary, which sometimes is audacious enough to chime in.

Is it a Sprosser?

His voice is very deep and strong, and he is the largest 'Gale' I have ever seen. I was wondering if he might be what is known as a "Sprosser." As he is the first 'Gale' I have got to sing with me, I am naturally delighted, and I should be very pleased to hear from other 'Gale' keepers, through CAGE BIRDS, details of when their birds started singing, and particulars of the increase of volume of their song.

Bird Friends.

Have Birds Likes and Dislikes?

SIR,—I have read F. T. U.'s article on his bird friends with the greatest interest, and should be glad if he would kindly tell how he trained his Larks to stop springing. I have never been able to do it with wild-caught birds, and the tip would be worth having, though I think the real reason is that birds take to certain persons. For instance, my wife seems able to do anything with the wildest of them. I once had a wild-caught Starling that would fly on her head and pull all her hair-pins out and let her hair down. When he had done it he would fly back to his cage and "sing his head off." A Bullfinch took seeds out of her mouth, and a Missel Thrush, the wildest beggar I ever had, would let her stroke it. I never did tame that bird; in fact, all birds seem afraid of me, and I cannot tell why. Wishing you and all a better New Year.

Joint Show for East London.

SIR,—As intimated to you earlier in the year, the Poplar, East Ham and Leyton Societies have decided to hold a joint show open to members of the three clubs on Saturday, Jan. 16. The exhibits will be judged by Mr. H. Norman, and the show will be held in the East Ham Liberal Club, opposite the Town Hall. The members of the societies interested, finding that the L.C.B.A. show being cancelled has robbed them of an opportunity of exhibiting their stock, have decided to adopt this method of keeping the Fancy alive in these districts. I should be greatly obliged if you could intimate through your columns that any member of either society who has not received a schedule can have one on application to me.

Club Reports.

HIGHGATE & HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held at headquarters Jan. 8. Election of officers for ensuing season. Unanimously resolved to exert all efforts to make society a great success, to arouse local interest, and obtain large membership. Attractive programme outlined, including table shows, lectures, etc., on all meeting nights. Officers elected: Vice-president, G. Gardner, Esq.; chairman, Mr. F. Johnston; vice-chairman, Mr. H. T. Dean; committee, Messrs. J. Carrington, E. T. Bush, W. Knight, A. Knight, W. Large, E. Mound, W. Shorter, W. H. Walls, W. Withers, G. Street, E. Way; hon. sec., Mr. J. Hyde. Meeting closed with vote of thanks to chairman. Pair show, Jan. 22. Judge: Mr. John Robson.—F. C. Knight, asst. sec.

LEEDS ROLLER C.C.

Meeting held Jan. 1 at Lockhart's. Mr. T. W. Walton presided over a good attendance. It was decided to hold the annual members' show on Jan. 29, at rooms yet to be decided on. Letters were read from other Roller clubs in respect to the ring question, and all were greatly in favour of some such scheme being brought forward in the Roller fancy as was suggested by the Leeds club. Mr. Scott, of Morecambe, and Mr. Wetherhill, of Garforth, were elected members, and we shall be pleased to hear of any more intended members before the 29th, so that they can be elected on that night.—H. Rest, sec.

STANLEY (Empire) F.F. & C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Dec. 26. There was a good turn up of members to show their appreciation of the services of our chairman, Mr. R. Peart, and treasurer, Mr. James Smith, when we presented them with a pipe and pouch each. Mr. James Lamb presented the gifts, and the recipients feelingly responded, thanking the members for their gifts and wishing them success in the coming year. We paid 13/6 a class for a 6d. entry, which compares well with any show in the North. The following were elected for 1916: chairman, Mr. R. Peart; vice-chairman, W. T. Brown; treasurer, Mr. J. Smith; secretary, R. Hutchinson. It was suggested that the clubs in the district should run a show for the local soldiers' fund. Will secretaries please note and let us have a combined meeting to see what we can do. Let us help those who are fighting our country's battles.—Robt. Hutchinson, sec.

NORTHERN NORWICH P.C.

The season for 1915 is now completed, but we might have been better supported by our novice members; only two of the silver spoons out of five awarded have been won, and only four of the champions. A few of our last year's members have not paid their subs for 1915, and have not exhibited at any of our patronage shows; the reason why is best known to themselves, but the few of us that are still members will keep the ball a rolling, and expect better times to come when all gets settled down again. Sp. winners: Champ. points trophy, A. Holden, 57 points; runner-up, C. McKay, 51. Young bird eup, C. McKay. Silver spoon winners: Newcastle, A. Holden; Blaydon, C. McKay; Haltwhistle, J. Pierson; Gateshead, R. Glendinning. Novice points trophy, J. Bell, 54 points; runner-up, H. Bird, 16; silver spoons, Newcastle, J. Bell; Blaydon, H. Bird.—F. W. Laidlow, Sec.

BORDER FANCY C.C.

Annual general meeting, Cathedral Hall, Edinburgh, Jan. 1, Mr. Patterson, vice-president, in the chair. The minutes of Patronage Committee meeting were read and adopted. The proposal by R. T. Campbell that the club grant an intermediate medal between novice and champion did not find a seconder. The Sec. brought up a claim by Wm. Hay for both medals, novice and open, won at Hartlepool, and produced Mr. Hay's entry form, which was not marked novice, which members decided he was not competing for novice medal, which was awarded to Mr. Watson. Decided that anyone showing from the same house as a champion must be held as a champion. The balance-sheet was read, and showed an income, including balance from 1914, of £53 13s. 7d., and an expenditure of £37 11s. 1d., leaving a balance in favour of the club of £16 2s. 6d., which the members considered very satisfactory, and the balance-sheet was adopted. Sec. read a letter from Wm. McAdam, reporting G. W. Brown for sending his class numbers for Edinburgh and Dis. show, at which Mr. McAdam was judge, and he forwarded the letter and class numbers so that members should deal with same at the meeting. The Sec. read G. W. Brown's resignation, and the Chairman asked for a very hearty vote of thanks for the straightforward way Mr. McAdam had reported such a case, and it was very heartily responded to. It was proposed to suspend G. W. Brown for three years, and there were two amendments, one for one year's suspension and another for all time. A vote taken resulted as follows: 3 years, 19 votes; one year, 4 votes; and for all time, 3 votes. The three years' suspension being carried by a majority. Sec. was instructed to write Mr. Brown and let him know members' decision. Election of office-bearers resulted in Mr. Patterson being proposed and seconded for president, but he thanked the members for the honour they had done him, but there was only one man for the vacancy, in his opinion, and that man was Mr. Jamieson, who was unanimously elected, and he thanked the members for the great honour they had done him and assured them he would always do his best in the interest of the club. Mr. D. Hamilton, of Hamilton, was elected on Patronage Committee in place of G. W. Brown, and it was decided that no society get patronage unless their application be in time for patronage meeting on the last Saturday of August each year. The Sec. drew members' attention to the fact that under present war conditions some societies did not know in August if they could get a hall for show purposes. Mr. Jas. Johnston also spoke on the great difficulty in getting a hall in some districts, and the members agreed to allow this matter to stand over to end of war. The rest of office-bearers were re-elected. Auditors, Mr. S. Englass and Mr. Jas. Lumsden. The Chairman asked Mr. Lumsden if he could give any idea how the show was likely to turn out. Mr. Lumsden said he was afraid that it would be slightly on the wrong side, and both he and the committee were disappointed with the entries after such a majority in favour of the show, but members present were agreeable to a small levy if necessary, and in the event of the Scottish National show being off in another year, they decided to again hold a show. The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Patterson for the very able way he had conducted the business of the meeting.—W. B. Smart, Sec.

AYR RED CROSS SHOW.

7th open show of the Ayr C.B.C., in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, High St., Dec. 25. There have been greater numbers at this fixture, but certainly never greater merit. All the classes were really good, except in Yorkshire, in which only one class was full, but, despite this, the club let every class stand, though at a loss financially. Borders were a feature, 104 exhibits facing the judge, who was very happy in his selection of Mr. Wm. Mossie's grand buff cock as the Border F.C. medal winner. Norwich came up well, and many of the birds that stood cardless could win at most shows. British were the attraction of the show, and Goldfinches had place of honour with 29 entries. Field-moulted Linnets were very strong, as were also the Lesser Pheasants. This fixture has always been noted for its good management, but it could never have been better managed than on this occasion. Everything worked with the precision of clockwork, and Ayr is fortunate in having secured the services of Mr. Hugh Ferguson as secretary. Irvine's loss has been Ayr's gain. The stewards worked hard and did everything possible for the comfort of exhibitors and the public, who turned up in large numbers in the afternoon. This new hall is a perfect one for a cage-bird show, being lighted from sides and roof, and entirely free from draughts. The judges were A. Baird, Paisley, and T. Dalton, Scotch Fancy; G. Hyslop, Borders and Yorkshires; A. Chalmers, Norwich, and J. Steel, British. One of the British exhibits was disqualified for being "faked," and some others were not above suspicion.

LANCS. AND LIZARD F.A.

Club show, Dec. 4, in connection with the members' show of the Old Original Rochdale O.S., in their club room in Clarke's Place. The room is of good size, and is quite capable of holding three or four hundred exhibits comfortably. The response in Lances and Lizards was very disappointing, only 13 Lances and 30 Lizards being benched. The quality was tip-top all through. There were six classes for Lances, and eight for Lizards. Each exhibitor pays a small sum extra with each entry, and these are given to winner as a special in each class. Mr. Bradley, president of our society, kindly gave 5s. for best Lances, and 5s. best Lizard in show. Mr. Fitton won special for best Lances, with a grand yellow Coppy, and Mr. Barnea won special best Lizard with a very nice broken-cap gold cock. Other special winners were Messrs. Hamer, 2, Barnes 2, Mrs. Burgess 2, and Rukin 2. Mrs. Burgess is a novice member, and has done very well this season. Other novice Lizard exhibitors who have done well are Messrs. Howard, and J. Teasdale. It is encouraging to see new names in our Fancy; wish we could only say the same for the Lancashire. Prize money was paid same day to all members present. Mr. L. Butterworth judged Lancashire, and Mr. A. Schofield Lizards.

LANCS. COPPY, YELL.: 1, G. Fitton; 2, T. H. Collinge. BUFF: 1, 2, Collinge; 3, Fitton. P.H. YELL.: 1, Collinge. BUFF: 1, 2, Collinge; 3, Fitton. A.V. Sladdin and Baldwin. SELF or FOUL GREEN YORKS: 1, Thornton. NOR., ETC.: 1, 3, he, Townsend; 2, 4, vhc, Corney.

This being the last show of the season, and as only four of the season's shows were to count points, the draw was made, and resulted in the June, July, September and annual members' shows counting for the cup competition. The special, a pair of Yorks, for most entries, given by Mr. Stobart, was drawn in favour of July, September, annual members', and December shows. Results: Open sections, 1, Priestley, 51; 2, Sutcliffe, 32; 3, Stobart, 29; 4, Sharp, 29. Novice, 1, W. Horsman, 74; 2, Gelder, 73; 3, Sladdin and Baldwin, 71; 4th, a tie, G. Mitchell and F. Horsman, 40 points each. Entries competition, 1, Gelder, 39; nearest losers, Sladdin and Baldwin, and W. Horsman, 26 each. V.I.C.s competition, 1st, J. Corney. Unflighted competition, for a volume of "Our Canaries," given by Mr. H. Johnson, 1st, E. Priestley, 283 points, nearest losers, E. Stobart and W. Horsman tied, 25 points each. If any error in above points, members please notify sec. early.—A. Sutcliffe, Sec.

DUBMIRE W.M. CLUB C.B.S.

Annual show, Dec. 11-15, in the Club Hall, a grand place for a show. There were a fair number of birds under present conditions, but half of the classes had to be cancelled owing to a lot of the members being away serving "King and Country." Mr. G. S. Lynn is a courteous and obliging sec., and had everything well in hand. Mr. A. J. Nottley, Hutton Downs, judged, and the following are his awards:—Nor. GREAT RED CROSS SHOW AT GLASGOW.

Magnificent Display. Over 1,300 Exhibits.

This show, held Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 in the Central Halls, Bath Street, Glasgow, was inaugurated by many prominent fanciers in Glasgow and the West of Scotland with a view to endowing a bed or beds in one of the Glasgow hospitals. The proceeds, after clearing all liabilities, will be handed over to the Red Cross Society, and from information to hand we feel that we are safe in saying a good round sum is likely to be handed over as the outcome of the undertaking. The halls are the finest in the City in which to hold a show of the kind, plenty of space, plenty of comfort, abundant light; in fact, everything calculated to please the most fastidious was richly in evidence, and the labours of the management were rewarded with a record entry of over 1,300 exhibits, embracing without doubt the cream of the fancy, several specimens on view in the Mule, British, and Foreign sections never having been seen at a Glasgow Show before, and creating a widespread interest amongst the visitors. The management was in the hands of such well-known fanciers as: President, J. F. Park; Vice-Pres., J. McLeay and A. Maxwell; sec. and treas., R. Haggie; assist. sec. and treas., W. Hutchison; show manager, Frank Taylor; committee, R. B. Gibb, P. Houston, A. Sloan, M. Craig, E. Taylor, E. Holliday, C. Martin, A. Smith, R. Jeffrey, E. Crane, T. Fraser, G. Smart, T. Eton, W. Priest, E. Steel, W. Steel, A. Hunter, S. Wood, A. H. McLean, R. Hamilton, A. Crawford, R. Martin, A. C. Chalmers, W. Loan, D. F. Webster, A. Steel, R. Watson, W. Jack, J. Sinclair, A. Chalmers, A. Wilson, J. Swan, P. Clark, W. McClymont, C. Douglas, J. Pinnoch. Special praise is due to the President, Mr. J. F. Park, secs. Haggie and Hutchison, and show manager Taylor, so untiring were they in their efforts to do justice to all, and with the backing at their disposal success was bound to come. The judges engaged were:—Norwich section, Messrs. J. Winter, Edinburgh, and Turner, Manchester. Crests, Mr. J. Young, Rutherglen. Border Fanciers, Messrs. J. Hamilton, Eskbank, G. Hislop, Stirling, Yorkshire and A.O.V., L. Dykes, Bradford. Mules and Foreign Birds, A. W. Watson, Edinburgh. British, Messrs. R. Bald, Bathgate, and H. Jamieson, Glasgow, but Mr. Watson being unable to fulfil his engagement, Mr. Bald deputised for him in the Mules and Mr. Bald in the Foreign. The work was got through in good time, and there was little grumbling heard. Mr. J. F. Park presided at the opening ceremony, which was performed by Sir J. Ure Primrose, in the absence of Lady Ure Primrose. Sir John, after referring to the object of the show, commented on the rearing of canaries and song birds as an industry which might well be developed in this country. The Germans, in past days, were keen enough of vision to grasp the possibilities of huge profit making from the rearing and training of cage birds, and, although startling, it was true that £20,000 worth of song birds were imported to this country annually from Germany, while twice as much, at least, was sent thence to America. At the end of this war there would, no doubt, be a large number of men incapacitated from their usual work, so that in the rearing of song birds they would find not only congenial but very profitable employment. The show was then declared open. The gate money was very gratifying, more especially on the Saturday, considering the fact that quite a few old established ventures came off on the same day. Sales were beyond expectations, so that on the whole everything points in the proper direction.

THE NORWICH CANARIES.

Norwich made a very fine display, all the principal breeders throughout Scotland being represented, and several of the English champions on view. Exhibits were neatly staged in the large hall upstairs—a magnificent one for the purpose, grandly lighted from top and sides, and clear from draughts. It was kept at a fine temperature and there was abundance of room for visitors, who were pleased to see turned out despite the miserable weather. The advertising of the show by posters displayed on all the Glasgow Corporation cars was a grand idea and a fine advert for the Fancy in general. The classification provided was the best out this season, and the entry in this section totalled 300—an average of 15 per class. Quality was of a high standard, the English exhibits catching the eye and capturing a goodly share of the honours. Unflighted classes were particularly strong and contained some outstanding birds with a bright future before them. The novice cock class was the strongest in section, and most of them were very creditable exhibits. Prize money was at the rate of 22s. per class, with an entry of 1/6 per bird, with a goodly array of fine specials for birds out of prize money—a very effective inducement to exhibitors. Championship diploma for best Norwich went to Mr. R. B. Cairns; and for best novice to Mr. D. Somerville. The judges were Mr. Jas. Winter (Edinburgh), who took even numbers, Mr. W. Turner (Manchester) odd, and both acquitted themselves well.

THE CRESTED CANARIES.

The Crest section was the surprise of the show in the way of entries. The best and largest lot of Crests we ever saw in Glasgow, and quality was of a high standard. Exhibitors of this variety were represented from all over Scotland and England, and the way they have responded to the grand classification submitted, and their assistance to the cause was greatly appreciated by the management. They also had the patronage of the S.C.C., with their numerous specials to members, which went to help the success of the show. Unflighted classes were well supported, and brought out some grand youngsters, which looks well for the future of this variety. We were pleased to see a novice class introduced in this section. Although it only received seven entries, we believe by another year this number will be greatly augmented. Entries totalled 130, and the birds were nicely staged in the Lesser hall, which is well adapted for the purpose. Mr. John Young (Rutherglen) judged, and his decisions were well received.

CREST. CK. (11): 1, 2, D. Scott, 1st, Gateshead and Blaydon Cup winner, lovely green, great spread and length of droop, well over beak, nicely radiated from a good centre, rare size and subs., plenty of feather of extra qual.; 2nd, varieg., grand size and subs., fine spread, neat centre, scarcely length of droop nor so good qual.; 3, Whitton, lightly varieg. D.C., fine centre and droop, well up in size and subs., fine qual., not so dense in crest; 4, McClelland, green, grand size and subs., neat crest, fine centre; 5, McMillan; 6, McNaughton; 7, Hamilton. CREST. HEN (10): 1, Radley and Sons, massive spread of excellent qual., lovely droop, well over beak, capital centre, great size and subs., plenty of feather, D.C., cl. body; 2, 4, Jim Taylor; 2nd, varieg., grand size and subs., rare top piece, capital droop and centre, splendid qual. of feather, and plenty of it; 4th, green, neat crest, fine droop and centre, good size and subs.; 3, Noble, green, capital qual. of feather, lovely droop, scarcely the length of those in front, neat centre, well groomed; 5, McMillan; 6, Hamilton; 7, McNaughton. C.B. CK. THE "WEE GEMS."

Borders—the "Wee Gems"—came up well both in numbers and quality, many well known winners once more facing the judges in battle array. One thing much noticed and often commented on is the size which predominates in the green variety. Should there be a special standard for greens? If not, why cannot they be bred the same size and type as the others? They have all the other points characteristic of the breed, why, then, have them on the show benches, some of them little less in size than small Norwicks?

CLR. or TKD. YELL. CK. (13): 1, Thomson, beauty for type, qual. and col., perfect wings, close tail, could be better in head; 2, Hadley, all there for type and qual., fine head, neck, neat carr., style, not just the col. or tightness of feather of leader; 3, Kilpatrick, close up, fine type, neat carr., right qual., fine top end, just a little loose in feather;

4, Purves, fine type, nice carr., good feather, well drawn body; 5, Sellar; 6, Bennet; 7, Boyce. BUFF (9): 1, Bennet, lovely type, grand qual. feather, fine head, neck, well drawn, typical body, neat, all over, in the pink; 2, Kilpatrick, capital built, neatly got up, clean cut and right stamp, fair at top; 3, Sellar, nice weight, well made, neatly balanced, fine head, neck, neat bearing, just wee trifle open in feather; 4, Geddes, nice qual., fine stamp, in the pink, rather ugly beak spoils sweet bird; 5, Purvel; 6, Hadley; 7, Boyce. CLR. or TKD. YELL. HEN (14): 1, Snellie, capital col., grand qual. feather, neat, correct carr. and type, looks trifle fatty on front; 2, Bennet, fine size, type, not just the col. of leader, or so full in head; 3, Ketcher, sweetly built and typical, neat, compact, could do with trifle better rise in head; 4, Macklin, typical, good qual.; 5, Egerton; 6, Brown; 7, Kilpatrick. BUFF (17): 1, Smea, wins B.F.C.C. modal, grand bird, in capital order, neat head, fine neck, neatly moulded body, perfect in carr. and style; 2, Ketcher, fine type, good carr., fails steadiness; 3 and 6, Bennet, 3 sweet type, neat, well braced, in the pink, we thought might have been 2nd; 4, Brown, in top order, nice body shape, fine qual., fails top end; 5, Campbell; 7, Lunn. EVEN MARK (4): 1, McMin, little beauty, neat markings, fine head, neck, nice type and qual., well braced, in the pink; 2, Hamilton, good type, qual., fair style, rather long beak, open feather; 3, Nicholson, smaller built, nice qual.; 4, Armour, we could not find. YELL. VAR. CK. (9): 1, Nicholson, fine stamp, little to find fault with here, staged in perfect condition; 2, Egerton, trifle smaller in build, neat, shapely body, fine wings, stylish, linoly shaped skull, nice rise; 3, Rubie, good qual., typical, well braced, fails bit at throat; 4, Ferguson, fine stamp, neat and shapely; 5, Macklin; 6, Murray; 7, Brown. BUFF (6): 1, Bennet, typical body, good qual. feather, neat carr. and style, but not the best of heads, lucky we thought; 2, Ferguson, shade smaller, neat all over, beats leader; 3, Livingstone, nice cond., type, and carr., good top end, some fancied this as the winner; 4, Brown; 5, Brownie; 6, Ferguson. VAR. HEN (7): 1, Sprott, yell., nice level col., good type and qual., could be shade better across shoulders; 2, Downie, sweet buff, lovely type, grand qual., neat carr. and style, sweet head, neck, in the pink; 3, Geddes, buff, nice feather, neat carr., nice pos., just trifle flat across shoulders; 4, Campbell, nicely staged; 5, Brown; 6, Macklin; 7, Donan and Shepherd. YELL. GREEN (22): 1, Harper, known face all there for type and col., fine carr., very steady, could be shade sweeter in head; 2, Whitlaw, looks a hen, grand col., well pencilled, neat head, neck, beautifully rounded body, nicely braced wings, close tail; 3, Lambie, fine grassy col., richly pencilled body and flanks, neat wings, tail, runs up tight; 4, Johnston; 5, Nicholson; 6, Lawson and Sons; 7, Montgomery. BUFF (22): 1, Nicholson, fine weight, climbing type and col., neat, shapely, well braced, steady; 2, Lunn, perfect feather, lovely col. and type, neat, deserving; 3, Stevenson, heavier built, good col., neat carr., too fat at front; 4, Lawson and Sons, in rare trim, fine head, neck, proportionately built, value for a step higher; 5, Johnston; 6, Shouler; 7, Steel. YELL. CIN. (9): 1, B.F.C.C. novice medal, Robertson, topper, lovely qual. feather, nice ground col., well pencilled, fine head, neck, proper body formation, neat carr. and style, quickly claimed at its low catalogue price, 12s. 6d., a hard hit at the poor novice here; 2, Johnston, shade hotter col., fine type and qual., good wings, close tail, scarcely so beautifully rounded body; 3, Harper, looks like a nice hen, neat, shapely, well balanced through, put down in creditable style; 4, Whitlaw, lovely col. and qual., neat type, fine carr. and style, nice cond.; 5, 7, McLinden; 6, Bennet. BUFF (11): 1, Sellar, little beauty all over, type, col., qual. feather, and neat compact carr. tell the tale here; 2, Brown, good size, jaunty type, fine qual., neatly braced wings, close tail, fails col. only; 3, Crammond, rich col., nice texture feather, neat close pipe tail, just inclined to cross at times; 4, 6, McLinden; 4, nice qual., neat, well drawn, just inclined to crouch when handling; 5, Lunn; 7, Whitlaw. NOV. CK. (20): 1, Henry, little topper, eyes and wings mkl. buff, neat type, grand qual., in the pink, fit to hold its own in the open classes; 2, Loan, wing and eye mkl. yell., shade smaller built, good qual., neat, very fit; 3, 6, Ritchie; 8, fine buff, in top cond.; neat, typical, good silky feather, closely carried; 4, no name, cl. yell., good head, neck, fine type, neat wings and tail, just trifle unsteady; 5, Duncan; 7, Stevenson. ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.B.S.

Annual members' show, Nov. 20, Shop Workers' Institute. 80 birds were staged, and this must be considered a good entry just now. Messrs. Harrison and Vint, and also Mr. P. Drinkwater, did not compete for any specials or the medal competition, which somewhat reduced the amount of competition. Mr. J. Raynes, Chorlton, judged, and his awards were received with satisfaction.

ABERDEEN (AMALGAMATED) C.B.S.

This show was held in the Music Hall on the 18th December. The entry was somewhat less than last year, but, all things considered, 500 entries was satisfactory. Exhibits came from long distances—as far south as Bristol—which shows the fancy has every confidence in railway companies. Many willing workers had everything ready for the judges to start at nine o'clock, and printed catalogues with awards were on sale almost immediately after judging was over. The Norwich in the open section were above average in quality. Many would have won in much larger classes and have done so; for instance, Mr. W. Crawshaw's non-fed cock, Mr. A. Hirst (Aberington), and Mr. Geo. Mitchell (Brechin) had a host of winners that have won at many south shows. In Crests, Mr. John A. Grant (Lossie-moath) had a field day, and well he deserved all he got. He has nothing to learn in the way of staging, as his birds were beautifully put down. He has now got a most valuable stock and in peaceful times will no doubt cross the Border. The amateur section, it is gratifying to report, showed an improvement on last year. Many birds, as one would expect, were weakest in head properties, and many, being the first time out, were very wild. Mr. Wm. Anderson won the cup for most points in this section. The Wild Bird section was very interesting, but we have seen more outstanding birds in the Silver City-by-the-Sea. The fanciers were very harmonious and did everything possible to make the show a success. This is the first year of office as secretary of Mr. R. J. Robertson, and the work he did was stupendous, and we were pleased to see he had so many willing workers assisting him. The society was fortunate in its selection of judges, for all took great pains, and their awards gave every satisfaction. Mr. Alex. Harris (Montrose) took Open section; Mr. Geo. Bennett (Brechin) Amateur section; and Mr. W. Allison (Culter) the Wild Bird section. Mr. G. Edwards's exhibits arrived too late for judging. This is to be regretted, as his Bullfinch and Goldfinch would have been near the top. The pair of Crests were in one cage and were separated, as they went for each other as if they had some old quarrel to finish. Had another cage not been found they would have gone home naked.

NOR. CL. OR TKD. (8): 1, Mitchell, easy win, fine rich col., qual., balanced; 2, Dunn, good sound col., not so sweet on head, and more open in feather; 3, Hector, largest, paler in col., good stock bird; 4, Will, tick back and head, good one, little open in breast; 5, Craigen; 6, Davidson. BUFF (7): 1, Mitchell, great size, grand top end and lovely spread of chest; 2, Hendry, very sweet, rather better qual., but loses in head to winner; 3, Sandison, grand bird, beautiful feather, shade longer; 4, Will; 5, Hendry; 6, Dunn. VAR. YELL. COCK (1): 1, Robertson, a very nice typical chest, well over perch, could win in good company. VAR. BUFF COCK (10): 1, Mitchell, wins, splendid front, type, qual., and size; 2, Forrest, good 2nd, grand balanced and fine short neck, sweet exhibit; 3, Craigen, green, not in it here, plainer all over, shows too much feather, long side; 4, Allison; 5, Hector; 6, Dunn. CL. TKD. YELL. HEN (1): 1, Hector, fine feathered clear. BUFF (4): 1, Taylor, grand type, size and qual.; 2, Craigen, similar, but beaten in size; 3, Hector; 4, Will. VAR. YELL. MANSFIELD.

First annual show, Saturday, Dec. 18, in the Billiard Room of the Horse and Groom Hotel, Sackwell Gate. Entries came up splendidly and no such show has ever been seen in this district; in fact, it made one think of a miniature Nottingham, for the quality was of the very best, and many well-known exhibitors were represented. The birds were very nicely staged and well looked after by a very hard-working committee. Turning to the exhibits, the six classes for Norwich contained some charming specimens; in fact, some of the best in the country, and the same may be said of the Yorkshires. Competition was very keen. British classes contained some well-known specimens. Foreign were quite a failure. Members' classes were keenly contested. Norwich and Crest being extra keen. We were very sorry there were no catalogues, but on account of entries coming in up to Thursday it was absolutely impossible to get them together. The society have a secretary in Mr. B. Gabbitts who would take some beating. He has the job at his finger ends and worked hard all day long, ably assisted by Mr. S. Hawksley. The special for best in show was won by Dr. Craig's noted buff Yorkshire hen, a fine specimen in lovely condition. Mr. John Robson judged and gave the usual satisfaction.

NOR. YELL. CK. (16), wonderful class for qual.: 1, Thomas, beautiful cl., lovely shape, grand head and neck, capital size and body, in fine cond.; 2, Cook, again one of the best, rare shape, size and body, broad head, well filled in neck, well-carried wings and tail, beautiful col. and qual. faultless; 3, Lycett, eye marked, very hot col., good shape and size, nice head, grand body and qual., well filled in chest and neck, splendid feather and cond.; vhc, Fox; hc, c, Vardy. BUFF (16): 1, Sheppard, beautiful cl., grand size and shape, good col. and qual., well-carried wings and tail, nice head, well filled in neck, beautiful feather and condition; 2, 3, Vardy, both clears, leader lovely col. and shape, very jaunty carr., neat well-carried wings, nice body, lovely qual., beautifully shown, 3rd very hot col., grand shape, massive build, rare feather and qual., shone like satin, very close up; vhc, Turner; hc, Butler and Barlow; c, Crawshaw. YELL. CROWTREES W.M. CLUB C.B.S., BOWBURN.

First annual show, Dec. 18-20, in the Club Hall, a nice place with plenty of light and heat available, where birds can be staged to advantage and make a nice show. There is one point the committee would do well to consider. It is to try to make an alteration in their class for members, which now reads: "Members, any variety Canary or Mule." My suggestion to them would be, two or three Canary classes, and one Mule class, prizes to count as points in the respective classes. There were some very nice birds on view, and the show was very well attended on both Sunday night and Monday. Mr. Jos. Huggins made a capital secretary, having everything in apple pie order, and there is a splendid working committee. Mr. A. J. Notley, Hetton Downs, judged and gave general satisfaction. The following are his awards:—Members, A.V. Can. or Mule: 1, Freeman; 2, Routledge; 3, Wilkinson; 4, Wittam; 5, Miller; 6, Roddam; 7, Huggins. Nor. Cl., etc., Yell. Cock or Hen: 1, Priest; 2, Huggins. Buff: 1, Priest; 2, Lister; 3, Routledge. Brit. Hardbill: 1, 3, Wittam; 2, Priest; Nor. Cl., &c., Yell. Cock: 1, Miller; 2, 3, Lister. Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for postage must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

M. S. and M. E.—Replied by post.
CAMBORNE (—).—Sorry, cannot make out signature. I quite agree with you as regards the Norwich, and just those breeds in which a plump body and full chest are valued points, that these features are to a certain extent improved by judicious feeding; but it would be quite a wrong hypothesis to suppose that the feature depended wholly upon feeding, or even that to a very material extent it was due to feeding. Where there is an innate tendency to a full chest feeding will assuredly develop to the highest degree possible, but it is absolutely necessary to breed for the feature in the first place, as no amount of feeding will put a good, round, full chest on a bird that is not bred so as to inherit the natural tendency and the physical framework to build upon. You must select your breeding stock with good, full chests and massive frames; but not that deceptive appearance of size which consists largely of superabundance of feather, and as much as possible of this substance should be in front of the perch, with the legs, wings and tail fairly short and well carried. As regards the feeding, this is simple enough. All you need do is to be liberal with muscle and fat-forming foods after the first moult—it is generally the young birds that need feeding up for chest—until the birds have sufficient chest to satisfy you for their exhibition. In addition to the staple food seed diet give a small teaspoonful of egg food every second day, or, as a substitute, an equivalent quantity of bread and milk with two or three drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped on it; and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, linseed and broken groats. Once you have obtained sufficient chest development, these extras should be given only once or twice a week according to the needs of each individual case to maintain it during the show season.

KITCHEN OR PASSAGE (E.H.).—It is impossible to say in which of these two places it would be best to keep the bird without some definite knowledge of the structural formation, and the relative positions of the doors and windows, about which you give no information whatever. But a passage is very suggestive of a draughty place, so, in the absence of definite knowledge, the best advice I can should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutsell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Vet. Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

give you is to choose the kitchen, being careful to keep the cage below the level of the burners when the gas is lit, and not to allow it to hang near the burners nor very near the fireplace. A position well away from the fire where the temperature is fairly equable, and not in the line of direct draughts between doors, or door and window, and where it will not be affected by the heat from the gas burner when lit, will be the best you can do under the circumstances.

NORWICH SLACK (Tightness, Little Hulton).—There is a possibility that your birds are naturally loose in feather; but, still, you would do well to make yourself quite sure that they are not in a position exposed to occasional draughts, or troubled with red mites. If the dietary you name is all you give, you might with advantage be just a little more liberal with "extras." A little pinch of mixed seed once or twice a week, and a morsel of soft food of some kind about as often, may be given, and if the birds do not show signs of suffering from chill after bathing, and dry their plumage quickly, the bath should be offered twice a week on mild days, and early in the day. For the present give every second day for a fortnight, in addition to the staple diet half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and broken groats. Also dissolve half a drachm of ammoniated citrate of iron in an ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of olive-oil, and add 20 drops of

OVERGROWN CLAWS (T. B.).—It is quite correct to cut back the claws to a normal length when they become so long as to be a danger to the bird. With careful handling the risk of affecting either the song or the health of the bird is too small to weigh anything against the advantage the bird will gain from the operation. Catch it gently, and bathe its feet clean in a little warm water, then hold up the claws, projecting one at a time from between the tips of the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, in front of a strong light, and you will see a fine pink-coloured line extending down the centre of the claw for a little distance beyond the end of the toe. This is the vein, and indicates how far the "quick" portion extends down the claw. Nip off the claw with a sharp pair of nail or embroidery scissors a little beyond the extremity of this pink line, and the effect on the bird will be no worse than trimming your own finger nails. Expose only one claw at a time to avoid an accident to the toes when nipping.

VARIOUS (Novice).—(t) It is useless to think of starting colour-feeding now, as you can only affect the colour of the bird's plumage when it is moulting. The proper time to commence is just before a bird begins to cast its feathers at the moulting season, say, about the end of July or beginning of August. The substance used is a kind of pimento, known in the fancy as "tasteless pepper," to which is sometimes added a small proportion of Natal pepper when a very deep orange tone is required, and for such highly fed birds as Lizards. You will see this advertised very freely in our columns from June onwards, or in "Cage Birds Annual." It is sold ready for adding to the egg food, which is the vehicle for administering it. You should get the brochure on "Colour Feeding," which our manager would send you, post free, for 3d., which will give you the fullest details of the procedure. (2) Closed rings can only be put on whilst the young are in the nest, before the legs have grown too large for the ring to pass over junction of the toes without undue compression, and they cannot be removed without injury either to bird or ring during lifetime. Open rings, which can be taken off and replaced any time, should be put on first as soon as the young leave the nest that they may grow up accustomed to them. (3) As you want to breed only clear birds you certainly must not mate a pink-eyed bird with one containing green blood. The best mate in such circumstances would be a clear pink-eyed yellow if your bird is a buff, or ditto buff if yours is a yellow. (4) Sorry, I cannot recommend individuals. Watch our advert. columns for a week or two, where you will find plenty of birds on offer; or consult the list of prominent breeders in the "Annual." (5) Slimness is a virtue in the Yorkshire, so one is not likely to get them too slim, other points being equal.

CRACKING NOISE AND DANDELION (Cracker).—(1) The cracking noise the bird makes with its beak is usually symptomatic of a catarrhal cold, but it may also be due to digestive derangements. As you say the bird is old and bronchial, the former seems more likely in your case. Possibly it has been affected by the violent fluctuations of weather of late. See that it is not exposed to stray cold draughts. Add to the drinking water every second day for a week six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and after this give instead every second day for a week 20 drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together. In addition to the usual diet give every second day during the same period half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. (2) I do not advise you to risk using it as a feeder; not that it would necessarily infect the young, but on account of its unreliability to perform such duties satisfactorily. (3) The dandelion juice obtained from chemists may be used quite freely as a liver stimulant when required either for Canaries or British, but I would not advise it as a substitute for a supply of dandelion heads. The latter are more of a food and wholesome change of diet than a mere medicine.

FAT AND LAZY (D. M. A.).—I rather suspect the birds waste the seed rather than eat it, and may have some digestive trouble. Treat as follows for a week or two, and if not then better, write again and repeat particulars. Continue your present staple, and in addition give every third day a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the intervening days give first a morsel of banana, and next a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, white millet, and broken groats. In the drinking water add every second day for a week six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for another week. Stick a small cube of hard common salt in the wires for them to peck at when they like for a week or two.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

CANARY-CHAFFINCH HYBRID (Rare Cross).—This is the Hybrid we are all looking for, and although I would not discourage anyone who thinks of trying for it, I may say you have set yourself a big task. If you produce it you would certainly get one of our medals, beside being able to dispose of your Hybrid at a big figure. (2) I would advise you to procure our Nutsell booklet on the Chaffinch and treat as directed, being extra liberal with ants' eggs and live food at breeding time. Let the birds fly together all the winter, and do not part them at any time if they appear to take to each other. (3) A hen Canary would be more likely to rear than a Chaffinch. (4) The incubation period would be fourteen days. (5) The hen Canary should be given insecticide mixture of a good brand, instead of the usual egg food. This should be supplied some time before it is wanted to get her used to eating it. I can suggest other food, so if later you see that you are likely to succeed, you had better write again.

PRODUCING CANARY-BULLFINCH HYBRIDS (A New Friend).—The Canary-Bullfinch Hybrids are produced from the cock Canary and hen Bullfinch. Let them fly together all the winter, and if the Bullfinch takes to her partner do not on any account change him for another. If she nests and lays, the eggs must be placed under reliable hen Canaries to hatch and rear the young ones. Some Bullfinch hens lay quite a number of eggs, so that several hen Canaries will be needed to incubate. The majority of the eggs are unfertile, but it is never safe to throw any away. You may destroy the very one that is good. All should be set on until they can be tested.

MULE BREEDING (Major).—You will have no difficulty in getting your field-moulted Linnet to pair with a Canary hen. As a rule, these are very free breeders, and so are Greenfinches with the Canary, but I would not advise you to let them fly in an aviary with other birds. You will do better with them in cages. Just a pair in each cage. You do not say what the other birds are in the aviary; but, anyway, there is always the chance of nesting pairs being interfered with, and this generally happens at the most critical time. You can, of course, try them in the aviary, but do not do it from choice; cage breeding is the safer.

BREEDING BRITISH OR HYBRIDS (S. Patter).—It is just an open question if you would be successful with the British bird pairs or the Hybrids. If you try the former, choose the Goldfinches and Greenfinches. If the latter, mate the cock Goldie with the hen Linnet and the cock Greenie with the hen Goldie. The two cages will do nicely; just putting a pair in each cage, and if you try for Hybrids put them well away from each other, or the proper pairs will be continually calling to their natural mates and upset all your plans for mating. The selected pairs should be allowed to fly together during the winter months, and fed liberally upon wild food as the spring advances. Our book on the "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding," post free 1/2, would interest you. It goes into details much more fully than I can in these answers.

BIRDS FOR PETS (Cecily).—I have carefully read your letter and I think a young Jay would suit you best. He could be kept in a cage about 2ft. 6in., or 3ft. long. You could get a young one in the spring and possibly hand-rear it yourself or finish feeding it. They are particularly tame then and can be kept so, if one takes a little trouble with them. You would not find it a very clean pet flying about the kitchen, but you might let him out occasionally for a few minutes just to stretch his wings. You would get far more amusement and interest from the Jay than you would from Doves. (2) Pigeons and Doves are all of one family. Our Pigeons are really Doves—King Dove, Stock Dove, Rock Dove.

BIRDS IN LARGE FLIGHT (Thos. J. James).—In many large flights such as yours the birds are allowed to be in the open or under cover, just as they feel disposed, but I must say this is somewhat risky, and the birds are not so safe as they are when the roof is covered in to shield them from inclement weather. Although as a rule a good soaking does not harm a bird, if this occurs during the day time and he continues to take exercise and keep on the move, yet sometimes he is drenched at roosting time, consequently a severe cold or pneumonia is almost certain to follow. If you can arrange a tarpaulin to be pulled over the archway in very wet weather, I feel certain you would find it a great assistance to keeping your birds in health. You could fix it at the back and pull it forward when required, or leave it on permanently during the winter months.

THE BLAZE OF THE GOLDFINCH (Optimist).—It is well known among all fanciers that almost every variety and species of cage bird improve somewhat at each succeeding moult until they are at their best. To this the Goldfinch is no exception. If the bird is properly fed and treated there is generally some all-round improvement. The blaze becomes slightly more expansive, the chestnut richer, and the blacks more dense. If you have selected your bird well he should therefore be better next season, but if he is mean and small in blaze it may improve, but he will never have a large one. It is like colour in all British birds—it must be there to commence with. (2) I cannot understand your bird refusing thistle heads. These should be split open between the finger and thumb, so that he can easily get at the seeds, which should be in good condition and free from mustiness.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

AMAZON PARROT AILING (A. J. R.).—Put half a teaspoonful of chemical food in its drinking water, and every fourth day, in lieu of the chemical food, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the water. It will ultimately take fruit, nuts, etc., and you must continue to offer them at intervals. The sneezing will pass, but it would be well to spray the nostrils daily with a tepid dilute solution of glyco-thymoline for a fortnight, and then every other day for another fortnight. The bird should be kept in a room where the temperature, day and night, is most equal, and the cage should stand in the warmest corner; there is generally one corner in every room where the air is more or less stagnant, the bird should not occupy this corner. I think it would be well to try the bird with a little boiled maize, say, every other day; it only keeps fresh one day, so must be freshly prepared for each occasion. It can have it daily if it happens to like it, a tablespoonful, or perhaps half that quantity will suffice; let what the bird eats regulate the quantity. Boil till soft, but not to a wet, sticky mass (though soft, each grain of maize should remain whole), drain off all water, and then spot over it eight to ten drops of cod-liver oil emulsion. Allow this to soak in, and when cool supply to the bird, first stirring it up with a four-pronged fork. I should also be on the safe side and get a box of honey and borax, and give it a little on the end of a small stick; it will bite at the stick, and so get the mixture, but a clean stick must be used each time. When it has got accustomed to the maize, a little of the honey and borax could be smeared over it before you stir up the maize. The honey and borax will tend to keep the mouth and throat clean and free from slime, etc. The contents of a single box should suffice. See rules re replies by post.

BUDGERIGARS IN OUTDOOR AVIARY (Esperance).—I have noted the sketch of aviary, and when the shelter is well lighted it should meet its purpose fully, and I should then feed only in the shelter. It should be easy to arrange a small door, in the centre of your wire entrance door, through which you could easily put your arm, and with a stick or bar of thick wire you could easily knock excreta from the twigs. Also, if you have a hinged flap, it need only be 1 1/2 in. deep and 1 1/2 in. long, in two pieces, each 8 in. long; with a small scraper you could keep the floor quite clean without any risk of the birds escaping, and it should only be necessary for you to creep inside three or four times during the year. By a similar small door in the shelter just large enough to admit your arm it should be possible also to attend to the food vessels without going inside for this purpose. It should also be possible for you to arrange a hinged flap at floor level by which the floor of shelter could be kept clean as easily as the light. In the far past I had an aviary, certainly 12ft. long, but it was only 18 in. wide, and I arranged hinged flaps at intervals on ground level, and other small doors for feeding, so that I only had to get inside once a year for distemper and renewal of the branches. If you let the man who made the aviary, I have no doubt he will be able to do what you require; if not, get him to make a sketch of the aviary, giving the dimensions, both of shelter and flight, and if it is sent to me, per the Editor, with a stamped, addressed envelope, I will mark up the position of the doors on the sketch, and return it. Seed is costly, owing to the war, and the prices you name are about right. Keep cuttle-bone and grit in the aviary. Separation may be the best, though not really essential; if you have only one aviary, you cannot separate, that is quite obvious. Leave the nest receptacles just as they are this year. To catch, drive them into the shelter, and use a butterfly net through the small feeding door.

FLINT GRIT (Mrs. Thomas).—I have sent you a small sample, together with full particulars: such should be used regularly for all Hardbills, but not a great deal is used. If you scatter a good pinch over sand tray, each time the sand is renewed, or if you have an aviary, keep a small panful continually in the aviary, in the covered part.

TO GO WITH BUDGERIGARS (G. H.).—Red-crested Cardinals (15s. to 20s.), Java Sparrows (Grey 5s., White 10s.), Madagascar Lovebirds (7s. 6d. to 10s.), Rufous-necked Weaver (10s.), Red-billed Weaver (6s. to 7s. 6d.), Crimson-crowned Weaver (cock 10s.), Black-headed and Masked Weavers (cocks 10s.), Orange Weaver (cock 7s. 6d.), Napoléon Weaver (cock 7s. 6d.). Except where otherwise stated, the prices given are for pairs, and birds are dear now, as supplies are very low. The variety is somewhat limited, owing to your having Budgerigars, but you could keep a pair of Cockatiels, value about 15s., with them. I must qualify the above by stating: providing the aviary is large enough to accommodate. Nearly all foreign birds

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutsell" booklets (2d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Academics," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Woorbits." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

are now commanding double the amount asked for them in pre-war times, but the cheaper species, small Finches, etc., are not safe with Budgerigars. If the aviary is a roomy one you could keep several species of Parakeets and Lovebirds with them, such as Rosella Parakeets, 60s. pair; Peach-faced Lovebirds, 50s. to 60s. pair; Black-checked Lovebirds, 50s. pair; All Green Parakeets, 30s. pair. It is all a matter of what you care to spend. If you want to keep the "small ornamental Finches," then you must give up the Budgerigars. If you decide on this course, repeat query, and give size of aviary, and county.

PULLING ITS FEATHERS (Skylark).—This annoying habit or vice is practically incurable once a bird has become confirmed therein; remedial measures should be taken as soon as the habit is noticed, but you give me no particulars. Spray it twice a week with a tepid quassia solution, but choose genial days for this purpose, and guard carefully from draught until it is dry again. Also put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day, and on the intervening days just colour the water with chemical food. I cannot say more at present, but if you repeat query, with full particulars as to how it has been fed and generally treated, also the length of period it has been addicted to the habit, I may be able to give you a more helpful reply.

AMAZON IN MOULT (Polite).—It appears to me that the bird must be in a room where the temperature is subject to fairly frequent changes. It ought to do well with so much liberty, but the symptoms you describe are usually produced either by draught or a changeful temperature. The diet is about right, but it would be better without the milk pudding; all the other items of diet you mention are wholesome. On anything the bird will eat that is suitable, spread thinly cod-liver oil emulsion once or twice a day. Give Dinneford's Magnesia sufficiently often to keep the bowels moving quite freely without being abnormally loose, and on other days use a little chemical food in the drinking water. See how it goes on under above treatment, and report progress about a fortnight hence.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

J. Marsden, and many others.—Thanks for press cutting received. You will see that we have made the matter the subject of a special paragraph.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.B.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box accompanying letter being kept in contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

M. Dorsett.—Enteritis or inflammation of the bowels; probably of parasitic origin.

FRED ALLEN WISHES YOU ALL A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

I beg to thank you all for the way you have placed orders with me. No one can deny that I am a successful specialist. And why? Because I only do honest dealing and because I thoroughly understand my work. Everyone who keeps British birds knows Fred Allen. Mr. Heap, of York, paid me a visit to see me master the Linnet. Well, we took a motor ride around the Cave district, and I quickly had the Linnets around us. I also stood under a hedge and the Linnets flew on top. If anyone has a Linnet that can sing notes as good as I whistle them, I will give a cheque value £20 for it. I don't claim to be the champion whistler. I claim to be the champion British bird dealer, with the largest stock in the North. If you want Linnets, send to the man who knows every class of singing in the world. Linnets, from the same place as my champion cup winner, running and turning their notes grand, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6 each; a few trained for catching, 2/-; kitchen songsters, 1/-, 1/6; house-moulded Linnets that have won all before them; they are mad proud and will sing at one another, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/-; Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, grand colour, giants, and steady as rocks, 2/6 each, and two extra gems 3/6 each; two good house-moulded Linnets, well-known winners, in excellent condition, 15/6, 20/- each; Scandinavian Bullies, giants, cocks 3/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6 each; hens 3/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6; British cock Bullfinches, with double rich colour, real gems, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6; hens 1/6, 2/6, and one, a stunner, 3/6; monster yellow Greenfinch, a gem, 3/6; cock Chaffinch, a beauty, 3/6; H.M. Bramblefinch, 4/6; cock Linnet Mule, on pure Linnet stock, a good one, 12/6; another, 10/6; Goldfinch Mules, on full song, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; light Goldfinch Mule, 15/6; monster Greenfinch Mule, win anywhere, 12/6; well-known winning Siskin Mule, 15/6; Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid, splendid bird, 25/-; cock Canaries, full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; Roller schoolmasters, not common choppers, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6; all sent out in cages; hens, 2/6 3/6 each; Redpoll, gem, 2/6. Make your birds sing at one another; send 1/3 for bag of secret mixture, half-teaspoonful does the trick. Sold out of Linnet whistles; others ready next week, 6d. each, post free. I have just received a grand lot of Rock Mynahs, in splendid condition, a few good ones whistling and chattering, at 20/-, 25/-, 30/-; also two good ones talking, laughing, mimicking, etc., at 50/- each. These birds talk better than Parrots. I have a nice lot of talking Parrots at 30/-, 40/-, 45/-, 60/- each: all kinds of leather goods, seeds, cages, etc., in stock. Please state wants. The Shows.

SPRINGBURN, FOSSIL PARK.

Annual show in the Reid Hall, Queenshill Street, Springburn, Glasgow, Dec. 11. This hall is spacious and well lighted from the roof, and is so constructed that comfort and equable temperature, combined with freedom from draughts, make it an admirable spot for a show of the kind. President A. Sloan, Vice-Pres. Pinnock, and Sec. J. Waugh are just the right men to have at the top of affairs, being pure gluttons for work, and with a very representative band of fanciers as committee, everything passed off without a hitch. Committee: Messrs. J. McLeod, J. Crawford, F. Taylor, J. Fyfe, J. McMillan, D. Morrison, E. Hadley, R. Anderson, P. Braid, F. Williams, W. Dunlop, J. McNeish, D. Hunter, T. Penman, J. Swan, R. Fraser, J. Smith. Entries numbered about 350. The following were the cup and principal winners: P. Braid, the Sloan cup, with a grand Norwich Plainhead; the Border cup, J. Aitken; cup for Mules, British, Foreign, J. Crawford; Novice cup, J. Fearn. The L.P.C. medal was won by A. Crawford, Yorkshire cup, best rung 1915 bred, Pinnock. The judges, Messrs. Maxwell, Farwick, for Crests and Nor.; G. Hislop, Stirling, Bord.; J. Gentleman, Avonbridge, Brit. and Mules; J. F. Park, Glasgow, Yorks; got through their work in good time with general satisfaction.

BARNET F. AND F.S.

13th annual show, open to a radius of 8 miles, Town Hall, Nov. 27. The morning was bitterly cold, and the hall none too comfortably heated, but the committee, led by the Hon. Sec., J. M. Richards, did their utmost to make things go smoothly. The show was about up to the average, which, considering the war and its effects on the fancy, was an excellent result. Mr. Chandler, chairman, lent practical aid; indeed, the whole of the officials were active. Mr. W. Bell won the Canary cup with a smart yellow Yorks. hen, the runner-up also being a yellow Norwich hen of Mr. Kerr's. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

NOR.: 1, 2, spls, 2, hc, Kerr, rattling team, the leader a typical, good-headed yell. hen; 2nd, bonny buff cock; 3, vhc, c, Bell. YORKS. WHITEHAVEN YORKS. F.S.

The 2nd nicely arranged and well ordered show was held on Dec. 19. Run by a few leading fanciers and exhibitors, with Mr. Jas. Stewart, the well-known Yorks. exhibitor, as secretary, the collection of exhibits got together on this occasion was most creditable. The staging and attention given to the birds left nothing to be desired, and exhibitors may with no doubtful feelings send to future shows held under the same management. The committee consisting of Messrs. T. Brown, chairman, J. Buchanan, J. McLaughlin, J. Smith, J. Barrie, D. H. Moore, all practical fanciers, knowing exactly what is required. Yorkshires headed the schedule, having eight champion and three novice classes provided, and though well represented in quality, deserved a better entry numerically. The winner of Dr. Allen's cup for best bird belonging to a member of the Cumberland and Westmorland Y.C. was the winning 1915 buff cock, a bird of wonderful Yorkshire properties and finely staged, belonging to Mr. Jas. Stewart. We understand this bird also won the W.Y.C.C. cup for best young bird at the Club Show a fortnight previously. Borders with 5 classes—one an even-mark, that only drew 3 entries—averaged 13 per class, and were a capital collection, some of the best in the Borders being present. British were also nice classes, all the better known varieties of hardbills being on view, and a source of much attraction. The judges, all specialists in their varieties, were: Yorkshires, Mr. T. Harriman; Borders, Mr. J. S. Wilson, and Mr. H. Glaister; British, who each appeared to give satisfaction. YORKS. CL. ETC., YELL. BRISTOL

Twenty-fifth annual show, on new ground, at the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Dec. 1 and 2, a cage bird section being staged in the gymnasium, a fine room, with none but top light, and free from draught. The entry came very late, and made much work at the last moment; in fact, many entries were accepted on spare numbers the morning of show, and delayed issue of catalogue. Mr. Greenslade, the apt. of the section, is to be congratulated on dealing with the position so successfully, and he enabled Mr. Battye to commence judging at 9 a.m., and at the close of the show got all exhibits away the same night, without an error, by 10 p.m. Mr. Greenslade was well backed up by the usual band of helpers, Messrs. H. S. Walter, I. A. Davis, E. A. Lovell, F. Sampson, Mr. and Mrs. Tristram, J. A. Withers, and P. J. Yorke. The show, as a whole, was ably managed by the Chairman of the Executive Committee, Mr. F. Cook, and the Secretary was once again Mr. G. T. H. Maggs. The classification was somewhat restricted owing to the abnormal conditions of the moment, naturally resulting in a smaller total than usual; but quality all through was quite up to the Bristol standard. The ten guinea open challenge bowl was won for the second time by Mr. L. Dykes, of Bradford, and the members' cup for best unlighted was won by Mr. J. Tristram with his Norwich, which would doubtless have given a good account of themselves, but did not arrive, unfortunately, until 5.30 on the show day. Hard lines! NOR., YELL. CK. (8): 1, Dr. Askey Wood, massive, good top, and chest, exceptionally good col., wins; 2, Tristram, large frame, good carr., neck tkd., loses head subs.; 3, Sampson, good shape and type, fails col.; 4, Wren; vhc. Taylor; hc. Tristram. BLIFF (9): 1, 2, 4, Tristram, extra large, good col., nice qual., similar, not size of leader; 3, Greaves, good size, good head and front, not the col. or subs.; vhc. Taylor; hc. Dr. Askey Wood; c. Wren. HEN (16): 1, Wren, good shape and type, full of qual., wins; 2, Sampson, good yell., nice shape and style; 3, Dr. Askey Wood, another good one, close up; 4, Tristram; vhc. Taylor; hc. Greenslade; c. Yorke. BRED 1915 (3): 1, 2, Tristram, leader extra large, neck and chest mkd., good type, extra good col., wins members' cup best unlighted; other, foul green, good style, not the subs.; 3, Sampson, massive frame, bold head and chest, loses colour; 4, Greaves; vhc. hc. Sampson; c. Yorke. NOVICE (17): 1, 4, Green, extra large, good head and col., teeming with qual.; 2, 3, Wills, both nice exhibits, only a shade below leader in subs.; vhc. Matthews; hc. Sampson; c. Wills. YORKS., YELL. CK. (13): 1, 3, hc. Yorke, leader extra large, good col., type, and style, a beauty, quickly claimed; other, very similar, loses length and subs.; 2, J. Bale, neck mkd., good length and style, pos., nice qual.; 4, Greenslade; vhc. Pritchard; c. Fulford. BUFF (13): 1, J. Bale, good long upstanding typical Yorkie, nice qual. and col.; 2, Parker, good clear, extra qual. and col., well packed wings; 3, R. Pinnell, neck mkd., good col. and pos., nice type and qual., loses length; 4, Bacon; vhc. Dykes; hc. Yorke; c. Pritchard. YELL. HEN (7): 1, Helliwell, extra good length, on good legs, splendid style and qual.; 2, Dykes, good length, well packed wings, grand pos., must have pressed; 3, Bale, nice exhibit, good pos. and length, not far behind; 4, Fulford; vhc. Greenslade; hc. Maidment. BUFF (11): 1, Dykes, extra length, superb qual. and col., well filled in all through, wins; 2, Pritchard, Cardiff winner, good length, style, and pos., nice col., not quite size of leader; 3, Yorke, saddle mkd., nice type, style, loses length; 4, vhc. Greenslade; hc. Clift; c. Helliwell. BRED 1915 (Bristol 10-guinea ch. bowl class) (22): extra good class, two sets of winners easy to find; 1, 2, Dykes, leader clear yell., good length, splendid col. and qual., nicely packed wings and tail, on good legs; next, clear buff, very similar, a pair of toppers; 3, Thomson, another clear yell., gent. must have pressed; 4, vhc. Fulford; hc. Greenslade; c. Parker. NOVICE CK. (22): 1, I. A. Davis, Cardiff novice winner, extra good length, well packed wings and tail, good qual. and style; 2, Green, good back, well packed wings, nicely filled in all through, good pos.; 3, Hiseox, lengthy buff, good pos. and col., not qual. of leaders; 4, Payne; vhc. hc. METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Annual show, Nov. 27, in the Kelvedon Hall, Walham Green. The entry was not so good as on previous occasions, the Border section being conspicuous by its absence. These have come up well in previous years, but the breeders of this variety are mostly engaged on special work. The Yorkshire made quite a nice array, the unlighted class turning out some good ones. The special winners were as follows: Norwich, Mr. Curtis; Yorks., Mr. King; Novice Norwich, Mr. Gregory; Novice Yorks., Mr. Woolley; Hybrid, Mr. Newbery; British, Mr. Larkin. Mr. Bowring, the secretary, managed the show, and everything was well carried out. Mr. H. Norman judged. CH. NOR., YELL. CK.: 1, Curtis. BUFF: 1, Curtis. HENS: 1, Curtis. To Club Secretaries and Others.

With the view of bringing up-to-date
 our directory of Cage Bird Societies,
 which is so useful a feature of CAGE
BIRDS ANNUAL, and in order to eliminate those societies which have ceased
 to exist, we should be obliged if the secretary of each active society throughout the country would send us on a postcard short particulars embodying—the
 name of the society, date of foundation,
 place, date and time of meetings, annual subscription, entry fee, if any, and his own name and address. We append a specimen entry, and no other particulars
 are necessary.

Edinburgh C.B.S., founded 1911, meetings
 Cairn's Memorial Hall, George Road, third
 Tue in month, at 8; sub. 4s. 6d., ent. fee
 6d.; sec., J. C. Charlton, 33, Wateon Crescent, Edinburgh.

The ANNUAL for 1916 is now in course
 of active preparation, and we should be glad if secretaries will furnish at their earliest convenience the particulars desired.

Judges who wish their names inserted
 in our yearly feature "Cage Birds Judges" should also send in their names and addresses, with initials,
 giving the varieties in which they
 specialise.

An Owl, which has recently paid occasional visits to the Gordon Square district, Bloomsbury, London, has settled down in the neighbourhood after evicting the House Sparrows in the vicinity.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly
 sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Third Annual Roller Canary Contest, Jan. 12 and 13, 1916. 4 Classes. Judges: Mr. J. Kilshaw, Mr. J. J.
 Tomlinson, and Mr. J. H. Willows. Schedules—W.
 Taylor, Council School, Hospital St., Birmingham.

GREENOCK,

Port Glasgow, and Gourock Ornithological Society, Annual Club Show of Canaries, British Birds, Mules and Hybrids, in Boilermakers' Hall, Greenock, on Wednesday, January 5th, 1916. Open to the public at 1 o'clock. Judges: Mr. Geo. Smart, Canaries;

Twitterings.

Barnstaple fanciers devoted their show's profits to the local War Supply Depot.

We hope to give a full report of Aberdeen show in our next issue.

The best wishes for the New Year is all the harm we wish every reader of CAGE BIRDS. Conscriptio or no conscription, the peaceful pursuit of bird-keeping will doubtless continue to relieve our hours of leisure and brighten the lives of those who have suffered by the war.

Under the patronage of the Serbian Relief Fund, Mr. James Buckland is giving a lecture for children on Jan. 4, at 3.30 p.m., at the Whitehall Rooms, on the home life of interesting and beautiful birds of other lands.

Mr. Taylor carried off the prize for the best British Bird at the Aberdeen show with a Greybacked Shrike, described in the local paper as a Shrike. It is, however, the poor little birds he gets hold of that shriek.

Mr. W. Allison won outright the cup for the best young Norwich in the open section, having scored the win for the third successive time.

The proceeds are to be devoted to a fund which is to be raised by the children of Britain to found a home in Serbia for orphans.
 Tickets, 5s. each, may be obtained from Mrs.
 James Buckland, 29, St. Thomas's Mansions, Westminster Bridge, and from all the usual agencies.

A gentleman not hitherto known to the proprietor writes this week regretting "that Mr. Carl has been interned." Once again, therefore, it becomes necessary to assure readers of this paper that Mr. Carl, the founder and owner of CAGE BIRDS, is British to the backbone, that to the best of his knowledge and belief he has never had any German blood in his family, that he isn't responsible for the name Carl, which is, as half the bird world knows, a name assumed by him twenty years ago for professional purposes. So that's that.

A Thought for the Birds.

Now cold winter time is here,
 With all its frost and snow,
 The pretty little birdies dear
 Must find it hard, I know.
 The days are past of fruit and grain,
 No insects can be found.
 The birds now look for worms in vain
 Upon the frozen ground.
 I cannot ever bear to think
 That they should hungry be,
 So I invite them every day
 To come and visit me.
 I gather up the crumbs of bread,
 And open window wide.
 Along the sill the feast I spread,
 Then creep away and hide,
 Because the little birds are shy,
 And if they saw me here,
 Away they every one would fly,
 With beating hearts of fear.
 There soon arrives one little guest;
 Then two, then three, then four,
 From tree and house-top and from nest,
 Until I count a score.
 When they have made a merry meal,
 And likely flown away,
 To know that they are happy
 Makes me happy all the day.

 to Mr. Sam Cook. I won second prize. The birds are right, but your reporter has got names reversed, Mr. Cook owns the Buff,
 I own the Yellow.

Members of the New Cross C.B.S. please note, writes Mr. Geo. Burton, hon. sec., that the next meeting, the annual general meeting, will be held at 126, Lee Road, Lee Green, S.E., on Jan. 6 at 8. I hope that members, especially those who have not been able to attend the last few meetings, will endeavour to be present, as the business is most important, and includes the election of officers and programme for 1916. Any proposed alteration of rules must reach me not later than Dec. 31.

OBITUARY.

MR. BALE (Cardiff).
 I greatly regret, writes Mr. E. J. Davies, having to announce the sad loss which has befallen one of our members, Mr. J. Bale, in the loss of his father, who passed away about a week ago at the age of 81. I am sure members of the Cardiff C.B.S. will join me in sympathising with Mr. and Mrs. Bale in their time of sorrow.

All who knew him will be sorry, writes
 Mr. A. Simms, hon. sec., Bedford and Beds
 C.B.S., to hear of the sad loss that Mr. H.
 Crawford, one of our members on the committee has sustained in the loss of one of his little daughters. Although only Mr.
 Crawford and his son were members, the whole family were keen fanciers, and we shall miss the little one at our shows. Let me on behalf of the Society extend our sincere sympathy to the family in their great loss.

The profits accruing from the Ayr show will be handed over to the secretary of the Carrick House Red Cross Hospital, writes Mr. Hugh M. Ferguson, sec. and treas. The sum realised is highly creditable to the members of the Club, who have wrought so hard during the past six weeks to make the show a success. The Club desire to express to Mrs. Wallace their appreciation of the very kind services she rendered the Club in conducting the guessing competition. Mr.
 Metcalf, Kilmarinock, was the winner, the prize being a singing bird with cage, presented by Mr. J. McLachlan.

A Great Red Cross Show

at Larkhall.
 We should like to call the attention of our exhibiting readers to the Red Cross show, at Larkhall on Jan. 7 and 8 under the auspices of the Lanarkshire Branch of the Red Cross Society. As will be seen by the review of the schedule which appears in another column, there are 71 classes provided. The judges are men whose names may well inspire confidence, and there is a wonderful list of no less than 77 specials.
 It is the first open show of the Larkhall
 C.B.A., and success this year will mean that it will become an annual event. The show was advertised in our issue of Dec. 18, and the advertisement appears again in our current issue, but by an unfortunate accident it was omitted last week. We hope that all who are able to send entries will write at once for a schedule to Mr. A. Thomson, 1, Croft Place, Larkhall, so as to get their entries in by the closing time, Monday,
 Jan. 3, last post.

Since issuing schedule, writes Mr. Thomson, we have received a members' special for best bird in class 70 and a members' special for best 3rd in classes 31 and 32.

Our Birthday Number

PRIZES FOR OUR READERS.

ON Jan. 15 we commence a new volume with the publication of our fourteenth birthday number, and with that issue CAGE BIRDS enters into its fifteenth year. The issue will be full of interesting matter embellished by beautiful pictures, and with it will be given a superb coloured plate by our artist, Mr. H. Norman.

We want our readers to have a hand in its success, and with this object we ask them to send us along their experiences. There is no better way for bird lovers to help one another than by an exchange of knowledge. Among the readers of CAGE BIRDS we know there are thousands whose expert knowledge would be of invaluable assistance to other thousands whose opportunities have been less, or who have not been so long engaged in the fascinating hobby of bird-keeping, and they will scarcely need reminding that there was once a time when they themselves would have been glad to learn how some older hand had achieved success.

We, therefore, invite short accounts, say of about 500 words, of the keeping or breeding of Canaries, Mules, or Hybrids, British birds, or foreign birds. From these we shall make a selection, and for the best one in each section of those published, we shall award a cash prize of ten shillings, that is, four prizes in all, one each for Canaries, Mules or Hybrids, British, and foreign.

The articles will be judged by their practical merit, and no one need let a lack of literary ability deter him from competing. It is knowledge that is wanted, and if the articles contain this we shall have pleasure in putting straight any little defects in the manner in which it is imparted, or in re-writing the whole communication for publication if necessary. A great amount of knowledge is stored in the brains of those who have not always the literary ability of expressing it, and if that knowledge is in the communication received it will compete on level terms with the best written article of the lot. The getting of it out may safely be left to us.

Regular contributors of articles to our columns will not be allowed to compete, and the editor's decision in awarding the prizes must be accepted as final. The experiences must be posted to reach us not later than Monday, Jan. 10.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON, E.C.

SOME OF MY BIRD FRIENDS.

By

F. T. U.

(St. Albans).

In this article the writer relates some charming experiences with freshly taken birds, and shows the comparative ease with which a delightful companionship may be established between a real bird-lover and his feathered pets.

A FEW weeks ago, as a supplementary note to a letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, I described a Goldfinch's return to its cage after being free in a wood for 24 hours, and the editor was so good as to invite me to relate other personal experiences of tame "wild birds." Here are one or two cases to go on with.

This autumn, about a week after the tender soft bills had left this district, I noticed an amusing incident on a pond near to my house. A dragon-fly poised itself in the air over the water, and immediately a small bird shot from a bush with the object of obtaining a large meal at one stroke. The dragon-fly darted off with the enemy in hot pursuit, and when the pair were not more than a foot apart, the fly suddenly dropped, and the bird went over his head.

The bird returned to the bush, and instantly the fly appeared before the bush and deliberately challenged the bird to try again. The challenge was accepted, and another mad chase over the pond followed with precisely the same result. The performance was repeated with similar results until the bird became disheartened and gave up the struggle.

I was interested, and wished to discover the identity of the bird. Placing a little lime on his favourite bough, I had him in less than ten minutes, took him home, and put him in a cage. He proved to be a young Willow-wren (there had been a family of them on the pond during the summer).

On the following day I induced him to take mealworms from my hand, and on the third day he flew from the cage door to my hand and ate a mealworm on my palm. As a mark of appreciation of his confidence I took him back to the pond and let him free, and I never saw him again. This was a record in my experience for quick taming, and I have had more than a few experiences.

Mr. P. O. Frost in CAGE BIRDS last week wrote a very interesting note about Greenfinches. I, too, have found Greenie a most affectionate pet, but really not more tractable than other species. The tamest wild bird I ever had was a Skylark, but I have had several Bullfinches nearly as friendly.

I once saw a poulterer wringing the necks of Skylarks in a shop in Newcastle-on-Tyne, and in the crate I noticed one very large bird. "How much for that one?" I asked.

"Sixpence," was the reply. I pocketed the bird, took him home, trained him to drop the springing habit, and then gave him a big cage in which he could spread his wings. He quickly became finger tame, and sang as freely as any free bird. He became very much attached to me, would distinguish the sound of my footstep before I entered the house, and he never failed to burst into song at the sound.

Later I was much engaged on "night duty," and would often return home at 3 a.m. As soon as my latch key turned in the door I heard the familiar burst of song, and this continued until I turned on the light. I had him three years, and when I left the North, gave him to a lady friend who had often tried to buy him.

Four years afterwards I paid a "pop visit" to that lady's house, and was delighted to see the Lark running about the kitchen floor amongst three small children. I did not see him afterwards, but was informed that he died about a year later, so he would be probably about nine years old. The lady is still living, and would no doubt vouch for my story were it disputed.

One story about "Bullies," and I will close out of consideration for your space. I "steamed" a wild-caught cock Bullfinch (field moulted), and then gave him to a business colleague, for whom he formed a most pathetic attachment. He was allowed liberty in the living room at times, and one day my friend and his wife (they are still living), on returning from a walk, were distressed to find that they had left open a window. "Bullie" was nowhere to be seen. The window was left open, and later in the day the prodigal returned and entered his cage. His liberty was thereafter extended, the window being deliberately left open on fine days. It became "Bullie's" favourite occupation to sit at the open window and call to the sparrows. Occasionally he would join them, more in anger than in love, but he always returned to the room. If I remember aright he lived with my friend for about six years.

These stories may seem "tall" to some sceptical people, but they are not in any way exaggerated, and I mention them to show that individual birds in the majority of species are capable of exchanging confidences with owners who know how to handle them.

Our author is also right on the mark when he bids us beware of "those fearful" (timid) "wild buckish birds which upon every turn bolt against the wires of the cage and bruise themselves." We may here throw out a hint to the beginner: If he has a choice of two freshly-caught birds (of any species), one of which is rather wild and the other tame and sleepy, let him always choose the former, but never have anything to do with a very wild bird. Birds differ as much in their dispositions as human beings, and some will not accept captivity on any conditions whatever; these should be at once released. A carpenter knows that he must not plane against the grain, and an aviculturist should learn, as early in his career as possible, that he must work with the grain of nature.

He seems to have had a method of dealing with newly-caught birds which I note for a special reason. In the Christmas 1915 number of CAGE BIRDS I recommended the use of a light canvas canopy as an "improvement" on the ordinary Lark cage. If we turn back to the year 1711 what do we find? "Have a net knit French-mesh, and so put it in the inside of the cage, sewing of it close to the sides and strait, that when he bolts or flirts up he may take no harm." The same idea, you see, the very same; probably invented by that legendary and pre-historic genius, hidden from us by the mists of a dim and distant past, the first aviculturist!

Our ancient author seems to have had the same difficulty as myself in persuading the Woodlark to enter a net, and he shows good sense in attributing this not to perversity on the part of the bird, but to ignorance on the part of the trapper. "We not understanding the way of taking them by net in the country as they do about London." (Note that the Londoner even at this early date was thought to be a smart sort of chap.) He therefore had recourse to hand rearing.

(To be concluded.)

Success with Norwich Plainheads.

SIR,—It gave me great pleasure on opening my CAGE BIRDS on Friday last to find a sketch of my winning buff hen inside. She is bred from a strain that persistently breeds winners; in fact seven of her relations were well in the money at the show with her, one of them capturing for me the medal for hottest coloured bird. I have only taken up the breeding of Norwich within the last three years, and won my way out of the local novice section in 1914 with three 1sts, 2nds and 3rds, and medal for hottest coloured bird. This makes the second year in succession I have claimed that much coveted prize. I should like when things are quieter to give my experiences in your columns of how I got my winning strain of Norwich together. Just now we are very full of soldiers, which keeps us well employed. Last year we were full of Scotch troops, and several of them visited my bird-room. When I read that letter in CAGE BIRDS from a Scotch fancier at the front, it made me think of our "Scotch boys," as we call them here. I wish the writer all the luck he could wish himself, and you, Mr. Editor, a happy Christmas and our paper a prosperous New Year.

Colour in the Norwich Plainhead.

SIR,—Mr. Allsopp says that a correspondent some time ago stated that the Cinnamon cross was the thing to improve the colour in our Norwich. It may have improved his birds, but were they a fair sample of our modern Norwich? I should say no. It was a fact well known among Cinnamon breeders of 30 years ago that if you wanted to improve the colour of your Cinnamons there was only one reliable cross, viz., a dip into the Norwich, by using the best and largest clear yellow hen to be got. Well, a Norwich breeder knowing that would see the uselessness of going to a cross which lacked the properties required.

Then Mr. Allsopp mentions the Lizard cross to improve colour; this, he says, he knows nothing about, only apparently, through reading to me of our great grandfathers' theories. I remember it was in 1870 that I went to the room of a fancier who I had heard had been improving the colour of his Norwich by this cross. Oh dear, what a mixture I found of "cat-marked" specimens with nothing to recommend them. Although in those days it was said this cross did improve the colour, lest some novice should be tempted to try it, through reading Mr. Allsopp's remarks, let him take my advice, don't. What is there to be gained? Nothing. What is there to lose? Everything—like one of the most important features in our modern Norwich, also the greatest of all features, head properties.

Mr. Allsopp talks about the wonderful depth of colour of the birds of a few Northern breeders. Let him mention them, and I will undertake to prove that no better colour can be found than we have in the South, West, Midlands and even Wales. Now if Mr. Allsopp wants to improve the colour of his own Norwich, and if those he showed at Cheltenham are a fair sample, I am sure he does, let him get a yellow of the stamp shown by Mr. Spillman at Cheltenham, and he will improve them for a certainty. While writing, I should like to describe this bird for the benefit of your readers:—Extra large body; short, well-carried wings; nice full, round head, without being brawny at all; the grandest chest imaginable, extra deep and full, a ball of fire in colour, and standing well across the perch, not up in the air like a great deal too many of our present-day Norwich. This bird is, to my mind, the best yellow Norwich it has been my lot to see in 46 years' experience. I take my hat off to you, Mr. Spillman; and may you show us many more of the like.

The Woodlark in Captivity.

WE may now discuss the treatment of this species in captivity, and in this connection we will, as on a former occasion, refer to an old, but practical and interesting, work by an anonymous author, published in 1711, and entitled "The Fancier's Delight." In taking this course we have a two-fold object; firstly, it is really quite a relief to get away from "The Great War" to more peaceful, if less spacious, times; secondly, it is an interesting question whether, despite all the tall talk and self-advertisement of the present day, we really nowadays secure better results than, or even as good results as, the early aviculturists.

For instance, we have had a number of interesting letters from correspondents giving their experience of the Nightingale in captivity, but not one has claimed to have trained a Nightingale to sing on his finger, as we showed that a very early Roman aviculturist did, and we do not know of a modern instance of breeding the Nightingale in a cage.

To take another instance. Readers will recollect the congratulations that accompanied the appearance of two Humming-birds at the Horticultural Hall show of 1914. Certainly the greatest praise is due to the exhibitor for the wonderful condition of his exhibits, and the excellent design of the cages, but do not let us forget that more than half a century ago a Mango Humming-bird was brought from Jamaica with its nest and eggs, that it hatched the latter on the voyage, and that the young were fully reared! Instances were recently given of fifty "Hummers" being kept in a large aviary in France forty years ago, and of a French lady keeping seventeen for a period of six years. So you see in the matter of Hummers, instead of sounding the loud cymbals, we should really hide our diminished heads.

The early treatise on the Woodlark referred to above (the author of which, though anonymous, must be regarded as a person of some education, for he had travelled in Italy, and was able to quote and translate Olin's scarce work on natural history), commences with some excellent advice on the best time of the year for trapping. We read that "the birds taken in June, July, and August sing presently" (immediately) "but last but a little time in song, for they soon fall to moulting; which if they withstand, commonly prove very sweet song-birds but are not so lavish as those taken in the spring."

With regard to birds taken during migration, that is to say in September and October, we are told that "birds taken at flight are brave, strong, handsome, sprightly, strait birds, and do prove well at spring if they be well kept all the winter; if not, they will be lousie and come to nothing."

The third period for trapping is mid-winter, and I think all Woodlark fanciers will agree with our author that birds taken at this time are pre-eminently the best. "I do hold that birds taken in January and February for the most part do prove the best, by reason they are taken in full stomach, and sing in a very short time after, and are more perfect in their song

Identity of the Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid Challenged.

Sir,—I see my name was mentioned in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS as the judge who at the Glasgow show recognised the bird to be a genuine cross by placing it among the awards. My reason for so doing was that I carefully examined the bird (and no doubt it looks a common Song Thrush at first sight), but after handling it, there are many indications of it being a genuine Hybrid. From its head, and right down its back, its feathers are quite dusky in colour, also the lower belly feathers and the underline show much darker in colour than is found in young Thrushes. After the judging I asked my friend, Mr. Edmund Taylor, of Shettleston (who is a great authority on softbilled British birds), to examine the bird, and he, too, is of the opinion that this Hybrid is genuine, and that it will only take another moult to prove it so. My reason for having it so far back in the tickets was that it is not a cross of Hybrid I would encourage, as, apart from its rarity, it is not exactly an exhibition Hybrid cross.

MATTHEW CRAIG.

Sir,—I cannot understand why so much doubt is expressed respecting the genuineness of the above Hybrid. I take it that it was produced from a cock Thrush and hen Blackbird, no other birds of either being in aviary. Surely the breeder should know how it was produced. Was the nest built by the two said birds? If so, did it partake of the nature of the Thrush or Blackbird's nest? The one is lined with clay and other not, and they are easily distinguishable. I always notice there are plenty to decry and run down any new Hybrid or Mule, and I should like to advise those that doubt to take up the fascinating hobby of Hybrid breeding, and after many failures, to experience the thrill of pleasure one feels on being able to report and show that at last one's efforts have been crowned with success.

I see in CAGE BIRDS of Dec. 25 that Mr. Robson says "It is not a Hybrid but simply an ordinary Song Thrush." How can it be simply Song Thrush when only cock Thrush and hen Blackbird are in aviary? I should like to ask if the breeder saw them pair off. In Mule or Hybrid breeding some of the offspring often only show the parentage of one parent, while in others both parentages are easily and beautifully distinguished; but few turn out tip-top first prize specimens.

I heartily congratulate the breeder on his success, and especially on his willingness to show the specimen, and I hope he will be fortunate in keeping it for many years, and possibly with second and succeeding moults it will show more clearly both parentages.

I am myself greatly interested in hobby Mule and Hybrid breeding, and especially with foreign Finches, but so far without success.

F. J. W. S.

Sir,—The evidence so far as to the genuineness or not of the Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid is certainly in favour of Mr. Anderson. The bird has been shown under three judges, two of whom have awarded it a prize. The egg-shell from which the bird was hatched has been sent to Mr. Robson, proving that it was hatched from a Blackbird's egg. There was no cock Blackbird in aviary, consequently the bird must have paired with the Thrush. The Hybrid has been sent by Mr. Anderson for your inspection, and was submitted by you to several experts, who having carefully examined it, pronounced directly in its favour as a genuine Hybrid. What more could Mr. Anderson have done? It comes to this, either Mr. Anderson is a confounded humbug, or a gentleman, and I have no hesitation in saying that he is the latter—a perfect gentleman;—and I must heartily congratulate him upon his success. I hope, however, that he will see his way to exhibit the bird again at one of the Scotch shows, so that we may have the opinion of another expert.

J. C. WILMOT.

Sir,—I had no intention of entering into the discussion regarding identity of the Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid, but being one of the two witnesses Mr. Robson refers to whose evidence is of no value, I am compelled to try, if possible, to relieve his mind of the possibility of a fraud being committed on the Fancy. Unlike Mr. Robson, I am not an expert British Bird fancier, therefore cannot enter into details on the similarity of this Hybrid to its parents, but the experts who examined the bird for you, Mr. Editor, are clearly of opinion that it is not a common Song Thrush, and a little more information from that quarter would be very interesting.

We all grant that this bird has followed to a great extent the male parent in colour and markings, and of course Mr. Robson had to judge it as staged. I have been a frequent visitor at Mr. Anderson's aviary for a number of years, and have often heard him express his opinion on the possibility of getting Hybrids from his Blackie hen and cock Song Thrush, and in 1914 the mother of the present Hybrids laid several clutches, but all were infertile.

This year the same Blackbird has nested and hatched out two young. I saw them in the nest; I saw them being fed by the Blackbird hen; I saw the Blackie egg-shells at the foot of the tree, and above all I saw on several occasions that there was no other bird that would mate with the Blackie but a Song Thrush cock or a Corn Bunting that was flying about the aviary. The result of this nest was two Hybrids. One died about three weeks ago, and the other one is living yet.

Again, after rearing above Hybrids, the Blackie hen went to nest a second time under same circumstances as before described. I again saw this interesting bird sitting on her nest, and I repeat I saw the contents of the aviary. Aye, Mr. Robson, and saw the eggs too, and would you believe it, they were Blackie eggs. The young were duly hatched out of this nest, and Mr. Anderson got four Hybrids; one died in the nest, and one killed itself against the wire of the aviary.

Mr. Anderson has at present three Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrids in his aviary, all beautiful birds and a credit to their owner. Now, Mr. Robson, I have nothing to gain or lose by fabricating the foregoing; there they are, corroborated by the owner and other two gentlemen. You are quite correct in saying that I did not see the eggs of this particular bird being hatched; neither did you see many particular birds hatched in your own bird-room; but, nevertheless, you knew the parents. So it is with me; there the Blackbird hen; there the Song Thrush cock, there the eggs and there the young.

Regarding Mr. Anderson or any one who had access to his aviary putting Thrush eggs in the nest; you have only to know the man to dispel that idea. We here could stake our lives on his word. He would be the last man in the Fancy to stoop to such a thing or allow it to be done.

Is this evidence now of any value? If not there is only one thing I would like, but I am sorry it is not in my power, that is to make a present to Mr. Robson of one of these Hybrids. He could then study it a little longer than he did at Carlisle. In the morning when he would go out to his aviary he would see this bird hop on to a branch and when perching spread out its tail, and when throwing in some worms he would hear it "chuck, chuck" all in cock Blackbird fashion. After a day or two of this Mr. Robson, you would imagine you could hear it "chuck, chuck" in your sleep; then Mr. Anderson would come into his own by your posting in all haste an ample apology for your mistake in trying so positively to deprive him of his laurels so honestly won.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I am in sympathy with your correspondent, Mr. G. Smithson. Let there be no descending to personalities in this controversy, but it is bad for the hobby to have an important advance in the breeding of rare Hybrids settled, or "snuffed out" in an easy manner.

Walton and Everton C.B.S. and Its Shows.

Sir,—Replying to "Brecker," who complains of no reports of the above Society's shows, I should like to say that if "Brecker" (whoever he is) has kept in close touch with the Society during the past 12 months he must know that the late secretary has suffered much from ill-health during that time, and only by the help of others has he been able to retain office. The work of the shows has no doubt been a great strain to him, and I think it would have been much more manly of "Brecker" if he had aired his grievance at one of our meetings instead of slating the work of a sick man from behind a nom de plume. "Brecker" should attend the meetings regularly, and endeavour to get his name included in the list of donors of specials. He would find this to be the best spirit in which to encourage the secretary, and stimulate interest in the Society and its shows.

A Few Hints on Bird-catching.

Sir,—Respecting where to set a net to catch Linnets and Chaffinches, the best place I have found is a stubble field, about half-way up, near the hedge. I always use in the net the seed I clean from the cages, adding a bit of good sound rape and white Canary seed. I generally place seed where I am going to catch, a day or two before I go with the net, so the birds get to know where to feed. I place a bird in a call cage at each side of the net. I never have used a brace bird, so I don't know anything about the flint stick. I have never been out to catch Bullfinches.

A NORTHERN BIRD FANCIER.

Sir,—I am surprised to find after the kind offer of Mr. Davies, the show manager, of a reward of £2 for the missing Yorkshire, that the secretary has treated the matter so coolly instead of investigating the case thoroughly. It was through my instigation that the entry was made, and I naturally feel more interested in same. I shall be obliged if Mr. Powell will answer me two questions in next week's issue. Can he prove that the bird was not stolen from the show? What was his reason for accusing me of calling on him, to buy a bird on false pretence, when I produced a letter to that effect? Now, Mr. Powell, be a sport; meet all your members, get the differences that are existing thrashed out, and bury the hatchet once and for all. In your society you have some of the best of fanciers, and by clearing the air you will be able to keep up the traditions of good old Aberaman and "Sweet Berdar" (Aberdare) which have always been second to none as sporting towns.

I shall be pleased to give you any assistance by attending the suggested meeting and getting the whole settled up amicably, so as to start the New Year with the best of feeling in this most appropriate time.

J. O'LEARY.

What About the Welsh National Show?

Sir,—I am delighted to read my old friend Jack Nicholas's letter, "What about a Welsh National Show this season?" I also am of opinion that we have in gallant little Wales plenty of fanciers who would gladly subscribe 5s. towards expenses of a show. We all know what a huge success the first National was, and I see no reason why we could not continue; we have plenty of exhibitors who I am sure would support our efforts. I am given to understand that Mr. Banks wrote our Cardiff Society re holding the Welsh National in February, but Cardiff could not entertain the proposal. Unfortunately Cardiff show has not had the help this year as in previous years from our members, including myself; therefore it makes it hard work for the committee and officials, and they do not relish running a show under such conditions.

Another point is that we have sold a lot of tickets for our show, and cannot ask people to buy tickets right on top of one another. Why not change the name of the Cardiff C.B.S. to Welsh National C.B.S., and hold at Cardiff every year a Welsh National show run on the same lines as Scottish National and London C.B.A. shows?

I am afraid we cannot hold two shows in Cardiff in the one season, that is why I suggest one large show. We have here one of the finest halls in the country, good railway service, and, last, but not least, plenty of good sound fanciers. I should like some of my old friends to give their opinions on the matter, as personally I am prepared to support a Welsh National show.

A. SHELLAM.

Birds in the Firing Line.

Sir,—Being a reader of your paper for some years, and now soldiering in Flanders, I thought you would like to know what I have seen of bird life here. Swallows were the first noticed, because they flew about as if they had not come back to their old home. And good reason why; their nesting places in the farm buildings had been blown down by the guns, so they nested in all kinds of places; in soldiers' billets, and in cottages, passing in and out through broken windows. They were quite tame, and took no notice of any noise or lights. Yellowhammers are numerous, as it is a country that suits them; they have ideal nesting places on the sloping sides of the deep ditches that irrigate the great plains, and their song could be heard from morning till dusk.

It was very curious to hear the Larks singing and Cuckoo calling among the bursting shells. Thrushes and Blackbirds are fairly plentiful, and so are Missal-Thrushes. The Sparrow is very numerous, both in villages and in the trenches. There is a kind of big Owl that hawks the trenches for mice and rats at night. I have not seen many Brown Linnets, Redpolls, Greenfinches, nor Chaffinches, and only one small flock of Goldfinches. The Goldfinches were small, and not very well coloured. Later on, I heard a familiar chatter among some self-sown corn, so I went to investigate, and up flew three Budgerigars. I don't know whether they were wild or escaped birds. In October big flocks of Siskins were migrating from east to west for three days in an almost continuous stream; some kept dropping on thistles, and were big fine birds. There are also a great number of Norway Crows feeding on the marshes. I am sorry to say that nine birds out of ten kept by the peasants are blinded Chaffinches.

Should Present-day Exhibition Lancashires be Abolished?

Sir,—I see Mr. W. Adams is surprised at my remarks on the Lancashires at Manchester. Well, he was not there, so he does not know what they were like. He also says he is certain there are still some good Lancashires left. Where are they to be found? I, for one, have not seen one for many a long day. He says there were good ones out at the R.G.I. show. Very likely; mongrels beating mongrels, as usual. Two or three in a class, and no prize money for the winner, same as at Manchester, and they call that showing these days.

Now Mr. Adams, I don't take any notice of your remarks on the Lancashire, as I have never looked on you as a Lancashire breeder. You have never bred to show, though you have bought some that have been going in your time to win with. You have had some fair birds as times go, but no right good clean bred Lancashires. Very few men have bred that sort for years. The best bird I have ever seen you show was that old ticked Buff Cobby that you sold Hordern, the brother to John Vickers' old Buff Plainhead, and you bought him.

You say Mr. Jameson's is a good bird. Where is he good after you leave his back? He has a fair spoon back that a Lancashire should have, but after that where is he good? He is a big one, and that is all. As for that young one off him it is only what anyone would expect to breed off a bird like the father. The breed has too much Crest in it. You say show committees should keep fanciers from acting as stewards. I was not a steward at Manchester. Why do you not say they should have kept me out of the show room? I know I am a bad lot when mongrels are about to be judged, and you need not tell the mongrel breeders of Lancashire to keep me out of their rooms, as I don't want to go in.

You say the Club keeps dragging along. It does, doing nothing for the Lancashire. What has it done for the last twenty-five years? What have the Lancashire breeders been doing but grabbing the £ s. d. from Crest breeders? Don't say they have been breeding for the bench; they have not. For my part I think the Crest buyers are off. The Crest fancy is going down; the moneyed men are spending their time and money riding about in motor cars, not in Crest breeding or showing. The mongrel Crest-cum-Lancashire is no use to the Yorkshire breeders, judging by the letters. I am receiving for pure-bred Lancashires. One this week tells me he had one from Oldham on approval, and it is no use; too much feather, and too short on the leg. Yorkshire breeders have been good buyers in the past, and would be again if the Lancashire breeders had any of the right sort of Lancashires to sell, but they have not.

In letters I have received for Lancashire hens the writers say they want good long birds, with long wings and tail, well on the legs, and to stand well up as usual; also must be a big bird. Not bad that. And they don't know anything about Lancashire show points? I think they do. Do they think a man is going to spend thirty years of his life trying to breed birds such as they want, and what every Lancashire breeder wants, and then sell them to cross with Yorkshires or anything else? Not me. I know a few good Lancashire birds that can do with hens of that sort. If the breeders of Lancashires were as keen as the breeders of Yorkshires, we should soon have a better lot of show birds on the bench, and none of the trouble we have to-day. The Clegg and Adams combine is out of the question as long as fanciers are after the £ s. d. so keen. It was not so in the old days when men bred Lancashires.

The Novice Problem.

Sir,—I see in the Dec. 18 issue of your esteemed paper, CAGE BIRDS, "Just come back" refers to a son of a very prominent breeder winning the novice medal of a certain specialist club. As secretary of the Society referred to, I beg to inform him that the winner of the novice medal withdrew his claim to same in favour of the runner-up. I think it would be better if fanciers knew all the facts before rushing into print.

W. B. SMART, sec. B.F.C.C.

Sir,—I quite agree with "Just Come Back" that it is quite time something was done about this difficult problem. The only way, to my mind, is to limit all novice classes to, say, £4; this would stop fanciers (?) lending their best birds to win in such sections.

CITY OF CORK C.B.S.

Annual show in the City Hall, Dec. 15 and 16. The room was all that could be desired, being warm, free from draughts, and well lighted. The birds were well staged, and the hon. sec., Mrs. Greene and Mr. Cottrell, looked well after the wants of the exhibitors. The show was well attended during the two days, and many birds were chimed. Mr. A. A. Cowgill, of Bradford, was the judge, and his awards were well received.

SHETTLESTON, CARNTYNE.

First annual show held Nov. 20, in the Co-operative Hall, Shettleston. This hall is quite new, very spacious, lofty, well lighted, and fully equipped with every modern convenience for comfort. Weather was very cold and dull, consequently entries did not come quite up to expectations. Quality as a whole was very good, and each section was represented by not a few really meritorious specimens. Hon. Pres., Mr. W. Robertson; Pres., A. Hendrie; Vice-Pres., G. Henderson and J. Mackay; and the sec., J. Irvine, are all well known. Secretary Irvine works hard to place the Society on a sound working basis. We sincerely hope that his efforts were rewarded with the success deserved. Those of the Committee whom we happened to spot were in their element, attending to the requirements of the stock under their care. Another year's experience should make them ripe in knowledge. The proceeds of this venture were for the local Red Cross and Nursing Association, and we hope that a nice sum was handed over as the result of their labours. The judges were, for Cressis, Norwich and Borders, G. Smart; for Scots Fancies, Mules, British and Foreign, R. H. Livingstone, and as not a dissenting voice was heard we take it that all their awards were well received. Following is list of awards:—

MARDY.

First open show, held Dec. 16. Although our section was not quite as well patronised as was expected, the other sections came up well, and, altogether, the first venture was a huge success, and, from what we heard, another year this society will appoint a separate judge for our section. Our section was in the capable hands of Messrs. Eve, Brown, and Davies, who had everything well in hand, and did everything possible for the welfare of the exhibitors under their charge. The show manager, Mr. H. Greaves, is another cage bird fancier, and he was also very attentive, and left no stone unturned to add to the success of the show. The secretary, Mr. D. D. Jones, is the right man in the right place, and the society are indeed fortunate in having such an able man for the position. Mr. O. E. Hodge judged.

NOR. YELL. CK. (5): 1, sp. 3, 4, vhc. H. Greaves, leader cl., grand col., neat head, well filled neck, nicely balanced wings and tail, good cobby body; 3rd, var., splendid col. and qual., nice shade, neat wings and tail, hardly subs. of leader; 4th, cl., good head and neck, nice col. and qual., nicely moulded; 2, D. Club Reports.

SOUTH WEST LONDON C.B.S.

Meeting, Dec. 9. A table show and judging competition was successfully carried out. Several entered for the judging competition. Mr. Wright, of Westminster, being the final judge. His decision gave great satisfaction. Prize money awarded for 1st and 2nd Yorkshires, six entries. Mr. Hawkins taking both. Norwich, six entries. Mr. Joyner, 1; Arkill, 2. In the judging competition Mr. Graham was the nearest in points to the judge, and was the winner of all prize money. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Wright closed the meeting.—W. Lilley.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.S.

Meeting held in new headquarters, the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, Eglinton Toll, on the 22nd ult., at 8 p.m. The President, Mr. Robt. Heggie, was in the chair, and a record attendance of members all expressed their approval of the committee's action in securing such a fine central site for their meeting place. The rooms are situated right at the southern end of the city proper, and are on the main car route for all parts. The secretary gave a rough statement of the annual show affairs, and expressed himself satisfied with the returns. The open classes were not just up to expectation, but they had paid themselves and left a small margin on the right side. In the crinoid events the entries were a record for the club, being almost 400. The whole of the prize money and specials for the open classes had been paid out and the confined specials were handed out that evening. The prize money for the confined events would be paid out at the annual general meeting of the club, to be held in these rooms Jan. 26, at 8 p.m. Other club matters were gone over, and the meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the chair.—A. K. Hunter, Sec.

GLASGOW AND W. COUNTIES.

Meeting held Dec. 25, Good Templars' Halls, 122, Ingram Street. Mr. Peter Pettigrew presided over a moderate attendance. The following were appointed stewards for annual show, viz., Messrs. Jas. Cross, John Reid, Wm. Brown. Entries for show to close on Friday, Jan. 11; Saturday's post in time for catalogue. Messrs. Cross, P. Pettigrew, and Sec. were appointed to allocate the specials, and Mr. Jas. Findlay presented the society with a cup for annual show, to be competed for by Plainhead, Crest and Crested Canaries, only old birds. I shall esteem it a favour if members will let me have their entries as soon as possible, and thus facilitate matters.—J. H. Adam, Hon. Sec.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for postage must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

NOT MOULTING (L. M. N.).—You ought to have given more particulars about the previous moult, and the appearance of the bird. As it seems to have been moulting lately there is the possibility that the moult has been completed, in which case it is quite in order for it to have stopped shedding feathers now, as it is only abnormal conditions of moult that would cause Canaries to be dropping feathers at this time of year. I think the best I can advise you is to treat the birds for three or four weeks as follows, and then, if it is not apparently what it should be in health or condition, write again, and give full particulars about it, and all symptoms shown by it. Keep it in a comfortable temperature, but do not overdo the heat, and see that it is quite free from cold, direct draughts, and is not exposed to sudden and extreme changes, or to the fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. In addition to this give, twice a week, a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and broken groats, and on two other days give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Every third day give a morsel of banana, boiled carrot, or sweet apple, either one or the other, but not altogether. You may ring the changes with these items for the sake of further variety. In the drinking water, add, for two consecutive days, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and ten drops of lemon juice. Afterwards give 20 drops of chemical food in the water every second day for a fortnight.

MOULT TROUBLES (Tommy).—The bird evidently was badly affected by chills during the time it was moulting, and ought to have been moved to a warm temperature to complete the process, when it would doubtless have finished up all right. Treat as follows for a month or so, and then, if it is not quite well, write again, and repeat full particulars, and I will advise you further. In addition to the staple diet of plain canary seed give every second day half a teaspoonful of boiled summer rape and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and linseed, and on the alternate days give a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with maw seed. A piece about the size of a hazel nut will be quite sufficient, and any remainder should be removed at night. In the drinking water add, for three consecutive days, six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and after this give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight. See that the cage is kept scrupulously clean, and well strewn with clean gritty sand, and it would be beneficial to keep a small cube of hard common salt stuck in the wires of the cage for it to peck at when it likes for a week or two.

OUT OF CONDITION (Eureka).—You are not feeding nor treating the bird correctly. A teaspoonful of mixed seed daily, in addition to the staple seed diet, is far too much, as this quantity is practically as much as the average Canary will consume in a day. Try the following treatment for a few weeks, and report result if the effect is not all that could be desired. As staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape, by measure. In addition to this, give half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture every second day, and a morsel of banana, carrot, or sweet apple. You may ring the changes on these latter items for the sake of variety. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seeds. Stick a small cube of hard common salt in the cage wires for it to peck at when it likes for the next week or two. In the drinking water add, every second day for a week, six drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight. Keep the bird in a fairly warm place free from direct cold draughts or sudden extremes of heat and cold, or fumes of burning lights in the evenings. The excessive thirst will disappear as the diarrhoea is overcome. (2) From a sanitary point of view, and helping to keep the cages clean, sawdust is just as good as sand, but when this is used gritty sand must be supplied in a small vessel separately, for digestive purposes.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BIRDS FOR AN AVIARY (H. Pester).—I see nothing particularly wrong with your aviary; it is planned very nicely. You do not tell me the aspect, but anyway, if it faces the East or West I would advise you to plant some evergreens outside to protect it, for although birds can stand the cold, they do not like rough winds. It would also be as well to have a temporary roof for the netting part, to put on in the winter, when we get an extra long period of wet weather. There is room in it for all the birds you mention, and if they are well fed with plenty of wild food it is just possible some of them may nest, but one cannot speak positively on such a subject. All you can do is, as I say, feed them well, and give them plenty of nesting material, and build up some cosy corners to nest in.

TREATMENT OF FRESHLY CAUGHT BULLFINCHES (W. K.).—When first captured place your birds in a rather quiet yet light corner of the bird-room, and supply them with boiled water to drink, placing the vessel inside the cage. Supply them with hemp, teazle, niger, rape, maw, and sunflower; the latter should be lightly cracked. In

should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

In addition to this you should collect any wild food that you can manage to find; there is not an abundance just now, but still some can be found; then again, private berries they will seldom refuse, and a supply of these can be gathered, and will keep fresh for some time if the stalks are stood in water or damp sand. These they can have daily. If you failed to collect wild seeds in the autumn you had better get a packet of wild seed mixture from the dealer and give them a little daily, sprinkled on the floor of the cage. After they have been caged a week or ten days, give them an aperient of salts, as much as will cover a shilling dissolved in the drinking water. If you are interested in Bullfinches you should obtain our Nutshell booklet No. 11. It gives you a lot of information about their treatment.

HOUSE SPARROW AS CAGED BIRD (Young Tull).—When seeking information in these columns it is usual, and also one of our rules, for the reader to send his name and address. Perhaps you will please send it on a postcard. There is no difficulty in getting a House Sparrow to accustom itself to caged life, but for this purpose they must be caught young; an old one will never become tame, although he may appear to be quite so when flying about in one's garden. I expect yours is a bird of the year, which would account for its settling down so easily.

CAGE-MAKING AND HYBRID MATTERS (Eureka).—(1) The usual thickness of wood that cages are made of is 1 inch. When it is in the rough, that is before being planed up, it measures 3/8ths inch, but any fairly thin wood will answer the purpose, although 1 inch is preferred on account of the weight. (2) I have never found any difficulty in cleaning out my cages when the old birds are setting. If a cage is made without the draw-board, the birds get used to one scraping out the bottoms, some time before they go to nest, and young ones reared under such conditions take no more notice of it than they do when you handle a cage, but it is quite a matter of fancy about having your cage fitted with drawboard or not. Some fanciers prefer them, some do without. (3) In feeding pairs put up for muling you must study the requirements of the Finch, the food used is generally somewhat richer than that usually given to the Canary, but the only trouble is that it has the effect of getting her to nest somewhat earlier than usual, and possibly before the Finch is ready. If there is fear of this she should be caged separately and fed on a less stimulating diet. (4) Correctly speaking, all crosses between different species are "Hybrids," but the term "Mules" has been used in the Fancy for many years, and serves to denote crosses between the Finch and Canary. The word "Hybrid" is usually applied to the produce of two British birds.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

SULPHUR-CRESTED COCKATOO ILL (Anderson).—In lieu of the drinking water supply a mixture of Nestle's milk, cornflour and boiling water (mixed to a drinkable consistency), and supply to the bird when cool, first stirring in two drops of laudanum to the fluid ounce of the mixture—it must be prepared fresh daily. The above is only to be used as a medicine, as soon as the bowels become normal and appetite returns gradually cease supplying it, but in conjunction with it offer twice daily a drink of tepid water containing three drops of aromatic sulphuric acid to the fluid ounce. Supply the following seed mixture: One quart each hemp, giant canary, sunflower, safflower, oats, shelled peanuts, and a handful of parrot grit—well mix, store in dust-proof tins and keep in a dry place. I should encourage it to eat ripe fruit and arrowroot biscuits; it will be an advantage to lightly spread the latter with honey and borax, and cod liver oil emulsion on alternate days. I should also offer a little boiled maize while it is out of tone—boil till soft, drain off all water, and then allow about eight drops of cod liver oil emulsion to soak in before supplying to the bird. Only crock or glass vessels must be used when supplying drugs. Keep the bird warm, out of draught, yet where the light is good and the air fresh. Keep cuttlebone continually in the cage, also a chunk of wood for it to exercise its mandibles upon.

PUTTING BIRDS OUT OF DOORS (A. J.).—It may be taken as a general axiom that birds that are intended to remain out all the year round should only be put out of doors between April and August. It is a wise provision to so arrange the aviary that the birds can be driven into the covered portion at dusk during winter days. New arrivals should never be turned straight away into the aviary on arrival; they need a quiet time to rest and feed after the exhaustion which follows a rail journey. If put into the aviary when weak and tired they are in no condition to take their own part against the other birds who resent the new comers; they get bullied away from the food and from "pillar to post," and perish miserably from want of food and exhaustion. On arrival they should have a day at least to rest and feed in quiet, and then another day or two in the aviary in cages. After a few days the cage doors should be left open for the birds to emerge at will. This will cause practically no disturbance in the aviary, and the birds will do well and losses be the exception instead of the rule. Owing to having no details of the arrangements of your aviary I am only able to give you general directions. The above covers all the birds you name. While I think your present birds would all survive the winter out of doors, I think you would be wiser not to give them access to the open flight till next spring, especially as your locality is rather a northerly one.

ZEBRA Doves, ETC. (Park Square).—(1) The Zebra Dove has been bred many times; it may be said freely in captivity, but it must be admitted that this refers more to the past than recent years, for though a fair number have been kept during the past few years, the instances of successful rearing of young have been comparatively rare. (2) The following are all small species and most of them have been bred freely, especially the first named, which is also one of the most beautiful of small foreign Doves: Diamond, Peaceful, Picot, Passerine, Talpacoti, Cape and Dwarf Ground Doves. Several of the above are smaller than the Zebra Dove. (3) Certainly the book for you to get is "My Foreign Doves and Pigeons," by Rosie Alderson, it is comprehensive as to treatment, etc., and while covering some fifty species, only deals with such as the author has kept. It is published at 4s. 6d., and postage would be about sixpence; the Editor of "Cage Birds" would obtain it for you.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A PARROT STORY (J. R. Freeman).—Thanks for the story. There are, however, quite a lot of whiskers on it by now. Parrots live a long time, but the original Parrot of which the story was told must be as dead as Pharoah.

BOOK ON HYBRID BREEDING (B. R.).—"The Secrets of Hybrid Breeding," which our publisher would send you post free for 12s., would be very helpful to you. Glad you like our Nutshells. Please see notice at the head of these columns referring to postal replies.
